GOP TAX-CUT BILL CLEARS HOUSE

Truman Asks Laws Insuring Equal Rights

President Offers 10-Point Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman asked Congress today to pass federal laws against lynching and against discrimination in voting or employment on grounds of race, creed or color.

In a 4,000-word message, the President outlined a 10-point program to correct what he called "flagrant" offenses against the American faith —that "all men are created equal and that they have the right to equal justice."

Mr. Truman replied in advance to the objection, frequently raised in the South, that this is a matter for state and local governments to deal with in keeping with local problems and traditions.

"The federal government has a clear duty," he said, "to see that constitutional guarantees of individual liberties and of equal protection under the laws are not denied or abridged anywhere in our union."

Political Dynamite

Taking a stand on two questions charged with political dynamite in the South, the President:

1. Called for anti-discrimination laws covering election of state as well as federal officers.

2. Asked Congress to end the requirement in some states that residents pay a poll tax before voting in federal elections.

Mr. Truman called for re-establishment of the wartime Fair Employment Practice Commission—a step certain to be fought by some southern legislators to the point of filibuster if necessary.

He also proposed:

Establishment of a permanent commission to study civil rights questions, a joint committee of Congress for the same purpose and a civil rights division in the Department of Justice.

Home rule, and the right to vote in presidential elections, for residents of the District of Columbia—now voteless and governed by Congress and a commission appointed by the President.

Statehood For Hawaii, Alaska

Statehood for the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska, and a larger degree of self-government for our island posessions.

An end to discrimination in interstate travel—"Jim Crowe" separation of whites and negroes.

Removal of racial or national barriers which prevent United States residents from becoming citizens.

The setting up of machinery to pay the damage claims of the more than 100,000 Japanese-Americans evacuated from Pacific Coast states during the war.

Insuring equality for all our citizens, the President said, will make us "stronger in our leadership, stronger in our moral position" as we strive with the free nations of the world to create a lasting peace.

Risks Wrath Of Southerners

President Truman risked the wrath of many people in the "solid" South when he issued his civil rights message.

But his words carried a strong appeal for millions of others, including negroes and members of other minority groups who feel that "equal opportunities," as the President put it, are denied them.

These are the election year facts —quite apart from the right or wrong of Mr. Truman's appeal for federal laws guaranteeing equal treatment for black man and white, Jew and Gentile.

They are important political facts, too—pointed up by such current developments as the negro drive for equal school facilities and the threat of some southerners to secede from the Democratic Party if it doesn't leave the race question alone.

Possible Threat Of Bituminous Coal Strike Is Raised By Lewis

Deadlock On Benefit Payment Plan Bared

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—John L. Lewis today raised a possible threat of a soft coal strike. He told mine operators he feels free to "take any independent action necessary" to force payments out of a $50,000,000 welfare fund.

The president of the United Mine Workers charged the operators with failing to live up to their 1947 contract by refusing to agree on a method for making payments out of the fund.

The fund is made up of royalty payments by the coal operators at the rate of 10 cents on every ton produced. It is administrated by a three-man board of trustees, who so far have failed to agree on any benefit payment plan.

Dispute "National In Scope"

In his notice to the operators, Lewis said this "now constitutes an outstanding, unresolved dispute, national in scope and character, affecting the integrity of the contract and impeding its fulfillment."

Some coal operators said they feared the "notice" may be a warning of a strike. The document, itself, however, made no mention of any walkout possibility. Lewis' headquarters declined to elaborate.

Lewis reportedly has demanded a series of benefits which include $100 a month retirement pay for every miner reaching 60 years of age, having worked in the mines for 20 years.

It was reported that the operators balked on the grounds that Lewis' proposals would commit the owners to pay benefits costing more than the present 10-cent royalty will pay for.

Brought Into Open

The mine union leader's notice brought into the open officially a bitter argument—debated in secret meetings for some time by Lewis and the bituminous operators—over a method of paying benefit from the fund.

Lewis told the operators that payments from the fund are an obligation and that Horn "continues, as he has consistently continued" to thwart the fulfillment of that contractual obligation.

He added:

"It now constitutes an outstanding, unresolved dispute, national in scope and character, affecting the integrity of the contract and impeding its fulfillment."

Accused "No. 1 Communist" In U. S. Arrested

Eisler's Release On Bond Blocked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—Gerhard Eisler, accused "No. 1 Communist" in the United States, was arrested in New York today under a process which, if it works, will keep him in custody until he has served time, been deported, or both.

The arrest was made on a deportation warrant obtained by the Justice Department. Officials said bail is not permitted in such a case.

The Justice Department would not discuss the action in detail but the practical effect is to block any effort to obtain Eisler's release on bond ending Supreme Court action on his appeal from two convictions. He faces possible punishment in those cases totalling up to six years plus fines of $6,000.

Habeas Corpus Petition Planned

Eisler's one way out is to attack the deportation action in a habeas corpus petition. Mrs. Carol King, Eisler's New York lawyer, said she would try that tomorrow. Lawyers here pointed out that in a habeas corpus proceeding the burden of proof is on the petitioner—he must show affirmatively that he is entitled to freedom.

Actually there was no expectation here that a move would be made to send Eisler home to Germany immediately.

Deportation proceedings against persons under prison or jail sentence customarily wait until they have served minimum time. After that they are paroled to immigration officials for immediate removal from the country.

A few hours before the chubby, 50-year-old Eisler was taken into custody, the United States District Court here refused to upset his conviction on a charge of concealing his Communist links when he applied for a permit to leave this country in 1945. Maximum penalty is five years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

Convicted Of Contempt

Eisler also has been convicted of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions before the House Committee on un-American Activities. He was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1,000 on the contempt charge.

The committee described him as America's "No. 1 Communist" and witnesses in the two trials said he gave the Communist Party in the United States its orders. The government charged that Eisler came here "to disrupt the economy of the United States in accordance with the wishes of Moscow."

Eisler acknowledged membership in the German Communist Party but said he was not a foreign agent and "never had the intention to overthrow the American government." He described himself as "a political exile fighting for the right to go home in peace."

297-120 Vote Exceeds Tally To Upset Veto

Senate May Revise Figure Downward

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 —Republicans easily rammed their $6,500,000,000 tax-slashing bill through the House today and sent it over to the Senate where the amount may be cut.

The House vote was 297 to 120—19 more votes than will be needed there to pass the bill over an expected presidential veto.

However, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters that he doubts that the bill could be passed over a veto in the Senate unless the amount of revenue loss is reduced.

Sen. Lucas (D-Ill) predicted Senate Republicans will "gladly" accept a $4,000,000,000 figure.

Sixty-three Democrats joined 234 Republicans voting for the big tax cut. Opposed were 118 Democrats, Rep. Marcantonio, of New York, the only American Labor Party representative, and a lone Republican, Rep. H. Carl Andersen, of Minnesota.

After the thumping GOP victory, Speaker Martin (R-Mass), told reporters "there is no doubt as far as the House is concerned we will pass the bill over any veto of the President.

Senate Revision Likely

There still were indications, however, that the Senate will revise the $6,500,000,000 figure downward, to pick up Democratic votes there.

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), who wrote the bill, told reporters:

"The overwhelming majority given the tax-reduction bill by the House reflects the general demand that our wartime tax burdens be lightened—now, not at some nebulous future date, as suggested by the President. The tax bill is now on the road to final enactment."

The House showdown vote came shortly after the Republicans, with the aid of 21 Democrats, beat down 258 to 159 a Democratic substitute bill. This proposed to cut individual income taxes $4,000,000,000 but would have recovered all but $800,000,000 of the revenue loss by a new $3,200,000,000 excess profits levy on corporations.

The GOP measure, written by Rep Knutson, (R-Minn), would grant reductions to all of the 52,000,000 income taxpayers, ranging from 100 per cent in the lowest area to 10 per cent in the upper brackets. It would apply on 1948 income.

Raises Exemptions By $100

It would remove 7,400,000 low-income persons from the tax rolls completely.

The GOP measure would:

1. Raise personal exemptions by $100, from $500 to $600;

2. Apply the community property principle to all states. This permits husbands and wives to split the family income equally for tax reporting purposes, thus holding the income at lower tax rates.

3. In addition, grant percentage cuts ranging from 30 per cent in the lowest taxable incomes to 10 per cent in the heaviest incomes.

4. Give special exemptions to persons 65 and over and to the blind.

5. Adjust estate and gift taxes to the community property principle.

Beall Voted For Bill

THOMAS W. LAMONT, 77, PHILANTHROPIST, DIES

NEW YORK, Tuesday, Feb. 3—(AP)—Thomas W. Lamont, 77, chairman of the board of J. P. Morgan and Company and widely known philanthopist, died just before midnight last night at his home at Boca Grande, Fla., a member of the Morgan firm announced early today.

Lamont, though he had been in poor health for more than a year, attended a meeting of the Morgan directors only last December 17. He went to Florida by train January 8.

Palestine Group Calls For Action

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 2 (AP) — The Palestine Partition Commission pleaded today for quick United Nations action to prevent threatened chaos in the Holy Land when the British leave.

The commission envisaged in its first report to the Security Council a collapse of security and administrative forces in the Holy Land unless the U.N. gives it adequate means to exercise its authority.

The five-member group did not go into details about the adequate means it wants but it is drawing up a separate report for the Security Council regarding an international force to carry out the partition.

The commission said its information shows that the Palestine situation is likely to become worse rather than improve. The commission was created by the General Assembly to supervise the partition.

The British have served notice they will terminate the mandate May 15 or sooner and that they would prefer for the commission not to enter Palestine until about two weeks before the mandate ends. The members said they were not satisfied with that suggestion but did not fix a time for their arrival in the Holy Land.

Navy To Lend 15,000 Barrels Of Oil To Md.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Navy agreed today to lend Maryland and Pennsylvania oil for emergency use during the current cold weather.

It announced it will lend 15,000 barrels of Diesel oil to Maryland and 100,000 barrels of heavy industrial oil to Pennsylvania.

The states both agreed to replace the oil by June 30, the Navy said.

The oil, intended for emergency use by institutions such as hospitals and for individual use where absolutely necessary, is stored at Craney Island Fuel Depot, Norfolk, Va.

Do-Or-Die Battle For Indian Peace Pledged By Nehru

Government Bans Hate Organizations

NEW DELHI, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Jawaharla Nehru pledged today that his government would give India the peace for which Mohandas Gandhi died or go down in disgrace and defeat.

In swift implementation of the pledge, the government banned private armies and organizations which preach violence or communal hatred.

Nehru delivered his pledge to the Indian Constituent Asembly as the ashes of the martyred Gandhi were being prepared for commital in 11 days to the Ganges River, considered a holy stream by the Hindus.

As Nehru spoke India's forces for law and order engaged in the country's greatest manhunt in an effort to trace the men the government believes plotted Gandhi's death.

Others Marked For Death

A high government official said Nehru, Home Minister Sardar Vallabhai Patel and Education Minister Maulana Abul Kalam Azad had also been marked for death.

New Delhi was quiet, but trouble flared in Calcutta and Bombay. It was directed at the militant Hindu Mahasabha, an anti-Moslem political group in which police said the man held as the assassin of Gandhi held membership.

A mob stoned the house of Dr. Shyama Prosad Mookerjee, former president of the Mahasabha, in Calcutta. The mob also destroyed the office files and furniture of the Daily Hindustan, a Mahasabha newspaper.

Dr. Mookerjee is Minister of Industry and supply for the Indian government. His home in New Delhi was also stoned despite police protection thrown around it.

Nehru Addresses 500,000

In Bombay mobs tried to burn the home of a Mahasabha member. The president of the group in that city said it was unfair to condemn or penalize Mahasabja for the dastardly act of one individual. He strongly condemned the murder of Gandhi.

A dispatch to a Bombay newspaper from Dadar said a member of the RSS, a group similar to the Mahasabha, was hacked to death in that town.

Tonight Nehru and Patel addressed a mass meeting in New Delhi which police said was attended by 500,000 persons.

In plain and bitter language, Nehru charged that Gandhi's death resulted from a conspiracy by those seeking to establish "communal rule" in India.

U.S. Brands Soviet Charges "False"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—The United States curtly told Russia today that Moscow's objections to American warships in Italian waters are "without foundation."

A State Department spokesman added that Russian charges of United States militarism in Iran are either distorted or downright false.

Moscow had complained that the United States was trying to make Iran a strategic military base. Russia viewed this as muscling in on her oil-rich southern neighbor.

Meeting head-on the current series of Soviet diplomatic and propaganda attacks on American actions abroad, the department also:

1. Prepared for delivery a note rejecting Moscow's January 21 complaint that restoring a wartime American air field at Mellaha in North Africa violated the peace treaty with Italy.

2. Awaited still another Soviet protest, aimed at flights of American aircraft over Russian shipping near Japan.

The Moscow radio said it had been dispatched.

The note rejecting the protest Russia filed January 28 against visits of the big aircraft carrier Midway and other American warships to Italian ports matched the brusque wording used in the note submitted by Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

Signed by Under Secretary Robert A. Lovett, it said in every case the Italian governmnet gave formal permission for the visits which were "arranged in strict accord with the comity (courtesy) of nations."

Lovett said the visits were "an indication of the sincere good-will and friendship" between this country and Italy.

As for the marines aboard, they were "a part of their normal ship's complement," Lovett said.

Truman Aides Pave Way For Alien Assets Release

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)— President Truman's top advisors paved the way today for dollar-short Western European countries to get their hands on $1,100,000,000 now "frozen" in this country.

The National Advisory Council voted to turn over this amount, owned by citizens of countries seeking United States aid under the Marshall program, to the alien property custodian.

These assets were "frozen" by the United States government when the Nazis overran Europe.

Now the European countries can get them released by showing that the funds are owned by theilr citizens. Any funds not claimed will be kept by the United States.

U.S. And Italy Sign Friendship Pact

ROME, Feb. 2 (AP)—The United States and Italy tonight signed a treaty of friendship, trade and navigation which includes a promise to allow exchange of news without censorship.

The pact is the first the United States has made with a former enemy of World War II. It also is one of the broadest treaties America has ever concluded with any country.

Before it becomes effective the treaty must be ratified by the United States Senate and the new Italian parliament to be elected in April.

The treaty replaces the pact of 1871 abrogated by joint consent in 1937 when Benito Mussolini began aiming for Italian economic self-sufficiency.

Signing of the pact coincided with Russia's diplomatic drive against extension of American influence in the Mediterranean.

Under the treaty both Italy and the United States open their ports to the other's ships. Generally, the citizens of each country are granted equal treatment with the nationals of the other in commercial and legal dealings.

Each country reserves the right to control traffic in arms and munitions including the import and export of fissionable materials—the source of atomic bombs.

The signing ceremony in the Foreign Ministry lasted only 10 minutes. Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza signed for Italy and Ambassador James C. Dunn for the United States.

War On "Vulgar" Records Is Under Way In Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 2 (AP)— Four hundred phonograph records of three songs were broken by police today because, Commissioner Joe Boyle said, they were "suggestive and vulgar."

Boyle ordered their confiscation from juke box record distributors. He said that all retailers had been warned to remove the records from sale.

Several distributors said they would submit questionable records to Boyle in the future.

Groundhog Back In Bed

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP)—Brother Groundhog poked out his head today and then returned to his hole, scared by his own shadow. As far as the nation's cold sufferers are concerned, he should have stood in bed.

That shadow, an old legend says, presages six more weeks of winter weather.

It took only a minute of sunshine at 8:46 a. m. (EST) to let the little weather prophet spot his shadow and scurry for his hole, reported Dr. F. A. Lorenzo, president of Punxsutawney's Groundhog Club.

For the last 78 years the old Gobblers Knob Club of Punxsutawney has recorded the February 2 forecast of the little furry character who's called everything from a whistle-pig to woodchuck.

At Quarryville, members of the Slumbering Lodge of Groundhogs cast worried eyes at the skies when an airplane zoomed over the observation field at some 10,000 feet and dropped a cloud of dry ice in a sabotage move to stir up a man-made snow storm.

But the sun shone on and Hibernating Governor Charles Hess reported the shivering chuck took a sleepy look at his shadow at 9:58½ a. m. and headed for cover.

It was no better at Allentown where the faithful of Grundsow Lodge Nummer Ains On Da Lechaw (Pennsylvania German for Groundhog Lodge No. 1 on the Lehigh clocked the woodchuck shadow at 8:30 a. m.

Even in Philadelphia's zoo, a rank amateur named Gertie, couldn't help seeing her shadow. She blinked in the sun, decided it was no one she knew and waddled back to the small mammal house to sleep it off.

The weatherman, who sticks his neck out every day of the year, added a word of agreement. A new cold wave is moving in from the Great Lakes, he said, and the temperatures are going to drop toward zero.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — Mr. Groundhog and the Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack were in complete agreement today that February and early March will have more than their fair shares of bad weather.

The groundhog saw his shadow. The almanac—a Maryland institution—predicts a lot of snow, rain and cold weather between now and the middle of March.

Flamingo Derailed

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 2 (AP) — The engine and several cars of the Louisville and Nashville Flamingo, Chicago to Jacksonville express, jumped the track three miles west of Waycross tonight. No injuries were reported.

Clubwomen Back 'Get Ready' Meat Ration Measure

CIO Declares Bill "Not Good Enough"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The General Federation of Women's Clubs backed the "get-ready-for-meat-rationing" bill today but the CIO opposed it as "not good enough."

The other big labor organization, the AFL, pointed a critical finger at meat packers. AFL Economist Boris Shiskin said that the packers since June, 1946, have increased their prices twice as much as their costs increased.

The viewpoints were expressed at a meeting of a Senate subcommittee studying the bill of Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) to set up standby authority to ration meat, if needed.

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, Richmond, president of the women's federation, urged that rationing be invoked if there is a serious meat shortage.

"Something must be done, and done quickly," she said, "about the disastrously high and steadily rising cost of living."

The CIO spokesman was Donald Montgomery, who used to be a consumers' counsel in the Agriculture Department.

He learned then, he said, that pressure exerted on behalf of meat packers was effective but that brought on the department for consumers was not.

Montgomery said the CIO favors price controls as well as rationing on all food commodities. He said the Flanders bill would limit the amount of meat a family could get but would not affect the cost.

Chairman Flanders, of the subcommittee, said he intends to end hearings on his bill tomorrow, that "we must act by the middle of the week."

Meanwhile, there were related developments.

1. The full Senate Banking Committee was told by a Baltimore businessman, H. H. Miller Metal Products, Inc., "I am convinced that a period of keen competition is just around the corner. Now, when severe competition is just ahead, is no time in my judgment to put in price controls."

2. The Federal Reserve Board reported a big jump in credit granted to installment buyers.

It said the jump was $423,000,000 in December, the second month since anti-inflation credit controls were dropped, and also an always busy retail month. The total was put at $6,152,000,000, not far below peacetime records.

3. The Home Loan Bank Board reported that despite rising prices, Americans added $9,000,000,000 to their savings last year. Total savings were put at $155,700,000,000.

Eight More Slain In Palestine War

JERUSALEM, Feb. 2 (AP) — Eight persons died today in sporadic guerrilla fighting that gripped Palestine from Jerusalem's ancient walls to the cos..

Jerusalem tensely awaited an expected large-scale reprisal blow by Jewish fighters to avenge last night's bombing of the publishing plant of the pro-Zionist newspaper, Palestine Post.

British troops and police patroled Jerusalem's "battle grounds" in armored cars, but were unable to prevent scattered outbursts of violence.

Four Jews, three Arabs and a British soldier were killed in the day's fighting throughout the Holy Land. Reports of the Palestine police were filled with accounts of bombings, sniper attacks and convoys holdups.

An unofficial tabulation showed 1,027 persons have been killed in 65 days of Arab-Jewish clashes since the United Nations decision to partition Palestine.

Abdul Khader Bey Husseini, commander of Arab fighters in Jerusalem, said tonight his men bombed the Post building. The action was taken "to prove we could strike at the heart of our enemy," he added.

A statement from Husseini's headquarters said:

"Our soldiers are ready to strike and strike again. We chose the hour of 11 p. m. so casualties would be at a minimum. If we had wanted to kill, we could have placed the same bomb in front of a cinema. The bomb itself was designed to destroy property without killing the occupants."

New Cold Snap Expected In Eastern States Today

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. (AP) — Much colder weather overspread the Northern Plains States and Upper Mississippi Valley today, and the new cold spell, with snow flurries following on its heels, was moving rapidly eastward.

Sub-zero temperatures were reported tonight in portions of North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin, and most of the day's high temperatures were well below freezing. The colder air was gradually pushing temperatures down in the Great Lakes region, but the Weather Bureau said the new cold snap won't be severe compared with that of last week.

In addition, the frigid air mass was moving so rapidly that the chilly weather it brings will amount to "a one-night stand in many places," the Weather Bureau said. The cooler weather was expected to reach the East by tomorrow and tomorrow night.

The minimum forecast for Chicago tonight was 10 to 12 above zero, a drop of only eight or nine degrees from last night's low. The coldest spots tonight, the Weather Bureau said, again will be Northern Minnesota, in the Red River Valley region.

A band of rain and drizzle extended through Texas and Oklahoma, and was advancing eastward

Father, Who Hanged Sons By Thumbs, Sobs In Court

ABINGTON, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP) — "I love my boy," sobbed 50-year-old Melvin MacNeill as he was haled before Justice of the Peace Howard Nice today on a charge of hanging his three young sons by their thumbs with shoestrings.

The eldest boy, Melvin, Jr., 12, also broke into tears and cried: "I love my daddy very much."

Nice fined MacNeill $25, plus $3.50 costs, on a charge of "cruelty, ill treating, abusing and inflicting unnecessarily cruel punishment upon three minor children."

Any higher penalty, Nice remarked, would only have robbed the family of much-needed income.

MacNeill, an electrical repairman, told Nice that he tied the youngsters' thumbs with shoestrings attached to the rafters in the basement of his home.

He said he permitted the boys to stand on boxes, thus relieving the weight on their thumbs. The ordeal lasted a half hour.

"I only did it to scare them," he said, "for tampering with my knife."

MacNeill said the whole trouble arose from Melvin's behavior. "He is a thief and a kleptomaniac."

While his two brothers, sister and mother, sat silently nearby, young Melvin was called to testify. He mumbled simply: "I'm sorry." Then he broke into tears.

Weather Forecast

Partly cloudy and colder today; tomorrow cloudy and rather cold with some snow likely.

GOP TAX-CUT BILL CLEARS HOUSE

President Offers 10-Point Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman asked Congress today to pass federal laws against lynching and against discrimination in voting or employment on grounds of race, creed or color.

In a 4,000-word message, the President outlined a 10-point program to correct what he called "flagrant" offenses against the American faith —that "all men are created equal and that they have the right to equal justice."

Mr. Truman replied in advance to the objection, frequently raised in the South, that this is a matter for state and local governments to deal with in keeping with local problems and traditions.

"The federal government has a clear duty," he said, "to see that constitutional guarantees of individual liberties and of equal protection under the laws are not denied or abridged anywhere in our union."

Political Dynamite

Taking a stand on two questions charged with political dynamite in the South, the President:

1. Called for anti-discrimination laws covering election of state as well as federal officers.

2. Asked Congress to end the requirement in some states that residents pay a poll tax before voting in federal elections.

Mr. Truman called for re-establishment of the wartime Fair Employment Practice Commission—a step certain to be fought by some southern legislators to the point of filibuster if necessary.

He also proposed:

Establishment of a permanent commission to study civil rights questions, a joint committee of Congress for the same purpose and a civil rights division in the Department of Justice.

Home rule, and the right to vote in presidential elections, for residents of the District of Columbia—now voteless and governed by Congress and a commission appointed by the President.

Statehood For Hawaii, Alaska

Statehood for the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska, and a larger degree of self-government for our island posessions.

An end to discrimination in interstate travel—"Jim Crowe" separation of whites and negroes.

Removal of racial or national barriers which prevent United States residents from becoming citizens.

The setting up of machinery to pay the damage claims of the more than 100,000 Japanese-Americans evacuated from Pacific Coast states during the war.

Insuring equality for all our citizens, the President said, will make us "stronger in our leadership, stronger in our moral position" as we strive with the free nations of the world to create a lasting peace.

Risks Wrath Of Southerners

President Truman risked the wrath of many people in the "solid" South when he issued his civil rights message.

But his words carried a strong appeal for millions of others, including negroes and members of other minority groups who feel that "equal opportunities," as the President put it, are denied them.

These are the election year facts —quite apart from the right or wrong of Mr. Truman's appeal for federal laws guaranteeing equal treatment for black man and white, Jew and Gentile.

They are important political facts, too—pointed up by such current developments as the negro drive for equal school facilities and the threat of some southerners to secede from the Democratic Party if it doesn't leave the race question alone.

U. S. Urges Big 4 Parley On Austria

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) —The United States proposed today that the deputies of the Big Four Foreign Ministers meet at London February 20 to consider Soviet Russia's price for withdrawing her occupation forces from Austria.

The State Department, in announcing the action, said that Secretary Marshall has named Samuel Reber, veteran diplomatic official, to represent this government at the meeting.

Russia proposed last week that the Soviet claims on Austria be settled by a lump sum payment of $200,000,000, a 50-year concession on a major part of the Austrian oil fields and by various other payments.

The United States proposed that the deputies consider also proposals for Russia's withdrawal made by France and any other plans which may be put forward for settling the knotty Austrian issue.

Although the Big Four powers—Russia, Britain, France and the United States—agreed in wartime not to levy reparation claims on Austria, Russia was conceded rights to certain German-owned assets in the country. For more than two years the deputies of the Council of Foreign Ministers have failed to agree on Russia's claim that these assets included all property to which the Nazis took title during their control of Austria.

Possible Threat Of Bituminous Coal Strike Is Raised By Lewis

Deadlock On Benefit Payment Plan Bared

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—John L. Lewis today raised a possible threat of a soft coal strike. He told mine operators he feels free to "take any independent action necessary" to force payments out of a $50,000,000 welfare fund.

The president of the United Mine Workers charged the operators with failing to live up to their 1947 contract by refusing to agree on a method for making payments out of the fund.

The fund is made up of royalty payments by the coal operators at the rate of 10 cents on every ton produced. It is administrated by a three-man board of trustees, who so far have failed to agree on any benefit payment plan.

Dispute "National In Scope"

In his notice to the operators, Lewis said this "now constitutes an outstanding, unresolved dispute, national in scope and character, affecting the integrity of the contract and impeding its fulfillment."

Some coal operators said they feared the "notice" may be a warning of a strike. The document, itself, however, made no mention of any walkout possibility. Lewis' headquarters declined to elaborate.

Lewis reportedly has demanded a series of benefits which include $100 a month retirement pay for every miner reaching 60 years of age, having worked in the mines for 20 years.

It was reported that the operators balked on the grounds that Lewis' proposals would commit the owners to pay benefits costing more than the present 10-cent royalty will pay for.

Brought Into Open

The mine union leader's notice brought into the open officially a bitter argument—debated in secret meetings for some time by Lewis and the bituminous operators—over a method of paying benefit from the fund.

Lewis told the operators that payments from the fund are an obligation and that Horn "continues, as he has consistently continued" to thwart the fulfillment of that contractual obligation.

He added:

"It now constitutes an outstanding, unresolved dispute, national in scope and character, affecting the integrity of the contract and impeding its fulfillment."

THOMAS W. LAMONT, 77, PHILANTHROPIST, DIES

NEW YORK, Tuesday, Feb. 3—(AP)—Thomas W. Lamont, 77, chairman of the board of J. P. Morgan and Company and widely known philanthopist, died just before midnight last night at his home at Boca Grande, Fla., a member of the Morgan firm announced early today.

Lamont, though he had been in poor health for more than a year, attended a meeting of the Morgan directors only last December 17. He went to Florida by train January 8.

Palestine Group Calls For Action

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 2 (AP) —The Palestine Partition Commission pleaded today for quick United Nations action to prevent threatened chaos in the Holy Land when the British leave.

The commission envisaged in its first report to the Security Council a collapse of security and administrative forces in the Holy Land unless the U.N. gives it adequate means to exercise its authority.

The five-member group did not go into details about the adequate means it wants but it is drawing up a separate report for the Security Council regarding an international force to carry out the partition.

The commission said its information shows that the Palestine situation is likely to become worse rather than improve. The commission was created by the General Assembly to supervise the partition.

The British have served notice they will terminate the mandate May 15 or sooner and that they would prefer for the commission not to enter Palestine until about two weeks before the mandate ends. The members said they were not satisfied with that suggestion but did not fix a time for their arrival in the Holy Land.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Navy agreed today to lend Maryland and Pennsylvania oil for emergency use during the current cold weather.

It announced it will lend 15,000 barrels of Diesel oil to Maryland and 100,000 barrels of heavy industrial oil to Pennsylvania.

The states both agreed to replace the oil by June 30, the Navy said.

The oil, intended for emergency use by institutions such as hospitals and for individual use where absolutely necessary, is stored at Craney Island Fuel Depot, Norfolk, Va.

Do-Or-Die Battle For Indian Peace Pledged By Nehru

Government Bans Hate Organizations

NEW DELHI, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Jawaharla Nehru pledged today that his government would give India the peace for which Mohandas Gandhi died or go down in disgrace and defeat.

In swift implementation of the pledge, the government banned private armies and organizations which preach violence or communal hatred.

Nehru delivered his pledge to the Indian Constituent Asembly as the ashes of the martyred Gandhi were being prepared for commital in 11 days to the Ganges River, considered a holy stream by the Hindus.

As Nehru spoke India's forces for law and order engaged in the country's greatest manhunt in an effort to trace the men the government believes plotted Gandhi's death.

Others Marked For Death

A high government official said Nehru, Home Minister Sardar Vallabhai Patel and Education Minister Maulana Abul Kalam Azad had also been marked for death.

New Delhi was quiet, but trouble flared in Calcutta and Bombay. It was directed at the militant Hindu Mahasabha, an anti-Moslem political group in which police said the man held as the assassin of Gandhi held membership.

A mob stoned the house of Dr. Shyama Prosad Mookerjee, former president of the Mahasabha, in Calcutta. The mob also destroyed the office files and furniture of the Daily Hindustan, a Mahasabha newspaper.

Dr. Mookerjee is Minister of Industry and supply for the Indian government. His home in New Delhi was also stoned despite police protection thrown around it.

Nehru Addresses 500,000

In Bombay mobs tried to burn the home of a Mahasabha member. The president of the group in that city said it was unfair to condemn or penalize Mahasabja for the dastardly act of one individual. He strongly condemned the murder of Gandhi.

A dispatch to a Bombay newspaper from Dadar said a member of the RSS, a group similar to the Mahasabha, was hacked to death in that town.

Tonight Nehru and Patel addressed a mass meeting in New Delhi which police said was attended by 500,000 persons.

In plain and bitter language, Nehru charged that Gandhi's death resulted from a conspiracy by those seeking to establish "communal rule" in India.

U.S. Brands Soviet Charges "False"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—The United States curtly told Russia today that Moscow's objections to American warships in Italian waters are "without foundation."

A State Department spokesman added that Russian charges of United States militarism in Iran are either distorted or downright false.

Moscow had complained that the United States was trying to make Iran a strategic military base. Russia viewed this as muscling in on her oil-rich southern neighbor.

Meeting head-on the current series of Soviet diplomatic and propaganda attacks on American actions abroad, the department also:

1. Prepared for delivery a note rejecting Moscow's January 21 complaint that restoring a wartime American air field at Mellaha in North Africa violated the peace treaty with Italy.

2. Awaited still another Soviet protest, aimed at flights of American aircraft over Russian shipping near Japan.

The Moscow radio said it had been dispatched.

The note rejecting the protest Russia filed January 28 against visits of the big aircraft carrier Midway and other American warships to Italian ports matched the brusque wording used in the note submitted by Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

Signed by Under Secretary Robert A. Lovett, it said in every case the Italian governmnet gave formal permission for the visits which were "arranged in strict accord with the comity (courtesy) of nations."

Lovett said the visits were "an indication of the sincere good-will and friendship" between this country and Italy.

As for the marines aboard, they were "a part of their normal ship's complement," Lovett said.

Truman Aides Pave Way For Alien Assets Release

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman's top advisors paved the way today for dollar-short Western European countries to get their hands on $1,100,000,000 now "frozen" in this country.

The National Advisory Council voted to turn over this amount, owned by citizens of countries seeking United States aid under the Marshall program, to the alien property custodian.

These assets were "frozen" by the United States government when the Nazis overran Europe.

Now the European countries can get them released by showing that the funds are owned by theiir citizens. Any funds not claimed will be kept by the United States.

Accused "No. 1 Communist" In U. S. Arrested

Eisler's Release On Bond Blocked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—Gerhard Eisler, accused "No. 1 Communist" in the United States, was arrested in New York today under a process which, if it works, will keep him in custody until he has served time, been deported, or both.

The arrest was made on a deportation warrant obtained by the Justice Department. Officials said bail is not permitted in such a case.

The Justice Department would not discuss the action in detail but the practical effect is to block any effort to obtain Eisler's release on bond ending Supreme Court action on his appeal from two convictions. He faces possible punishment in those cases totalling up to six years plus fines of $6,000.

Habeas Corpus Petition Planned

Eisler's one way out is to attack the deportation action in a habeas corpus petition. Mrs. Carol King, Eisler's New York lawyer, said she would try that tomorrow. Lawyers here pointed out that in a habeas corpus proceeding the burden of proof is on the petitioner—he must show affirmatively that he is entitled to freedom.

Actually there was no expectation here that a move would be made to send Eisler home to Germany immediately.

Deportation proceedings against persons under prison or jail sentence customarily wait until they have served minimum time. After that they are paroled to immigration officials for immediate removal from the country.

A few hours before the chubby, 50-year-old Eisler was taken into custody, the United States District Court here refused to upset his conviction on a charge of concealing his Communist links when he applied for a permit to leave this country in 1945. Maximum penalty is five years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

Convicted Of Contempt

Eisler also has been convicted of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions before the House Committee on un-American Activities. He was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1,000 on the contempt charge.

The committee described him as America's "No. 1 Communist" and witnesses in the two trials said he gave the Communist Party in the United States its orders. The government charged that Eisler came here "to disrupt the economy of the United States in accordance with the wishes of Moscow."

Eisler acknowledged membership in the German Communist Party but said he was not a foreign agent and "never had the intention to overthrow the American government." He described himself as "a political exile fighting for the right to go home in peace."

U.S. And Italy Sign Friendship Pact

ROME, Feb. 2 (AP)—The United States and Italy tonight signed a treaty of friendship, trade and navigation which includes a promise to allow exchange of news without censorship.

The pact is the first the United States has made with a former enemy of World War II. It also is one of the broadest treaties America has ever concluded with any country.

Before it becomes effective the treaty must be ratified by the United States Senate and the new Italian parliament to be elected in April.

The treaty replaces the pact of 1871 abrogated by joint consent in 1937 when Benito Mussolini began aiming for Italian economic self-sufficiency.

Signing of the pact coincided with Russia's diplomatic drive against extension of American influence in the Mediterranean.

Under the treaty both Italy and the United States open their ports to the other's ships. Generally, the citizens of each country are granted equal treatment with the nationals of the other in commercial and legal dealings.

Each country reserves the right to control traffic in arms and munitions including the import and export of fissionable materials—the source of atomic bombs.

The signing ceremony in the Foreign Ministry lasted only 10 minutes. Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza signed for Italy and Ambassador James C. Dunn for the United States.

War On "Vulgar" Records Is Under Way In Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 2 (AP)—Four hundred phonograph records of three songs were broken by police today because, Commissioner Joe Boyle said, they were "suggestive and vulgar."

Boyle ordered their confiscation from juke box record distributors. He said that all retailers had been warned to remove the records from sale.

Several distributors said they would submit questionable records to Boyle in the future.

Groundhog Back In Bed

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP)—Brother Groundhog poked out his head today and then returned to his hole, scared by his own shadow. As far as the nation's cold sufferers are concerned, he should have stood in bed.

That shadow, an old legend says, presages six more weeks of winter weather.

It took only a minute of sunshine at 8:46 a. m. (EST) to let the little weather prophet spot his shadow and scurry for his hole, reported Dr. F. A. Lorenzo, president of Punxsutawney's Groundhog Club.

For the last 78 years the old Gobblers Knob Club of Punxsutawney has recorded the February 2 forecast of the little furry character who's called everything from a whistle-pig to woodchuck.

At Quarryville, members of the Slumbering Lodge of Groundhogs cast worried eyes at the skies when an airplane zoomed over the observation field at some 10,000 feet and dropped a cloud of dry ice in a sabotage move to stir up a man-made snow storm.

But the sun shone on and Hibernating Governor Charles Hess reported the shivering chuck took a sleepy look at his shadow at 9:58½ a. m. and headed for cover.

It was no better at Allentown where the faithful of Grundsow Lodge Nummer Ains On Da Lechaw (Pennsylvania German for Groundhog Lodge No. 1 on the Lehigh clocked the woodchuck shadow at 8:30 a. m.

Even in Philadelphia's zoo, a rank amateur named Gertie, couldn't help seeing her shadow. She blinked in the sun, decided it was no one she knew and waddled back to the small mammal house to sleep it off.

The weatherman, who sticks his neck out every day of the year, added a word of agreement. A new cold wave is moving in from the Great Lakes, he said, and the temperatures are going to drop toward zero.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — Mr. Groundhog and the Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack were in complete agreement today that February and early March will have more than their fair shares of bad weather.

The groundhog saw his shadow. The almanac—a Maryland institution—predicts a lot of snow, rain and cold weather between now and the middle of March.

Clubwomen Back 'Get Ready' Meat Ration Measure

CIO Declares Bill "Not Good Enough"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The General Federation of Women's Clubs backed the "get-ready-for-meat-rationing" bill today but the CIO opposed it as "not good enough."

The other big labor organization, the AFL, pointed a critical finger at meat packers. AFL Economist Boris Shiskin said that the packers since June, 1946, have increased their prices twice as much as their costs increased.

The viewpoints were expressed at a meeting of a Senate subcommittee studying the bill of Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) to set up standby authority to ration meat, if needed.

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, Richmond, president of the women's federation, urged that rationing be invoked if there is a serious meat shortage.

"Something must be done, and done quickly," she said, "about the disastrously high and steadily rising cost of living."

The CIO spokesman was Donald Montgomery, who used to be a consumers' counsel in the Agriculture Department.

He learned then, he said, that pressure exerted on behalf of meat packers was effective but that brought on the department for consumers was not.

Montgomery said the CIO favors price controls as well as rationing on all food commodities. He said the Flanders bill would limit the amount of meat a family could get but would not affect the cost.

Chairman Flanders, of the subcommittee, said he intends to end hearings on his bill tomorrow, that "we must act by the middle of the week."

Meanwhile, there were related developments.

1. The full Senate Banking Committee was told by a Baltimore businessman, H. H. Miller Metal Products, Inc., "I am convinced that a period of keen competition is just around the corner. Now, when severe competition is just ahead, is no time in my judgment to put in price controls."

2. The Federal Reserve Board reported a big jump in credit granted to installment buyers.

It said the jump was $423,000,000 in December, the second month since anti-inflation credit controls were dropped, and also an always busy retail month. The total was put at $6,152,000,000, not far below peacetime records.

3. The Home Loan Bank Board reported that despite rising prices, Americans added $9,000,000,000 to their savings last year. Total savings were put at $155,700,000,000.

297-120 Vote Exceeds Tally To Upset Veto

Senate May Revise Figure Downward

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 —Republicans easily rammed their $6,500,000,000 tax-slashing bill through the House today and sent it over to the Senate where the amount may be cut.

The House vote was 297 to 120—19 more votes than will be needed there to pass the bill over an expected presidential veto.

However, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters that he doubts that the bill could be passed over a veto in the Senate unless the amount of revenue loss is reduced.

Sen. Lucas (D-Ill) predicted Senate Republicans will "gladly" accept a $4,000,000,000 figure.

Sixty-three Democrats joined 234 Republicans voting for the big tax cut. Opposed were 118 Democrats, Rep. Marcantonio, of New York, the only American Labor Party representative, and a lone Republican, Rep. H. Carl Andersen, of Minnesota.

After the thumping GOP victory, Speaker Martin (R-Mass), told reporters "there is no doubt as far as the House is concerned we will pass the bill over any veto of the President.

Senate Revision Likely

There still were indications, however, that the Senate will revise the $6,500,000,000 figure downward, to pick up Democratic votes there.

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), who wrote the bill, told reporters:

"The overwhelming majority given the tax-reduction bill by the House reflects the general demand that our wartime tax burdens be lightened—now, not at some nebulous future date, as suggested by the President. The tax bill is now on the road to final enactment."

The House showdown vote came shortly after the Republicans, with the aid of 21 Democrats, beat down 258 to 159 a Democratic substitute bill. This proposed to cut individual income taxes $4,000,000,000 but would have recovered all but $800,000,000 of the revenue loss by a new $3,200,000,000 excess profits levy on corporations.

The GOP measure, written by Rep Knutson, (R-Minn), would grant reductions to all of the 52,000,000 income taxpayers, ranging from 100 per cent in the lowest area to 10 per cent in the upper brackets. It would apply on 1948 income.

Raises Exemptions By $100

It would remove 7,400,000 low-income persons from the tax rolls completely.

The GOP measure would:

1. Raise personal exemptions by $100, from $500 to $600;

2. Apply the community property principle to all states. This permits husbands and wives to split the family income equally for tax reporting purposes, thus holding the income at lower tax rates.

3. In addition, grant percentage cuts ranging from 30 per cent in the lowest taxable incomes to 10 per cent in the heaviest incomes.

4. Give special exemptions to persons 65 and over and to the blind.

5. Adjust estate and gift taxes to the community property principle.

Eight More Slain In Palestine War

JERUSALEM, Feb. 2 (AP) — Eight persons died today in sporadic guerrilla fighting that gripped Palestine from Jerusalem's ancient walls to the cos..

Jerusalem tensely awaited an expected large-scale reprisal blow by Jewish fighters to avenge last night's bombing of the publishing plant of the pro-Zionist newspaper, Palestine Post.

British troops and police patroled Jerusalem's "battle grounds" in armored cars, but were unable to prevent scattered outbursts of violence.

Four Jews, three Arabs and a British soldier were killed in the day's fighting throughout the Holy Land. Reports of the Palestine police were filled with accounts of bombings, sniper attacks and convoys holdups.

An unofficial tabulation showed 1,027 persons have been killed in 65 days of Arab-Jewish clashes since the United Nations decision to partition Palestine.

Abdul Khader Bey Husseini, commander of Arab fighters in Jerusalem, said tonight his men bombed the Post building. The action was taken "to prove we could strike at the heart of our enemy," he added.

A statement from Husseini's headquarters said:

"Our soldiers are ready to strike and strike again. We chose the hour of 11 p. m. so casualties would be at a minimum. If we had wanted to kill, we could have placed the same bomb in front of a cinema. The bomb itself was designed to destroy property without killing the occupants."

New Cold Snap Expected In Eastern States Today

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. (AP) — Much colder weather overspread the Northern Plains States and Upper Mississippi Valley today, and the new cold spell, with snow flurries following on its heels, was moving rapidly eastward.

Sub-zero temperatures were reported tonight in portions of North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin, and most of the day's high temperatures were well below freezing. The colder air was gradually pushing temperatures down in the Great Lakes region, but the Weather Bureau said the new cold snap won't be severe compared with that of last week.

In addition, the frigid air mass was moving so rapidly that the chilly weather it brings will amount to "a one-night stand in many places," Weather Bureau said. The cooler weather was expected to reach the East by tomorrow and tomorrow night.

The minimum forecast for Chicago tonight was 10 to 12 above zero, a drop of only eight or nine degrees from last night's low. The coldest spots tonight, the Weather Bureau said, again will be Northern Minnesota, in the Red River Valley region.

A band of rain and drizzle extended through Texas and Oklahoma, and was advancing eastward

Father, Who Hanged Sons By Thumbs, Sobs In Court

ABINGTON, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP) — "I love my boy," sobbed 50-year-old Melvin MacNeill as he was haled before Justice of the Peace Howard Nice today on a charge of hanging his three young sons by their thumbs with shoestrings.

The eldest boy, Melvin, Jr., 12, also broke into tears and cried: "I love my daddy very much."

Nice fined MacNeill $25, plus $3.50 costs, on a charge of "cruelty, ill treating, abusing and inflicting unnecessarily cruel punishment upon three minor children."

Any higher penalty, Nice remarked, would only have robbed the family of much-needed income.

MacNeill, an electrical repairman, told Nice that he tied the youngsters' thumbs with shoestrings attached to the rafters in the basement of his home.

He said he permitted the boys to stand on boxes, thus relieving the weight on their thumbs. The ordeal lasted a half hour.

"I only did it to scare them," he said, "for tampering with my knife."

MacNeill said the whole trouble arose from Melvin's behavior. "He is a thief and a kleptomaniac."

While his two brothers, sister and mother, sat silently nearby, young Melvin was called to testify. He mumbled simply: "I'm sorry." Then he broke into tears.

High Court Rules Against Detroit Excursion Firm

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — A state law against racial discrimination applies even in foreign commerce if the traffic is basically local and there is no conflict with another country's rules, the Supreme Court held today.

The 7 to 2 decision upheld a $25 fine levied against the Bob-Lo Excursion Company of Detroit. It had refused passage to a negro girl, Sarah Ray, on a steamer bound for Bois Blanc Island in the Canadian Province of Ontario.

Justice Jackson filed a dissent in which Chief Justice Vinson joined. The dissent criticized the majority decision on the ground that it upheld application of state rules simply because the commerce "is not very foreign."

Justice Rutledge, for the majority, pointed out that the Bob-Lo ships operate only to Bois Blanc and return and that there is no regular communication between the island and the rest of Canada except by way of Detroit.

The high court in other decisions handed down today:

1. Agreed to pass on deportation orders against 129 Germans held as enemy aliens. James J. Laughlin, Washington attorney for the Germans, contended that "since the war, for all intents and purposes, is at an end, there is no lawful authority for removing these persons."

2. Reversed, by a 5 to 4 vote, the narcotics law conviction of Anne Johnson, operator of the Europe Hotel in Seattle, Wash., in whose room federal agents found some opium.

The agents searched the room without a warrant, the record showed. They said they had a tip someone was smoking opium in the hotel and were led to the room by their sense of smell.

3. Ruled unanimously that deportation of an alien, on the ground of two convictions for crime, requires an actual "repeat" violation—that is, a new crime committed after conviction of a first offense.

Use Of Larger Trucks On State Roads Opposed

BALTIMORE Feb. 2 (AP)—The Automobile Club of Maryland announced today it will oppose any increases in the size of trucks permitted on Maryland highways "until substantial mileages have been widened and modernized."

Leonard E. Kolmer, general manager, announced the organization's stand in a statement which said:

"The fact is that nearly 50 per cent of our major highways are too narrow to permit large trucks and buses and passenger cars to operate in safety.

"In addition to the safety angle, these over-size and under-powered vehicles are causing wholesale irrigations and annoyances to other users of the highways."

Police Arrest 505 During January

In a report submitted to the Mayor and City Council yesterday morning, the Police Department reported 505 arrests during January with fines totalling $821.

The Fire Department answered 42 calls during the month, with a small property loss reported.

Tax collections during the month amounted to $49,594.77; city clerk receipts, $2,139.25, and receipts from the engineer's office, $151.50.

Water consumption for the week ending Sunday was 86,250,000 gallons as compared to 82,730,000 in 1946. The crest at Lake Gordon is five feet, four inches below the spillway, and at Lake Koon, four feet, six inches below.

Federal Court Considers Labor Act Challenge Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — A Three-judge federal court today took under advisement a case attacking the constitutionality of the non-Communist affidavit section of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The suit is the first major legal test of the new labor law. It was brought by the CIO National Maritime Union.

It challenges the constitutionality of provisions which say that before a union can enjoy benefits it can obtain from the National Labor Board its leaders must file affidavits disclaiming Communism.

Temperatures were still sub-normal in the South, although a warm-up was in prospect. Temperatures at midday today were barely above freezing in Tennessee, Kentucky, Northern Mississippi and Northern Alabama.

Here's Job If You Know How To Run '68 Side-Wheeler

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2 (AP)—Anyone know how to run a side-wheeler boat—1868 model?

That's the man—or woman—the Department of Wharves, Docks and Ferries is looking for. The department wants to use the boat as an ice breaker in the Delaware River.

The side-wheeler — city ice boat No. 2—has been tied up in Holmesburg, Pa., since 1940.

Wall Collapses, Killing Workman, Injuring Five

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP)—The wall of a building being demolished in downtown Harrisburg collapsed today, killing one workman and injuring five others.

The victim, who died as he was being lifted into an ambulance, was identified as Donald Shaull, 23, Duncannon, a bridegroom of a month.

William Delson, manager of Delson Wrecking, which holds the contract for the demolition, said:

"We intended to leave the wall standing and build a new wall on top of it. It was inspected every day and declared perfectly safe. We didn't even have it braced, because it was perfectly staight and in 'plumb.'

"I guess some water must have gotten back of it, frozen, then expanded and pushed the wall out," Delson said.

Commander Of Greece's Northern Army Ousted

ATHENS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Constantine Ventiris, who won the army's greatest victory over guerrillas at Konitsa, has been ousted by wrangling political and military factions.

The commander of Greece's Northern Army resigned Saturday. He has been described as "the best soldier in Greece" by Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, chief of the United States military mission, and by Maj. Gen. S. B. Rawlins, head of the British mission, but even their powerful support was not enough to defeat the civilian and military politicians who caused his removal.

Suit's Dismissal Requested By ITU

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 2 (AP) — The International Typographical Union today asked dismissal of a suit for an injunction against violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

The union, in its answer to the National Labor Relations Board injunction suit, charged the Taft-Hartley law is unconstitutional.

A section (10-J) of the law which gives the NLRB the right to ask federal courts for injunctions, is unconstitutional because "it is repugnant to the due process clause of the Federal Constitution," the printers' answer said.

The brief also asked dismissal of the suit, filed January 16, on grounds that it should have been brought by the NLRB instead of by the regional director of the board for the NLRB.

The power of "a constitutional court can only be exercised in a case in which the court may render a final and conclusive judgment determining all the issues of fact and law and such a court may not exercise any other power," the brief said.

"The authority of the court is expressly limited to granting of 'temporary relief or restraining order,' which is based solely upon a prima facie showing of the facts," the brief continued.

The National Labor Relations Act "expressly contemplates that the finding and conclusions made by a district court in section 10-J proceedings may be disregarded and set aside by the NLRB," the printers' attorneys continued.

Mother Pushes Pin Through Baby's Skull

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Pennsylvania State Police today charged a 26-year-old mother with attempting to kill her 10-day old son by pushing a two-inch safety pin through his skull.

Cpl. Earl Moore and Pvt. Theodore Jones identified the woman as Mrs. Helen Harper, Milroy, and committed her to the Franklin County jail to await arraignment.

The officers said she admitted pushing the pin through the baby's skull while feeding him Sunday at the Chambersburg Hospital but gave no reason for the act. The child was not seriously injured.

FRANKFURT, Feb. 3 (Tuesday) (INS) — Workers began quitting their jobs early today in a 24-hour food shortage strike which German trade union officials said will involve 650,000 men and women in the Anglo-American zones of Germany.

As workers trailed out of shops and factories at midnight in the second protest strike within a month, Charles La Folette, military governor of Wuertemberg, said in a radio speech that he will not interfere in the walkouts.

High Court Rules Against Detroit Excursion Firm

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — A state law against racial discrimination applies even in foreign commerce if the traffic is basically local and there is no conflict with another country's rules, the Supreme Court held today.

The 7 to 2 decision upheld a $25 fine levied against the Bob-Lo Excursion Company of Detroit. It had refused passage to a negro girl, Sarah Ray, on a steamer bound for Bois Blanc Island in the Canadian Province of Ontario.

Justice Jackson filed a dissent in which Chief Justice Vinson joined. The dissent criticized the majority decision on the ground that it upheld application of state rules simply because the commerce "is not very foreign."

Justice Rutledge, for the majority, pointed out that the Bob-Lo ships operate only to Bois Blanc and return and that there is no regular communication between the island and the rest of Canada except by way of Detroit.

The high court in other decisions handed down today:

1. Agreed to pass on deportation orders against 129 Germans held as enemy aliens. James J. Laughlin, Washington attorney for the Germans, contended that "since the war, for all intents and purposes, is at an end, there is no lawful authority for removing these persons."

2. Reversed, by a 5 to 4 vote, the narcotics law conviction of Anne Johnson, operator of the Europe Hotel in Seattle, Wash., in whose room federal agents found some opium.

The agents searched the room without a warrant, the record showed. They said they had a tip someone was smoking opium in the hotel and were led to the room by their sense of smell.

3. Ruled unanimously that deportation of an alien, on the ground of two convictions for crime, requires an actual "repeat" violation—that is, a new crime committed after conviction of a first offense.

Use Of Larger Trucks On State Roads Opposed

BALTIMORE Feb. 2 (AP)—The Automobile Club of Maryland announced today it will oppose any increases in the size of trucks permitted on Maryland highways "until substantial mileages have been widened and modernized."

Leonard E. Kolmer, general manager, announced the organization's stand in a statement which said:

"The fact is that nearly 50 per cent of our major highways are too narrow to permit large trucks and buses and passenger cars to operate in safety.

"In addition to the safety angle, these over-size and under-powered vehicles are causing wholesale irrigations and annoyances to other users of the highways."

Police Arrest 505 During January

In a report submitted to the Mayor and City Council yesterday morning, the Police Department reported 505 arrests during January with fines totalling $821.

The Fire Department answered 42 calls during the month, with a small property loss reported.

Tax collections during the month amounted to $49,594.77; city clerk receipts, $2,139.25, and receipts from the engineer's office, $151.50.

Water consumption for the week ending Sunday was 86,250,000 gallons as compared to 82,730,000 in 1946. The crest at Lake Gordon is five feet, four inches below the spillway, and at Lake Koon, four feet, six inches below.

Federal Court Considers Labor Act Challenge Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — A Three-judge federal court today took under advisement a case attacking the constitutionality of the non-Communist affidavit section of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The suit is the first major legal test of the new labor law. It was brought by the CIO National Maritime Union.

It challenges the constitutionality of provisions which say that before a union can enjoy benefits it can obtain from the National Labor Board its leaders must file affidavits disclaiming Communism.

Negro Is Enrolled

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 2 (AP) —Silas Hunt, Texarkana, will become the University of Arkansas' first bona fide negro graduate student if he completes enrollment procedure begun today.

Hunt's application for entrance to the university law school was accepted and he began the enrollment procedure, which university officials said could be completed tomorrow.

Here's Job If You Know How To Run '68 Side-Wheeler

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2 (AP)—Anyone know how to run a side-wheeler boat—1868 model?

That's the man—or woman—the Department of Wharves, Docks and Ferries is looking for. The department wants to use the boat as an ice breaker in the Delaware River.

The side-wheeler — city ice boat No. 2—has been tied up in Holmesburg, Pa., since 1940.

Wall Collapses, Killing Workman, Injuring Five

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP)—The wall of a building being demolished in downtown Harrisburg collapsed today, killing one workman and injuring five others.

The victim, who died as he was being lifted into an ambulance, was identified as Donald Shaull, 23, Duncannon, a bridegroom of a month.

William Delson, manager of Delson Wrecking, which holds the contract for the demolition, said:

"We intended to leave the wall standing and build a new wall on top of it. It was inspected every day and declared perfectly safe. We didn't even have it braced, because it was perfectly staight and in 'plumb.'

"I guess some water must have gotten back of it, frozen, then expanded and pushed the wall out," Delson said.

Commander Of Greece's Northern Army Ousted

ATHENS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Constantine Ventiris, who won the army's greatest victory over guerrillas at Konitsa, has been ousted by wrangling political and military factions.

The commander of Greece's Northern Army resigned Saturday. He has been described as "the best soldier in Greece" by Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, chief of the United States military mission, and by Maj. Gen. S. B. Rawlins, head of the British mission, but even their powerful support was not enough to defeat the civilian and military politicians who caused his removal.

DAYTON, O., Feb. 2 (AP)—Orville Wright, co-inventor of the airplane, was buried in Woodland Cemetery today with the great of both military and civilian worlds to do him honor.

Libel Suit To Open

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Feb. 2 (AP)—After many delays, a Jefferson County Circuit Court jury is to start hearing tomorrow the $100,000 libel suit brought by Newspaper Columnist Drew Pearson against the editor and publisher of the Jefferson Republican.

AFL Opposes Wallace

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP)—The AFL Executive Council today opposed the third party candidacy of Henry A. Wallace for president, described him as a spokesman and "apologist" for the Communists.

Suit's Dismissal Requested By ITU

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 2 (AP) — The International Typographical Union today asked dismissal of a suit for an injunction against violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

The union, in its answer to the National Labor Relations Board injunction suit, charged the Taft-Hartley law is unconstitutional.

A section (10-J) of the law which gives the NLRB the right to ask federal courts for injunctions, is unconstitutional because "it is repugnant to the due process clause of the Federal Constitution," the printers' answer said.

The brief also asked dismissal of the suit, filed January 16, on grounds that it should have been brought by the NLRB instead of by the regional director of the board for the NLRB.

The power of "a constitutional court can only be exercised in a case in which the court may render a final and conclusive judgment determining all the issues of fact and law and such a court may not exercise any other power," the brief said.

"The authority of the court is expressly limited to granting of 'temporary relief or restraining order,' which is based solely upon a prima facie showing of the facts," the brief continued.

The National Labor Relations Act "expressly contemplates that the finding and conclusions made by a district court in section 10-J proceedings may be disregarded and set aside by the NLRB," the printers' attorneys continued.

Mother Pushes Pin Through Baby's Skull

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Pennsylvania State Police today charged a 26-year-old mother with attempting to kill her 10-day old son by pushing a two-inch safety pin through his skull.

Cpl. Earl Moore and Pvt. Theodore Jones identified the woman as Mrs. Helen Harper, Milroy, and committed her to the Franklin County jail to await arraignment.

The officers said she admitted pushing the pin through the baby's skull while feeding him Sunday at the Chambersburg Hospital but gave no reason for the act. The child was not seriously injured.

German Workers Begin Second Protest Strike

FRANKFURT, Feb. 3 (Tuesday) (INS) — Workers began quitting their jobs early today in a 24-hour food shortage strike which German trade union officials said will involve 650,000 men and women in the Anglo-American zones of Germany.

As workers trailed out of shops and factories at midnight in the second protest strike within a month, Charles La Folette, military governor of Wuertemberg, said in a radio speech that he will not interfere in the walkouts.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Today I'm going to stroll into the Tears and Tenderness Department. The yarn I'm about to peck out on my portable is as corny as a coat with a belt on the back. But it's a true story and a nice one, and I'm going to tell it on the off-chance it may relax you after all the blood and thunder on page one.

Billy Rose

A little soft music, Professor.

When I was about 11, my family moved into a cold water tenement up in the Bronx. In the railroad flat below us lived the Grants — father, mother and two sons. The kids and I went to the same school and hung out at the same candy store. Their names were Joe and Eddie, and, as so often happens, it was hard to believe they were born of the same mother. Joe was a nice kid. Eddie was a mean little so-and-so, and even the girls on our block wanted no part of him.

After we finished P. S. 55, the three of us went to the High School of Commerce on 65th Street. Joe and I had to quit after the third year and go to work. But Eddie, on account of his good marks, was allowed to finish, even though it involved plenty of skimping on the part of the Grants.

I got myself a job as a storekeeper. Joe got an even better paying job driving a truck. And except for lunch and cigarette money, he used to turn over every dollar he made to his mother. Because of Eddie's marks in high school, Mrs. Grant decided he ought to go to college. And for four years, it was Joe's truck money which paid for Eddie's tuition and expenses.

That's the opening scene of our soap opera, and if it wasn't about real people, I guess it would be too stereotyped to be real.

The next fifteen years in the life of the Grants was just as routine. Joe met a plump girl who giggled at his jokes, and married her, and they hatched kids at the rate of about one every two years. Eddie, after getting his college diploma, went to work as paying teller in a bank out on Long Island, and eventually worked himself up to branch manager. When he felt he could afford it, he married a horsey-looking girl who, in some vague way, was mixed up with the social set in Great Neck.

The brothers and their wives seldom met except at Christmas dinners and the usual family get-togethers. And if there was any friendliness when they did meet, it was all on the part of Joe and his plump missus.

And then last year, Old Man Hard Luck really went to work on the Grant family. First, their father had a stroke and died on his way to the hospital. A couple of months later, a small oil stove exploded in their mother's face and blinded her.

• — • — •

Though Eddie and his missus were living in one of those six-room bungalow jobs on the Island, they excused their way out of taking the old lady in with them. Eddie said his wife did a lot of entertaining and was afraid it might interfere with his mother's sleep. Joe, of course, didn't hesitate. he put his mother and her bundles in a cab and moved her into his four-room flat.

And the old lady was happy in Joe's flat. Wife, kids, dog and all, it was one of those set-ups where, on very little, people do all right for themselves. Joe's missus used to take her mother-in-law for walks through Crotona Park, and Joe's kids made the proper fuss about her. And every night after dinner, no matter how tired he was, Joe would read the newspaper to his mother. And I don't mean just the front page. He would describe the cartoons and the comics, and tell her about the department store bargains. But what the blind old lady liked best were the human interest stories.

And now comes the cue for the piano player to go into "Hearts and Flowers."

• — • — •

One evening, when he was reading the paper to his mother, Joe decided to skip one the human interest stories. It told of the arrest of Eddie Grant, 43-year-old branch manager of a Long Island bank, for stealing $24,000. What made the story "human interest" was Eddie's confession that he had been stealing since the first year he went to work for the bank. He had started with dimes which came in paper-wrapped rolls of fifty each. With a razor blade, he had slit the wrappers ,and extracted a single dime from each roll. When he got to be a manager, he had branched out, and by manipulating dormant accounts, had managed to cover up all these years.

Another item which made it a human interest story was the State auditor's suspicion that Eddie had turned the stolen dough over to his wife. His horsey bride denied and kept denying it, even after the bank offered to recommend clemency if she made restitution.

And when it came to hiring a lawyer for Eddie, his wife wouldn't part with a quarter. Joe went to a loan company and got the $500 by pledging his salary and furniture. But the lawyer didn't have much to work with, and Eddie Grant was sent to Sing Sing for five years.

Naturally, Joe was worried about Eddie, but he was even more worried about his mother. His brother had been in the habit of phoning the old lady once a week and visiting her every month or so. After talking it over, Joe and his missus decided that the decent thing to do would be to lie. And this involved quite a lot of doing. Every Friday night Joe would sneak out to the drug store and phone his mother, imitating his brother's voice. When his mother began asking why Eddie never came to see her any more, Joe told her Eddie was in Chicago opening up a new branch for the bank. And a couple of nights each week, the truck driver would sit up and write fake letters which he would read the nevt day as coming from Eddie.

• — • — •

Last month, Mrs. Grant got pneumonia and penicillin could't do anything about it. A few hours before she died, she said she wanted to see Joe alone.

"I want to thank you for something, son," she told him. "Those phone calls and letters from Eddie never fooled me for a minute."

Joe played dumb. "What are you talkingy about, Mom?" he asked.

"Those weren't the letters of a college man," his mother went on. "And as for your voice on the phone, Joe, well, that was a dead giveaway."

"Why did you let me go on lying to you then?" Joe acked.

His mother smiled: "Because I knew why you were doing it, son, and I was proud of you. Maybe it was selfish of me, but I couldn't bring selfish of me, but I couldn't bring nicest thing any kid ever did for his mother."

Billy Rose

A little soft music, Professor.

When I was about 11, my family moved into a cold water tenement up in the Bronx. In the railroad flat below us lived the Grants — father, mother and two sons. The kids and I went to the same school and hung out at the same candy store. Their names were Joe and Eddie, and, as so often happens, it was hard to believe they were born of the same mother. Joe was a nice kid. Eddie was a mean little so-and-so, and even the girls on our block wanted no part of him.

After we finished P. S. 55, the three of us went to the High School of Commerce on 65th Street. Joe and I had to quit after the third year and go to work. But Eddie, on account of his good marks, was allowed to finish, even though it involved plenty of skimping on the part of the Grants.

I got myself a job as a storekeeper. Joe got an even better paying job driving a truck. And except for lunch and cigarette money, he used to turn over every dollar he made to his mother. Because of Eddie's marks in high school, Mrs. Grant decided he ought to go to college. And for four years, it was Joe's truck money which paid for Eddie's tuition and expenses.

That's the opening scene of our soap opera, and if it wasn't about real people, I guess it would be too stereotyped to be real.

The next fifteen years in the life of the Grants was just as routine. Joe met a plump girl who giggled at his jokes, and married her, and they hatched kids at the rate of about one every two years. Eddie, after getting his college diploma, went to work as paying teller in a bank out on Long Island, and eventually worked himself up to branch manager. When he felt he could afford it, he married a horsey-looking girl who, in some vague way, was mixed up with the social set in Great Neck.

The brothers and their wives seldom met except at Christmas dinners and the usual family get-togethers. And if there was any friendliness when they did meet, it was all on the part of Joe and his plump missus.

And then last year, Old Man Hard Luck really went to work on the Grant family. First, their father had a stroke and died on his way to the hospital. A couple of months later, a small oil stove exploded in their mother's face and blinded her.

• — • — •

Though Eddie and his missus were living in one of those six-room bungalow jobs on the Island, they excused their way out of taking the old lady in with them. Eddie said his wife did a lot of entertaining and was afraid it might interfere with his mother's sleep. Joe, of course, didn't hesitate. he put his mother and her bundles in a cab and moved her into his four-room flat.

And the old lady was happy in Joe's flat. Wife, kids, dog and all, it was one of those set-ups where, on very little, people do all right for themselves. Joe's missus used to take her mother-in-law for walks through Crotona Park, and Joe's kids made the proper fuss about her. And every night after dinner, no matter how tired he was, Joe would read the newspaper to his mother. And I don't mean just the front page. He would describe the cartoons and the comics, and tell her about the department store bargains. But what the blind old lady liked best were the human interest stories.

• — • — •

One evening, when he was reading the paper to his mother, Joe decided to skip one the human interest stories. It told of the arrest of Eddie Grant, 43-year-old branch manager of a Long Island bank, for stealing $24,000. What made the story "human interest" was Eddie's confession that he had been stealing since the first year he went to work for the bank. He had started with dimes which came in paper-wrapped rolls of fifty each. With a razor blade, he had slit the wrappers ,and extracted a single dime from each roll. When he got to be a manager, he had branched out, and by manipulating dormant accounts, had managed to cover up all these years.

Another item which made it a human interest story was the State auditor's suspicion that Eddie had turned the stolen dough over to his wife. His horsey bride denied and kept denying it, even after the bank offered to recommend clemency if she made restitution.

And when it came to hiring a lawyer for Eddie, his wife wouldn't part with a quarter. Joe went to a loan company and got the $500 by pledging his salary and furniture. But the lawyer didn't have much to work with, and Eddie Grant was sent to Sing Sing for five years.

Naturally, Joe was worried about Eddie, but he was even more worried about his mother. His brother had been in the habit of phoning the old lady once a week and visiting her every month or so. After talking it over, Joe and his missus decided that the decent thing to do would be to lie. And this involved quite a lot of doing. Every Friday night Joe would sneak out to the drug store and phone his mother, imitating his brother's voice. When his mother began asking why Eddie never came to see her any more, Joe told her Eddie was in Chicago opening up a new branch for the bank. And a couple of nights each week, the truck driver would sit up and write fake letters which he would read the nevt day as coming from Eddie.

• — • — •

Last month, Mrs. Grant got pneumonia and penicillin could't do anything about it. A few hours before she died, she said she wanted to see Joe alone.

"I want to thank you for something, son," she told him. "Those phone calls and letters from Eddie never fooled me for a minute."

Joe played dumb. "What are you talkingy about, Mom?" he asked.

"Those weren't the letters of a college man," his mother went on. "And as for your voice on the phone, Joe, well, that was a dead giveaway."

"Why did you let me go on lying to you then?" Joe acked.

His mother smiled: "Because I knew why you were doing it, son, and I was proud of you. Maybe it was selfish of me, but I couldn't bring selfish of me, but I couldn't bring nicest thing any kid ever did for his mother."

Could It Be That Petrillo Has Had A Change Of Mind?

The agreement between the four major networks and James Caesar Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, looks—on the surface—like a far-reaching advance in radio and boon to the listening public. Whether there is anything under the surface remains to be seen.

According to the announcement from New York, Petrillo has lifted his ban on frequency modulation broadcasts of standard radio programs. At the same time, the entworks have made no commitments about the employment of more live musicians in radio. Thus, Petrillo would seem to have overcome his fear that every mechanical improvement in radio or recorded music means unemployment for the musicians of his union.

The network officials say that the public wants to hear more music on FM, which eliminates static. They add that duplication of standard broadcasts by FM will provide additional employment for musicians. Both these propositions are, we think, true. But it is amazing to find Mr. Petrillo agreeing with them, and, by implication, suggesting that he will lift his ban on music over television.

If Mr. Petrillo were not Mr. Petrillo one would simply say that he has been persuaded to change his mind. But those most familiar with Mr. Petrillo know that he is not the man to change his mind readily. His attitude toward mechanical reproduction of music has been one of hatred blended with fear. He has defied the radio stations, the record companies, the networks and the Congress of the United States, and in every case to date has got away with it. Why, then, has he suddenly reversed his whole position?

While they await the answer to this mystery, radio listeners may enjoy live music over FM—at least until the expiration of the 60-day extension of the present contract between the networks and the AFM.

Foolish Judge Thinks $10 Fine Will Stop Child's Cries

A Memphis judge rules against the laws of nature and the inevitable by declaring a crying child is a nuisance. He doesn't reveal, however, what he is going to do about it.

If the august judge thinks slapping a $10 fine on the parents will stop a child from crying, he had better go soak his head. A crying child cares about as much about a fine slapped on his parents as he does for such bait as candy, the cat or a dangled toy when he wants to cry.

The fine sport of squaring off the mouth and yelling at the top of the voice is an athletic activity indulged in by children with free abandon and they are not going to be deferred by any court decision.

Now and then one encounters one of those parents who can smile complacently and let junior cry until he is black in the face. But generally speaking, a child is pretty much of a chore to a parent. Nobody likes to walk the floor with a bawling baby, and the punishment a child can deal is more effective than any a court can conjure up.

The court might bring the gavel down and rule a crying baby is a nuisance, but what everybody wants to know is how that is going to stop the crying. When the judge hands that solution down he will be entitled to reverence and to a seat among the mighty. Until then he is just another judge sitting on the bench.

Scientists say man will live to be 100 and the last 25 years will be the best. Now is the time to start a rocking chair factory.

Oil Shortage

The gloomy statements being issued in Washington in regard to the fuel oil and gasoline situation causes conjecture as to what would happen if there were another war. In the third year of peace officials are issuing warnings that there will be a shortage of oil and gasoline for at least three and possibly five more years.

Inasmuch as the nation's present oil troubles may be traced not to a decrease in supply but to "a tremendous" increase in demand, the question arises how the scarcity is to be overcome. The immediate answer, as Washington sees it, is to keep oil-heated homes at lower temperatures and to curtail automobil mileage wherever possible.

But that program can do little more than meet the difficulties of the moment. What about the future, and what particularly about conditions which would arise if for any reason the nation were to be put on a war footing again?

More and more people will want fuel oil for domestic purposes and gasoline to drive pleasure cars and trucks. The demand for those products will grow instead of lessen. In the military field a vast increase in the size of the air force is planned. That will entail a further drain on available supplies.

The only solution seems to lie in an almost incredible expansion of production. Unless this can be brought about the country in a short time will be in a sorry state—sorry from the standpoint of personal comfort and sorrier from the standpoint of the national defense.

Fashion Heretic

The first discordant note in the New Look Fashion Symphony has been sounded, and by none other than the executive director of the American Wool Council, F. Eugene Ackerman of New York. American women will wear narrower skirts reaching 11 to 14 inches from the floor, he predicts.

"American women have laughed the inventions of French clothes designers right out of existence," he said. He spoke at the convention of the National Wool Growers Association in Salt Lake City. Narrower and shorter skirts will tend to balance up the supply of men's and women's clothing material, he said.

"Such idiocies as padded hips and padded fronts became part of the new look," Ackerman said, "because American designers fell for French designers' high pressure," he said.

But what if the ladies now like 'em long and refuse to go back to short skirts?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Late Manifestations Of Syphilis

Unless treated, syphilis is usually a lifelong disease. The symptoms appearing shortly after the condition is contracted are different from those that arise decades later. This explains why we refer to early and late syphilis. The initial manifestations are confined to the reproductive structures and the skin but later, the causative germs invade the walls of the blood vessels, the brain, and the spinal cord. Thus heart trouble or mental disturbance may ensue.

Dr. Van Dellen

General paresis is an example of the latter. Syphilitic organisms attack certain nerve cells which results in a group of characteristic symptoms. Only 3 per cent of all syphilitics encounter this complication and ten to thirty years will pass before it develops. Initially there are changes in personality, displayed in a variety of ways. Some become irritable or go through alternating periods of depression and sitting on top of the world. Others become careless about clothes and personal habits. Now and then the business associates of the victim are the first to notice the transformation. The firm begins to suffer because the man is absentminded, is no longer capable of concentrating, and loses his sense of good judgment. Sometimes the malady itself is not directly responsible; the afflicted individual does not feel up to par and turns to alcohol and other excesses, which have the same disastrous effect.

• — • — •

As time goes by the situation becomes progressively worse. The sufferer often complains of headaches, visual disorders, or loss of weight; the hands may shake and lack of coordination and dexterity will be noted. Finally speech derangements occur, with slurring of words and inability to enunciate properly. To demonstrate this phenomenon the physician often asks the patient to say "Methodist-Episcopal" or "around the rugged rock the ragged rascal ran."

By this time the ailment has reached its full development and there is little doubt that something is amiss. From this point on it progresses rapidly from bad to worse. From 10 to 20 per cent exhibit a marked euphoria, claiming to feel better than they ever did. Many have delusions of great wealth and will spend imaginary millions in true philanthropic style.

Another group is not so fortunate, as they are deeply depressed, anxious, and fearful of everything about them. Ultimately the mind deteriorates to such an extent that they become completely demented and lead a vegetative existence. In the terminal stages they are bedridden.

• — • — •

Several years ago there was practically no hope but now the outlook is better, particularly if paresis is treated when it first becomes apparent. Fever therapy and a variety of drugs are available. As each decade passes, physicians are seeing fewer and fewer with the late manifestations of syphilis and it is possible that in the future, heart and nerve complications will be so rare as to be medical curiosities. All of this is due to the fact that the disease is now treated early combined with public education of the dangers of neglect, stressing the need for routine blood tests by public health departments, and the improvements that have been made in the management of the infection.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The growth of our Los Angeles population continues at such a tremendous rate that the civic planners fear a water shortage in the future. And I'm worrying about it so much, I'm going to start hoarding water. Beginning next week, I'm having my milkman deliver an extra quart of milk.

But you can depend on the Chamber of Commerce to find a substitute. Already the new homes being built have faucets marked "hot, cold, and orange juice."

Lack of water will never endanger personal hygiene in Los Angeles. All we have to do is keep Santa Anita going . . . that will keep everybody clean.

It's going to be an odd sight to see a camel plodding down Hollywood Blvd. But the Hollywood camel will be different. He'll have three humps. One for water . . . one for suntan lotion . . . and one for screen makeup.

I suppose I'll have to close up my swimming pool, but that will make me happy because the wrong kind of people have been using it lately. Twice last week I noticed a person in the pool whom I knew.

I think that shortage is here already. Not so long ago I walked down a dark street . . . someone hit me on the head and hijacked the water on my knee.

I can just picture this happening . . . a fellow walking into an aquatail lounge . . . ordering a shot of water . . . The crooked bartender pouring some liquor into it and the customer yelling "egad, this water has been cut."

Bernard Shaw Calls Himself A "Communist" In Letter; Phil Murray Faces Maritime Rebellion Over Marshall Plan; Republicans Hold Tax-Cut Caucus

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Bernard Shaw, famed 91-year-old Irish wit and playwright, has written an interesting letter endorsing Henry Wallace.

However, if Wallace is not elected, Shaw says, he would prefer a Republican "because a Republican may steal a horse, where a Democrat dare not look over the hedge."

Shaw describes himself as "a Communist though not a member of the so-called Communist Party," which according to friends means that Shaw believes in theories of community property, etc., but not the terroristic methods used by the Communists to put these principles into force.

Shaw's letter, written to Miss Fanny Holtzmann, New York attorney, follows:

"14th January 1948
My Dear Fanny,

I am not a Cobdenist Liberal, but the very opposite, a Communist, though not a member of the so-called Communist Party. On the whole, if an up-to-date New Deal European minded candidate like Wallace is defeated, I should prefer a Republican President because a Republican may steal a horse where a Democrat dare not look over the hedge; and both Republicans and Democrats must go whither events drive them in spite of their party shibboleths.

Wallace has not taken the field too early. He should have done so months ago, because it is by his public meetings that he is gathering votes; and he also, like me, need not care a snap of his fingers which party he dislodges.

You write (31st December) as if you were a Liberal, and believe that Cobdenists are more Progressive than Fascist Tory-Democrats. The case is exactly the reverse. Cobdenist Free Trade and laisser-faire are as dead as a doornail. Fascism (capture of the Socialist program by the Capitalist leaders) has completely ousted Liberalism; and Socialist-democracy is on the march working its own way and driving all Capitalist parties in spite of their inertia.

Ponder this well, Fanny, before you meddle in politics, especially my politics. I know what I am writing about.

G. BERNARD SHAW

Note—A "Cobdenist Liberal" refers to followers of Richard Cobden, 19th century British Liberal who distrusted government intervention in trade and industry but believed in a peoples' movement for peace.

CIO Fight Over Marshall

As CIO chief Phil Murray goes on the witness stand regarding the Marshall Plan, he faces hot rebellion in his ranks from the National Maritime Union which demands that goods shipped abroad under the Marshall Plan be carried in American ships.

In mid-December two-fisted Joe Curran, head of the unruly Maritime Union, together with John Green, head of the CIO's shipyard workers, told Murray he should qualify his support for the Marshall Plan by stipulating that American seamen should carry Marshall Plan goods in American ships at American pay scales. They pointed out that a large part of the steel we are sending to Europe is going into ships while our own shipyards are idle, and that more than 1,400 merchant ships have been turned over to European nations during the past year while there is unemployment among American seamen.

Indignant, Murray agreed.

However, Jim Carey, able CIO secretary, and prime mover within the CIO for the Marshall Plan, has insisted that the Plan must have the unqualified support of the CIO. The shipping matter, he maintains, can be fixed up satisfactorily.

Carey, a powerful influence inside the CIO, flew to Pittsburgh last week mainly to argue this point with his boss.

Meanwhile, Curran thinks that if Murray will continue to oppose the ship transfer he can win his Maritime Union over to supporting the Marshall Plan. Also his moderate policy will be strengthened in the union elections which get under way March 1.

So Phil Murray, when he testifies on the Marshall Plan, will be very much on the spot.

Republican Caucus

Highlights from the secret Republican caucus at which GOP House leaders finally got unanimous support for the Knutson Tax Bill:

California's Bud Gearhart touched off some fireworks when he boasted that 77 per cent of the tax cuts would help people with incomes under $4,000.

"Even the Republicans," snorted Michigan's irascible Fred Crawford, "have fallen for the soak-the-rich hysteria. Both parties are trying to buy votes with handouts.

"Congress is 'crucifying' industry and destroying initiative with its one-sided tax legislation,' continued the gentleman who has sometimes been called the General Motors representative in Congress. "I am tired of all this demagogy about soaking the rich when it is no longer possible to become rich, and all we have left are tired old men."

Speaker Joe Martin gave an inside report on what happened at the secret Democratic caucus just ended. The Democrats, he said, voted to oppose the bill in a body. Their strategy, he predicted, would be to move for recommittal, then fight for easing the reductions in each tax bracket.

Hal Holmes of Washington reported that "Muley Bob" Doughton of North Carolina, though a Democrat, was in favor of scrapping the President's plan for $40 exemption-reductions.

Daniel Reed of New York spoke for the Ways and Means Committee. The tax bill, he said, was the result of meticulous study and research.

Crawford butted in and wanted to know whether there would be enough money to go around for both the tax reductions and the Marshall Plan.

Reed replied in the affirmative, but said the Marshall Plan should be scaled down anyway.

"I don't want to be pledged to tax reductions if it means wrecking the Marshall Plan," broke in Minnesota's George MacKinnon.

William Dawson of Utah pointed out that Truman's plan offered more tax relief to the $2,400-$3,000 income bracket than the Knutson Bill, and asked whether some adjustments ought to be made in the lower bracket.

Reed explained that the bill was worked out on a scientific, graduated scale and should not be distorted for any special group.

"The President is catering to that group alone in order to get votes," broke in Indiana's Halleck. "We shouldn't stoop to it."

Basic Forces Contributing To Rising Prices Show Strength

By MARK SULLIVAN

In case you want it from an official source, here it is: "The basic forces . . . which contributed to rising prices . . . in 1947, show unabated strength." These words, and others ominously grave, are from the current issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin, official publication of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. This could tenably be described as the best source in the country, in the sense that it is at once competent and has a reputation for complete disinterestedness.

But why use space to buttress an official statement that the forces which make for higher prices and inflation "show unabated strength." Every citizen knows it by the effect on himself. What would be new and important to say would be that something is being done about it. But that cannot be said.

President Truman called Congress into special session in November, and sent to it a program of ten anti-inflationary measures, of the kind he desired. In December Congress passed a three-point measure of its own initiation, ignoring most of Mr. Truman's proposals. Mr. Truman, signing the measure, called it "inadequate."

No Spirit Of Emergency

Congress would not have disputed the word. The measure it passed was felt to be all it could readily do in the special session. The assumption was that Congress would enact further measures in the present regular session. But after nearly a month of the regular session, Congress is busy upon a tax bill. If there is in Congress any spirit of emergency about inflation, it has not expressed itself in action.

Outside Congress meanwhile, forces making for higher prices show, as the Federal Reserve Bulletin puts it "unabated strength." One such force is generating a new spurt. Labor unions and leaders are moving toward demands for wage raises in many industries. The head of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. William Green says he does it with regret.

"We have to face reality. If the AFL could choose between wage increases and reduced prices, we'd prefer reduced prices . . . But it is unlikely that anything can be done with prices before spring, particularly by the 80th Congress."

In the distinction Mr. Green makes is a guide. So long as prices remain high and tend higher, it is difficult to argue against wage raises. Yet the economic law is that in most cases the wage raises, after taking affect, will remain in still higher prices. That is the spiral needing to be stopped.

Truman For Supporting Prices

Of all prices, the ones that most move labor to demand higher wages are those of food, these are far the largest factor in cost of living. But a proposal to check or reduce prices of food encounters a political condition, weighing with both Congress and the Administration. Food means farm products, and for these there is a government policy and practice called "price support." This practice is, to many persons in politics, appropriately, a "sacred cow." President Truman in his many solemn outgivings about high prices and inflation, nevertheless asserts, officially and repeatedly, that price support must be continued. With the President taking this position, persons in Congress are deterred from taking initiative to the contrary.

Among all the proposals for checking high prices and inflation made before committees of Congress, two stood out as carefully thought out, comprehensive, and objectively scientific in approach. The two came from non-political sources—Mr. Bernard M. Baruch and Mr. Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board. Both faced, with unpolitical candor, the part that price support of farm commodities plays in inflation.

One political source, Senator Taft, characteristically candid, and making indignant response to President Truman's program for checking high prices but keeping price support for farm commodities, put the operation of the price support policy into plain words: "Whenever any food price starts going down, or even threatens to go down, some government department steps in and starts buying to keep up the price."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Hull's Memoirs

Obviously, Mr. Hull's memoirs, as they are now appearing in the newspapers, are digests of a fuller book. Were it otherwise, it would be necessary to believe that too much is omitted that is essential history.

Mr. Roosevelt's Secretary of State gives the impression that all went smoothly between himself and the President; and yet there is a constant undertone of deep dissatisfaction and criticism. Certainly, a Secretary of State who had no voice in the selection of his principal assistants, who was constantly forced to deal with men whom he so definitely disliked, as he apparently did Raymond Moley and Sumner Welles, could not have been happy about it.

The same thing crops up in the Hull memoirs as in those of Jim Farley. Mr. Roosevelt was willing to do business with these men but not associate with them. Hull says:

"In general, I was not a social intimate of the President. I was not invited to White House dinners, except on official occasions, or to week-end excursions on Mr. Roosevelt's yacht or to visit Hyde Park... I was frankly glad not to be invited into the White House groups where so often the 'liberal' game was played on an extreme basis..."

In a word, Mr. Hull was regarded as dull by the Corcorans, Cohens, Rosenmans and Hopkinses who composed the gay circle that pursued the liberal game. Such men as Hull and Farley did not belong to the witty crowd that put things over in the blithe spirit but, Oh!, so expensively.

Worse, however, is that Mr. Hull attended neither domestic nor military conferences, although he was Secretary of State; he got his information only when he asked questions. He says:

". . . I never asked him a question about the most secret military or domestic situation that he did not instantly and unreservedly respond with full information . . ." However, even his important Ambassadors—and he lists them, Bullitt, Kennedy, Davies—"had a habit of writing" directly to the President "over by head." Mr. Hull thought this inadvisable but it also was of no consequence. He complains but always covers up. Why?

Another Rooseveltian process that annoyed Mr. Hull was the President's habit of sending personal representatives all over the world—representatives whose activities conflicted with the accredited ambassadors, who apparently did not always know what was going on. He lists only those who annoyed him most: Harry Hopkins, Henry Wallace, Averell Harriman, Patrick J. Hurley, William J. Donovan and Joseph E. Davies. Again, he politely covers up with this sentence:

". . . Nevertheless, their mission rarely interfered with the strictly diplomatic efforts of the Government."

It is amazing how Mr. Hull gets his licks in and then politely retreats from the criticism. But the criticism stands as evidence of the confusion of administration under Roosevelt, of his inability to departmentalize and delegate responsibility, of his insistence upon keeping his fingers in every pie all at once. Of course, being human, he soon ran out of fingers.

Mr. Hull's discussion of his experience at the London Economic Conference in 1933, in the newspaper digest, is wholly inadequate. He shows, however, sufficient to indicate that Roosevelt let him down. Jim Farley's book, when it appears, will give another side of that situation, the Roosevelt side, and that will show that Mr. Roosevelt was not only petty but that he believed fishwives' rumors, and pinioned great events to them.

Mr. Hull's main gripe is against Raymond Moley, his Undersecretary. After all these years, he adheres to his original assumption that Moley doublecrossed him. That assumption is wholly unfair, for Moley himself was doublecrossed, as he stated so forthrightly in his book, "After Seven Years," and as Farley's book will make clear.

What actually happened, Roosevelt stated in a message to Hull:

"Please do not worry about situation here in regard to tariff reductions and removal of trade obstacles. The eleventh-hour rows in Congress over domestic problems made general tariff debate dangerous to our whole program."

In a word, Roosevelt was playing political ducks and drakes. It was Hull's failure at London, due to Roosevelt's "liberal" game, that made Hitler and World War II inevtiable.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—(special to the News)—The appointment of George V. Allen, a veteran career diplomat who has worked next door to the Soviet Union in the Middle East, to handle the "Voice of America" program has many State department employes worried.

They have been running the "Voice" their own way and, according to some reports, very satisfactorily. However, they fear that Allen may lop many of them off the payroll to make way for men who have worked in the area around the Iron Curtain and have been subjected to Russian radio propaganda.

Geo. V. Allen

Actually, Allen was put on the job primarily on the chance he would put up a better argument for more funds for the "Voice" with Congress than his predecessor, William Benton.

However, Marshall wanted him also because he felt that a diplomat with a good background could do a more effective job in meeting what has been described as Russian "lying" about American motives in the Marshall Plan and in foreign policy generally.

Navy Disapproves

The Navy is burned up about the presidential air policy commission recommendation that its transport service be merged with the Air Force's Air Transport Command.

One high naval aviator said, "It would be all right if they would let us have an equal say about management. But they won't. Because the Air Force is bigger and has a better 'in' at certain places, we'll be sunk without a trace."

He cited the commission's own report in defense of NATS. That document reveals that the Naval Air Transport Service, with one-fourth of the airplanes and one-fourth of the personnel of ATC, flies four-fifths the ton miles covered by ATC.

Woodring May Get Job

The recent departure of former Secretary of War Harry Woodring for an extended tour of Europe has brought rumors that he may take an active part in the administration of the Marshall Plan.

The former Kansas governor said he was making the journey as a "private citizen" just to "have a look around." However, he conceded that he would weigh conditions as he found them against proposals for aid as envisioned in the Marshall Plan.

Additionally, Woodring said he would attempt to visit all European countries from Italy to Sweden, including excursions to Trieste and Vienna, but would make no attempt to penetrate the "iron curtain" or enter Russian satellite countries.

Washington recalled that it was Woodring who appointed Gen. George C. Marshall as Army chief-of-staff over the protests of the late President Roosevelt. In fact, Woodring was so certain that he had the right man for the right job that at one point he threatened to resign his post unless FDR approved Marshall's promotion.

To Glamorize Dishwashing

The Agriculture department has tackled perhaps its most difficult task. It hopes to convince the daughter of the American household that dishwashing is a privilege, not a tiresome chore.

It has thrown its vast resources at the problem as the result of a 4-H club poll which revealed that 11 girls out of 12 consider scrubbing the family china their most distasteful job.

Agriculture is promoting such slogans as "bend at the knees instead of the back" and "use a tray to save kitchen trips." It promises a report by spring on its glamorization performance.

Fear Thought

I sit in my library. It is very cold, outside, and the earth is brilliantly garbed in its coat of thick snow. On the brick ledge of the window, a foot or so from my writing table, a beautiful grey squirrel looks in upon me. I have long befriended him. So he stands upon his hind legs, with his front paws folded to his breast. I wonder what he is thinking. I get him a nut. I open the window. He only stirs a few inches, then, as I hold the nut out to him, he hestitates, steps forward, then backward—wondering, a little fearful. Then he quickly takes it from me and happily eats away at it.

I wish I knew why it takes so long for our commonest animals to finally succumb and trust us. Nature is full of fears. Yet there is a way of breaking it down. Most animals and birds can—with patience— be tamed and made loyal friends. On the way to my office I pass a great collection of pigeons, near St. Patrick's Cathedral, in my town. I nearly always carry some small food in my pockets to drop to them. Almost instantly they will fly and perch upon both my hands, my shoulders, and my head. Swarm me, I might say. They have divorced all their fear.

We humans are filled with fears. The great Dr. Samuel Johnson was a very devout man, yet he feared death and disliked talking about it. As he was dying the young girl of a friend, asked to see him. He moved his body, looked into her face, and said simply: "God bless you, my dear." Then fell into his eternal sleep, peacefully. All fear had gone.

Said Paul Valery: "How many amusements there are! There never were so many toys! But how many anxieties there are too! Never were there so many fears!" And then later on in that same wonderful essay, he says: "We have lost the leisure for maturing and, if we look within ourselves, we artists no longer find that other virtue of the ancient creators of beauty—the determination to endure."

All through the ministry of Christ, he was forever admonishing his disciples and hearers to have no fear. He healed the sick. He even raised from the dead, his friend Lazarus. One of his famous sayings was: "Let not your heart be troubled." And when he was in a boat upon the Sea of Galilee, a great storm arose, and fear filled the minds of all. But he rebuked the winds and sea, and said: "Why are ye so fearful? Where is your faith? How is it that ye have no faith?"

Could It Be That Petrillo Has Had A Change Of Mind?

The agreement between the four major networks and James Caesar Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, looks—on the surface—like a far-reaching advance in radio and boon to the listening public. Whether there is anything under the surface remains to be seen.

According to the announcement from New York, Petrillo has lifted his ban on frequency modulation broadcasts of standard radio programs. At the same time, the entworks have made no commitments about the employment of more live musicians in radio. Thus, Petrillo would seem to have overcome his fear that every mechanical improvement in radio or recorded music means unemployment for the musicians of his union.

The network officials say that the public wants to hear more music on FM, which eliminates static. They add that duplication of standard broadcasts by FM will provide additional employment for musicians. Both these propositions are, we think, true. But it is amazing to find Mr. Petrillo agreeing with them, and, by implication, suggesting that he will lift his ban on music over television.

If Mr. Petrillo were not Mr. Petrillo one would simply say that he has been persuaded to change his mind. But those most familiar with Mr. Petrillo know that he is not the man to change his mind readily. His attitude toward mechanical reproduction of music has been one of hatred blended with fear. He has defied the radio stations, the record companies, the networks and the Congress of the United States, and in every case to date has got away with it. Why, then, has he suddenly reversed his whole position?

While they await the answer to this mystery, radio listeners may enjoy live music over FM—at least until the expiration of the 60-day extension of the present contract between the networks and the AFM.

Rooms are 10 degrees warmer at the ceiling, according to heating engineers. But it would be quite a chore to invert them every time a cold spell comes along.

Foolish Judge Thinks $10 Fine Will Stop Child's Cries

A Memphis judge rules against the laws of nature and the inevitable by declaring a crying child is a nuisance. He doesn't reveal, however, what he is going to do about it.

If the august judge thinks slapping a $10 fine on the parents will stop a child from crying, he had better go soak his head. A crying child cares about as much about a fine slapped on his parents as he does for such bait as candy, the cat or a dangled toy when he wants to cry.

The fine sport of squaring off the mouth and yelling at the top of the voice is an athletic activity indulged in by children with free abandon and they are not going to be deferred by any court decision.

Now and then one encounters one of those parents who can smile complacently and let junior cry until he is black in the face. But generally speaking, a child is pretty much of a chore to a parent. Nobody likes to walk the floor with a bawling baby, and the punishment a child can deal is more effective than any a court can conjure up.

The court might bring the gavel down and rule a crying baby is a nuisance, but what everybody wants to know is how that is going to stop the crying. When the judge hands that solution down he will be entitled to reverence and to a seat among the mighty. Until then he is just another judge sitting on the bench.

Scientists say man will live to be 100 and the last 25 years will be the best. Now is the time to start a rocking chair factory.

Oil Shortage

The gloomy statements being issued in Washington in regard to the fuel oil and gasoline situation causes conjecture as to what would happen if there were another war. In the third year of peace officials are issuing warnings that there will be a shortage of oil and gasoline for at least three and possibly five more years.

Inasmuch as the nation's present oil troubles may be traced not to a decrease in supply but to "a tremendous" increase in demand, the question arises how the scarcity is to be overcome. The immediate answer, as Washington sees it, is to keep oil-heated homes at lower temperatures and to curtail automobil mileage wherever possible.

But that program can do little more than meet the difficulties of the moment. What about the future, and what particularly about conditions which would arise if for any reason the nation were to be put on a war footing again?

More and more people will want fuel oil for domestic purposes and gasoline to drive pleasure cars and trucks. The demand for those products will grow instead of lessen. In the military field a vast increase in the size of the air force is planned. That will entail a further drain on available supplies.

The only solution seems to lie in an almost incredible expansion of production. Unless this can be brought about the country in a short time will be in a sorry state—sorry from the standpoint of personal comfort and sorrier from the standpoint of the national defense.

Fashion Heretic

The first discordant note in the New Look Fashion Symphony has been sounded, and by none other than the executive director of the American Wool Council, F. Eugene Ackerman of New York. American women will wear narrower skirts reaching 11 to 14 inches from the floor, he predicts.

"American women have laughed the inventions of French clothes designers right out of existence," he said. He spoke at the convention of the National Wool Growers Association in Salt Lake City. Narrower and shorter skirts will tend to balance up the supply of men's and women's clothing material, he said.

"Such idiocies as padded hips and padded fronts became part of the new look," Ackerman said, "because American designers fell for French designers' high pressure," he said.

But what if the ladies now like 'em long and refuse to go back to short skirts?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Late Manifestations Of Syphilis

Unless treated, syphilis is usually a lifelong disease. The symptoms appearing shortly after the condition is contracted are different from those that arise decades later. This explains why we refer to early and late syphilis. The initial manifestations are confined to the reproductive structures and the skin but later, the causative germs invade the walls of the blood vessels, the brain, and the spinal cord. Thus heart trouble or mental disturbance may ensue.

Dr. Van Dellen

General paresis is an example of the latter. Sphilitic organisms attack certain nerve cells which results in a group of characteristic symptoms. Only 3 per cent of all syphilitics encounter this complication and ten to thirty years will pass before it develops. Initially there are changes in personality, displayed in a variety of ways. Some become irritable or go through alternating periods of depression and sitting on top of the world. Others become careless about clothes and personal habits. Now and then the business associates of the victim are the first to notice the transformation. The firm begins to suffer because the man is absentminded, is no longer capable of concentrating, and loses his sense of good judgment. Sometimes the malady itself is not directly responsible; the afflicted individual does not feel up to par and turns to alcohol and other excesses, which have the same disastrous effect.

• — • — •

As time goes by the situation becomes progressively worse. The sufferer often complains of headaches, visual disorders, or loss of weight; the hands may shake and lack of coordination and dexterity will be noted. Finally speech derangements occur, with slurring of words and inability to enunciate properly. To demonstrate this phenomenon the physician often asks the patient to say "Methodist-Episcopal" or "around the rugged rock the ragged rascal ran."

By this time the ailment has reached its full development and there is little doubt that something is amiss. From this point on it progresses rapidly from bad to worse. From 10 to 20 per cent exhibit a marked euphoria, claiming to feel better than they ever did. Many have delusions of great wealth and will spend imaginary millions in true philanthropic style.

Another group is not so fortunate, as they are deeply depressed, anxious, and fearful of everything about them. Ultimately the mind deteriorates to such an extent that they become completely demented and lead a vegetative existence. In the terminal stages they are bedridden.

• — • — •

Several years ago there was practically no hope but now the outlook is better, particularly if paresis is treated when it first becomes apparent. Fever therapy and a variety of drugs are available. As each decade passes, physicians are seeing fewer and fewer with the late manifestations of syphilis and it is possible that in the future, heart and nerve complications will be so rare as to be medical curiosities. All of this is due to the fact that the disease is now treated early combined with public education of the dangers of neglect, stressing the need for routine blood tests by public health departments, and the improvements that have been made in the management of the infection.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The growth of our Los Angeles population continues at such a tremendous rate that the civic planners fear a water shortage in the future. And I'm worrying about it so much, I'm going to start hoarding water. Beginning next week, I'm having my milkman deliver an extra quart of milk.

But you can depend on the Chamber of Commerce to find a substitute. Already the new homes being built have faucets marked "hot, cold, and orange juice."

Lack of water will never endanger personal hygiene in Los Angeles. All we have to do is keep Santa Anita going . . . that will keep everybody clean.

It's going to be an odd sight to see a camel plodding down Hollywood Blvd. But the Hollywood camel will be different. He'll have three humps. One for water . . . one for suntan lotion . . . and one for screen makeup.

I suppose I'll have to close up my swimming pool, but that will make me happy because the wrong kind of people have been using it lately. Twice last week I noticed a person in the pool whom I knew.

I think that shortage is here already. Not so long ago I walked down a dark street . . . someone hit me on the head and hijacked the water on my knee.

I can just picture this happening . . . a fellow walking into an aqua-tail lounge . . . ordering a shot of water . . . The crooked bartender pouring some liquor into it and the customer yelling "egad, this water has been cut."

Bernard Shaw Calls Himself A "Communist" In Letter; Phil Murray Faces Maritime Rebellion Over Marshall Plan; Republicans Hold Tax-Cut Caucus

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Bernard Shaw, famed 91-year-old Irish wit and playwright, has written an interesting letter endorsing Henry Wallace.

However, if Wallace is not elected, Shaw says, he would prefer a Republican "because a Republican may steal a horse, where a Democrat dare not look over the hedge."

Shaw describes himself as "a Communist though not a member of the so-called Communist Party," which according to friends means that Shaw believes in theories of community property, etc., but not the terroristic methods used by the Communists to put these principles into force.

Shaw's letter, written to Miss Fanny Holtzmann, New York attorney, follows:

"14th January 1943

My Dear Fanny,

I am not a Cobdenist Liberal, but the very opposite, a Communist, though not a member of the so-called Communist Party. On the whole, if an up-to-date New Deal European minded candidate like Wallace is defeated, I should prefer a Republican President because a Republican may steal a horse where a Democrat dare not look over the hedge; and both Republicans and Democrats must go whither events drive them in spite of their party shibboleths.

Wallace has not taken the field too early. He should have done so months ago, because it is by his public meetings that he is gathering votes; and he also, like me, need not care a snap of his fingers which party he dislodges.

You write (31st December) as if you were a Liberal, and believe that Cobdenists are more Progressive than Fascist Tory-Democrats. The case is exactly the reverse. Cobdenist Free Trade and laisser-faire are as dead as a doornail. Fascism (capture of the Socialist program by the Capitalist leaders) has completely ousted Liberalism; and Socialist-democracy is on the march working its own way and driving all Capitalist parties in spite of their inertia.

Ponder this well, Fanny, before you meddle in politics, especially my politics. I know what I am writing about.

G. BERNARD SHAW

Note—A "Cobdenist Liberal" refers to followers of Richard Cobden, 19th century British Liberal who distrusted government intervention in trade and industry but believed in a peoples' movement for peace.

CIO Fight Over Marshall

As CIO chief Phil Murray goes on the witness stand regarding the Marshall Plan, he faces hot rebellion in his ranks from the National Maritime Union which demands that goods shipped abroad under the Marshall Plan be carried in American ships.

In mid-December two-fisted Joe Curran, head of the unruly Maritime Union, together with John Green, head of the CIO's shipyard workers, told Murray he should qualify his support for the Marshall Plan by stipulating that American seamen should carry Marshall Plan goods in American ships at American pay scales. They pointed out that a large part of the steel we are sending to Europe is going into ships while our own shipyards are idle, and that more than 1,400 merchant ships have been turned over to European nations during the past year while there is unemployment among American seamen.

Indignant, Murray agreed.

However, Jim Carey, able CIO secretary, and prime mover within the CIO for the Marshall Plan, has insisted that the Plan must have the unqualified support of the CIO. The shipping matter, he maintains, can be fixed up satisfactorily.

Carey, a powerful influence inside the CIO, flew to Pittsburgh last week mainly to argue this point with his boss.

Meanwhile, Curran thinks that if Murray will continue to oppose the ship transfer he can win his Maritime Union over to supporting the Marshall Plan. Also his moderate policy will be strengthened in the union elections which get under way March 1.

So Phil Murray, when he testifies on the Marshall Plan, will be very much on the spot.

Republican Caucus

Highlights from the secret Republican caucus at which GOP House leaders finally got unanimous support for the Knutson Tax Bill:

California's Bud Gearhart touched off some fireworks when he boasted that 77 per cent of the tax cuts would help people with incomes under $4,000.

"Even the Republicans," snorted Michigan's irascible Fred Crawford, "have fallen for the soak-the-rich hysteria. Both parties are trying to buy votes with handouts.

"Congress is 'crucifying' industry and destroying initiative with its one-sided tax legislation,' continued the gentleman who has sometimes been called the General Motors representative in Congress. "I am tired of all this demagogy about soaking the rich when it is no longer possible to become rich, and all we have left are tired old men."

Speaker Joe Martin gave an inside report on what happened at the secret Democratic caucus just ended. The Democrats, he said, voted to oppose the bill in a body. Their strategy, he predicted, would be to move for recommittal, then fight for easing the reductions in each tax bracket.

Hal Holmes of Washington reported that "Muley Bob" Doughton of North Carolina, though a Democrat, was in favor of scrapping the President's plan for $40 exemption-reductions.

Daniel Reed of New York spoke for the Ways and Means Committee. The tax bill, he said, was the result of meticulous study and research.

Crawford butted in and wanted to know whether there would be enough money to go around for both the tax reductions and the Marshall Plan.

Reed replied in the affirmative, but said the Marshall Plan should be scaled down anyway.

"I don't want to be pledged to tax reductions if it means wrecking the Marshall Plan," broke in Minnesota's George MacKinnon.

William Dawson of Utah pointed out that Truman's plan offered more tax relief to the $2,400-$3,000 income bracket than the Knutson Bill, and asked whether some adjustments ought to be made in the lower bracket.

Reed explained that the bill was worked out on a scientific, graduated scale and should not be distorted for any special group.

"The President is catering to that group alone in order to get votes," broke in Indiana's Hallock. "We shouldn't stoop to it."

Basic Forces Contributing To Rising Prices Show Strength

By MARK SULLIVAN

In case you want it from an official source, here it is: "The basic forces . . . which contributed to rising prices . . . in 1947, show unabated strength." These words, and others ominously grave, are from the current issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin, official publication of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. This could tenably be described as the best source in the country, in the sense that it is at once competent and has a reputation for complete disinterestedness.

But why use space to buttress an official statement that the forces which make for higher prices and inflation "show unabated strength." Every citizen knows it by the effect on himself. What would be new and important to say would be that something is being done about it. But that cannot be said.

President Truman called Congress into special session in November, and sent to it a program of ten anti-inflationary measures, of the kind he desired. In December Congress passed a three-point measure of its own initiation, ignoring most of Mr. Truman's proposals. Mr. Truman, signing the measure, called it "inadequate."

No Spirit Of Emergency

Congress would not have disputed the word. The measure it passed was felt to be all it could readily do in the special session. The assumption was that Congress would enact further measures in the present regular session. But after nearly a month of the regular session, Congress is busy upon a tax bill. If there is in Congress any spirit of emergency about inflation, it has not expressed itself in action.

Outside Congress meanwhile, forces making for higher prices show, as the Federal Reserve Bulletin puts it "unabated strength." One such force is generating a new spurt. Labor unions and leaders are moving toward demands for wage raises in many industries. The head of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. William Green says he does it with regret.

"We have to face reality. If the AFL could choose between wage increases and reduced prices, we'd prefer reduced prices . . . But it is unlikely that anything can be done with prices before spring, particularly by the 80th Congress."

In the distinction Mr. Green makes is a guide. So long as prices remain high and tend higher, it is difficult to argue against wage raises. Yet the economic law is that in most cases the wage raises, after taking affect, will remain in still higher prices. That is the spiral needing to be stopped.

Truman For Supporting Prices

Of all prices, the ones that most move labor to demand higher wages are those of food, these are far the largest factor in cost of living. But a proposal to check or reduce prices of food encounters a political condition, weighing with both Congress and the Administration. Food means farm products, and for these there is a government policy and practice called "price support." This practice is, to many persons in politics, appropriately, a "sacred cow." President Truman in his many solemn outgivings about high prices and inflation, nevertheless asserts, officially and repeatedly, that price support must be continued. With the President taking this position, persons in Congress are deterred from taking initiative to the contrary.

Among all the proposals for checking high prices and inflation made before committees of Congress, two stood out as carefully thought out, comprehensive, and objectively scientific in approach. The two came from non-political sources—Mr. Bernard M. Baruch and Mr. Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board. Both faced, with unpolitical candor, the part that price support of farm commodities plays in inflation.

One political source, Senator Taft, characteristically candid, and making indignant response to President Truman's program for checking high prices but keeping price support for farm commodities, put the operation of the price support policy into plain words: "Whenever any food price starts going down, or even threatens to go down, some government department steps in and starts buying to keep up the price."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Hull's Memoirs

Obviously, Mr. Hull's memoirs, as they are now appearing in the newspapers, are digests of a fuller book. Were it otherwise, it would be necessary to believe that too much is omitted that is essential history.

Mr. Roosevelt's Secretary of State gives the impression that all went smoothly between himself and the President; and yet there is a constant undertone of deep dissatisfaction and criticism. Certainly, a Secretary of State who had no voice in the selection of his principal assistants, who was constantly forced to deal with men whom he so definitely disliked, as he apparently did Raymond Moley and Sumner Welles, could not have been happy about it.

The same thing crops up in the Hull memoirs as in those of Jim Farley. Mr. Roosevelt was willing to do business with these men but not associate with them. Hull says:

"In general, I was not a social intimate of the President. I was not invited to White House dinners, except on official occasions, or to week-end excursions on Mr. Roosevelt's yacht or to visit Hyde Park... I was frankly glad not to be invited into the White House groups where so often the 'liberal' game was played on an extreme basis..."

In a word, Mr. Hull was regarded as dull by the Corcorans, Cohens, Rosenmans and Hopkinses who composed the gay circle that pursued the liberal game. Such men as Hull and Farley did not belong to the witty crowd that put things over in the blithe spirit but, Oh!, so expensively.

Worse, however, is that Mr. Hull attended neither domestic nor military conferences, although he was Secretary of State; he got his information only when he asked questions. He says:

"... I never asked him a question about the most secret military or domestic situation that he did not instantly and unreservedly respond with full information . . ." However, even his important Ambassadors—and he lists them, Bullitt, Kennedy, Davies—"had a habit of writing" directly to the President "over by head." Mr. Hull thought this inadvisable but it also was of no consequence. He complains but always covers up. Why?

Another Rooseveltian process that annoyed Mr. Hull was the President's habit of sending personal representatives all over the world—representatives whose activities conflicted with the accredited ambassadors, who apparently did not always know what was going on. He lists only those who annoyed him most: Harry Hopkins, Henry Wallace, Averell Harriman, Patrick J. Hurley, William J. Donovan and Joseph E. Davies. Again, he politely covers up with this sentence:

". . . Nevertheless, their mission rarely interfered with the strictly diplomatic efforts of the Government."

It is amazing how Mr. Hull gets his licks in and then politely retreats from the criticism. But the criticism stands as evidence of the confusion of administration under Roosevelt, of his inability to departmentalize and delegate responsibility, of his insistence upon keeping his fingers in every pie all at once. Of course, being human, he soon ran out of fingers.

Mr. Hull's discussion of his experience at the London Economic Conference in 1933, in the newspaper digest, is wholly inadequate. He shows, however, sufficient to indicate that Roosevelt let him down. Jim Farley's book, when it appears, will give another side of that situation, the Roosevelt side, and that will show that Mr. Roosevelt was not only petty but that he believed fishwives' rumors, and pinioned great events to them.

Mr. Hull's main gripe is against Raymond Moley, his Undersecretary. After all these years, he adheres to his original assumption that Moley double-crossed him. That assumption is wholly unfair, for Moley himself was doublecrossed, as he stated so forthrightly in his book, "After Seven Years," and as Farley's book will make clear.

What actually happened, Roosevelt stated in a message to Hull:

"Please do not worry about situation here in regard to tariff reductions and removal of trade obstacles. The eleventh-hour rows in Congress over domestic problems made general tariff debate dangerous to our whole program."

In a word, Roosevelt was playing political ducks and drakes. It was Hull's failure at London, due to Roosevelt's "liberal" game, that made Hitler and World War II inevtiable.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—(special to the News)—The appointment of George V. Allen, a veteran career diplomat who has worked next door to the Soviet Union in the Middle East, to handle the "Voice of America" program has many State department employes worried.

They have been running the "Voice" their own way and, according to some reports, very satisfactorily. However, they fear that Allen may lop many of them off the payroll to make way for men who have worked in the area around the Iron Curtain and have been subjected to Russian radio propaganda.

Actually, Allen was put on the job primarily on the chance he would put up a better argument for more funds for the "Voice" with Congress than his predecessor, William Benton.

However, Marshall wanted him also because he felt that a diplomat with a good background could do a more effective job in meeting what has been described as Russian "lying" about American motives in the Marshall Plan and in foreign policy generally.

Navy Disapproves

The Navy is burned up about the presidential air policy commission recommendation that its transport service be merged with the Air Force's Air Transport Command.

One high naval aviator said, "It would be all right if they would let us have an equal say about management. But they won't. Because the Air Force is bigger and has a better 'in' at certain places, we'll be sunk without a trace."

He cited the commission's own report in defense of NATS. That document reveals that the Naval Air Transport Service, with one-fourth of the airplanes and one-fourth of the personnel of ATC, flies four-fifths the ton miles covered by ATC.

Woodring May Get Job

The recent departure of former Secretary of War Harry Woodring for an extended tour of Europe has brought rumors that he may take an active part in the administration of the Marshall Plan.

The former Kansas governor said he was making the journey as a "private citizen" just to "have a look around." However, he conceded that he would weigh conditions as he found them against proposals for aid as envisioned in the Marshall Plan.

Additionally, Woodring said he would attempt to visit all European countries from Italy to Sweden, including excursions to Trieste and Vienna, but would make no attempt to penetrate the "iron curtain" or enter Russian satellite countries.

Washington recalled that it was Woodring who appointed Gen. George C. Marshall as Army chief-of-staff over the protests of the late President Roosevelt. In fact, Woodring was so certain that he had the right man for the right job that at one point he threatened to resign his post unless FDR approved Marshall's promotion.

To Glamorize Dishwashing

The Agriculture department has tackled perhaps its most difficult task. It hopes to convince the daughter of the American household that dishwashing is a privilege, not a tiresome chore.

It has thrown its vast resources at the problem as the result of a 4-H club poll which revealed that 11 girls out of 12 consider scrubbing the family china their most distasteful job.

Agriculture is promoting such slogans as "bend at the knees instead of the back" and "use a tray to save kitchen trips." It promises a report by spring on its glamorization performance.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Fear Thought

I sit in my library. It is very cold, outside, and the earth is brilliantly garbed in its coat of thick snow. On the brick ledge of the window, a foot or so from my writing table, a beautiful grey squirrel looks in upon me. I have long befriended him. So he stands upon his hind legs, with his front paws folded to his breast. I wonder what he is thinking. I get him a nut. I open the window. He only stirs a few inches, then, as I hold the nut out to him, he hestitates, steps forward, then backward—wondering, a little fearful. Then he quickly takes it from me and happily eats away at it.

I wish I knew why it takes so long for our commonest animals to finally succumb and trust us. Nature is full of fears. Yet there is a way of breaking it down. Most animals and birds can—with patience— be tamed and made loyal friends. On the way to my office I pass a great collection of pigeons, near St. Patrick's Cathedral, in my town. I nearly always carry some small food in my pockets to drop to them. Almost instantly they will fly and perch upon both my hands, my shoulders, and my head. Swarm me, I might say. They have dicorced all their fear.

We humans are filled with fears. The great Dr. Samuel Johnson was a very devout man, yet he feared death and disliked talking about it. As he was dying the young girl of a friend, asked to see him. He moved his body, looked into her face, and said simply: "God bless you, my dear." Then fell into his eternal sleep, peacefully. All fear had gone.

Said Paul Valery: "How many amusements there are! There never were so many toys! But how many anxieties there are too! Never were there so many fears!" And then later on in that same wonderful essay, he says: "We have lost the leisure for maturing and, if we look within ourselves, we artists no longer find that other virtue of the ancient creators of beauty—the determination to endure."

All through the ministry of Christ, he was forever admonishing his disciples and hearers to have no fear. He healed the sick. He even raised from the dead, his friend Lazarus. One of his famous sayings was: "Let not your heart be troubled." And when he was in a boat upon the Sea of Galilee, a great storm arose, and fear filled the minds of all. But he rebuked the winds and sea, and said: "Why are ye so fearful? Where is your faith? How is it that ye have no faith?"

Diehl Heads Body To Get Doctors For Frostburg

Rotary Committee To Aid City Officials

Prof. Ivan C. Diehl, president of the Frostburg Rotary Club and a member of the faculty of Frostburg State Teachers' College, was appointed chairman last night of a five-man committee to cooperate with city officials in efforts to secure one or more additional physicians for Frostburg.

Others named to the committee by Mayor Marshall Skidmore and the City Commissioners were Joseph Montana, exalted ruler of Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B.P.O. Elks; Frank T. Powers, commander of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion; Chief Woodrow Layman of the Frostburg Volunteer Fire Department, and E. Benjamin Myers, worshipful master of Mountain Lodge No. 99, A. F. and A. M.

Water Estimate Received

In other action, the council decided to invite a representative of Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore firm of consulting engineers, to confer with city officials and the Fire Department regarding proposed enlargement of the city's water transmission and distribution lines.

City Clerk Alex G. Close read a letter from the firm which advocated a 16-inch line as being adequate to take care of the community's water needs.

The line would include a 3,000-foot transmission main, 3,850 linear feet of 6 and 8-inch distribution mains, and 700 feet of a 12-inch distribution main, at a total estimated cost of $49,000.

Several months ago the engineers said a 12-inch line would be sufficient, but Frostburg firemen urged that a 24-inch line be constructed. That large a line would cost $69,000, the engineers said in the letter read last night.

Ordinance Passed

City Attorney William S. Jenkins was instructed to prepare an ordinance providing for the resurfacing with blacktop of Centennial Street from Lemmert's Alley to Brode's Alley, and Washington Street from Green Street to Sleeman's Alley.

An ordinance changing the name of Loo Street to College Avenue was read for the third time and passed.

Fire Chief Layman reported that various individuals have been pouring gasoline into blocked sewer lines in an effort to clear them. He said this practice is dangerous because the gas might accumulate in catch basins and cause an explosion if ignited.

Truck Driver Held In 2-Vehicle Crash

One man was admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday shortly after 5:30 p. m. while his brother is being held in Allegany County Jail on charges of violating three state motor vehicle laws as the result of a car-truck collision on Route 220 near Bowling Green.

Hospital attaches said French White, 38, Cresaptown, suffered lacerations of the forehead and temple and a cut on the right thumb. His condition was described as good late last night.

Trooper Thomas G. Barton identified the brother as Russell Lee White, 39, a Celanese employe, and said he was being held in default of $124.35 bond after his pickup truck crashed against the rear of a parked car belonging to Lt. Comdr. Walter N. Hedrick, 31, organizing officer of the local Naval Reserve Division.

The injured man, according to the trooper, was thrown against the windshield of his brother's truck by the impact which pushed the parked car 110 feet down the road.

Comdr. Hedrick, Barton explained, had parked his car in front of the home of Lewis C. Millholland, whom he had driven home. The two men were seated in the car talking when the truck headed in the same direction crashed against the rear.

Damage to each vehicle was estimated at $150 by Trooper Barton, who said Russell White will be given a hearing Friday night at 7 o'clock before Magistrate Roy S. Bowman, Cresaptown.

printing industries, services such as dry cleaning and laundry plants, textile and weaving industries, tobacco and its products and such other miscellaneous industries that use power from under five boiler horsepower to over 10,000 horsepower.

"Motors driven by electric power through 'purchased current' are about the only industries not covered. Heating, hot water and power plants are to be carefully inspected and permits for new apparatus as well as certificates for continued operation will be issued for this year of 1948."

Semi-commercial plants, Hitchcock said, are covered in Section 3 which reads: "Emission of smoke within the city from the smokestack of any roller, derrick, pile driver, tar kettle or similar machine or contrivance, or from an open fire, or from the smoke-stack or chimney of any building, roundhouse or premises." Also included is the burning of refuse either in equipment or incinerators, he said.

"All apartment houses, banks and trust companies, churches, clubs, commercial buildings, office and public buildings, halls, homes and asylums, hospitals and dispensaries, hotels, libraries, newspapers, schools and all society buildings are directly covered through their use of heating apparatus and secondary power. Within time, all such types of buildings will receive their instructions. A true educational program will be held to show how you can eliminate smoke and save 50 per cent of your fuel bill."

A number of railroad officials from the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland were present at the meeting for the reading of the Hitchcock report. They included R. W. Baldinger, assistant superintendent of fuel conservation; William Henry, road foreman of engines for the west end of the Cumberland Division; F. A. time. The writer stretches things a little bit as re reports a rather hot little fight for the town but actually the Fifth Armored Boys threw a few shells into the town, then proceeded to roll in unmolested. There may have been some colored boys with that outfit but I don't remember seeing any and I rather think the colored boy he speaks of, was one of my boys who had his face blackened for night fighting. There were a hundred or so Russian and Polish D. Ps. in the town----the dirtiest, most forlorn and filthiest people I have ever seen, and quite a number of Russian prisoners, some of whom were wearing the same uniforms they had been captured in, in 1942, as they wore the old Russian felt helmet with the spike on the top and the big red star in front.

"We immediately got every conveyance imaginable and started the native population, D. Ps., and prisoners to the rear where we billetted them in other villages and areas in order to get them out of our way in case of more fighting.

"It is true that the American boys behaved themselves and conducted themselves well; they were all fine boys who had seen some of the heaviest fighting, and we had a well disciplined battalion. Many of them picked up some oldster's bundle of possessions and carried it to the wagon or truck. We were constantly receiving thanks for the American's decency. It is true that the boys gave these half-starved people things to eat even though regulations frowned on this sort of pampering.

"The Third Battalion was the left flank unit of the American Army at this time and we tied in with the British 30 Corps on our left. There was quite a difference in the way the British treated enemy civilians as they really hated the Krauts and made no bones about it.

Girls Washed Clothes

"By 2200 hours of that day we had all of them moved to the rear except the Bergomeister and a half dozen girls whom we retained to wash the battalion's clothes. We put the girls in a little house and put a two-man guard on it to protect them from any over-romantic Yanks. The next day we set up a laundry in the basement of the headquarters and started the girls to work on washing the complete uniforms of a battalion of about 800 men. Never have I seen anyone work so hard as they did and never have I seen such happy people as they. In three days they completed the job and their only pay was three square meals a day—probably the first real meals for many months. They also got many gifts of chocolate and chewing gum from the boys who were not even allowed to talk to them but who took great pleasure in sitting around watching the girls work. On the fourth day we sent them to the rear, much against their wishes.

"On the second night we spent in Hitzacker, we received quite a pounding from a three-gun battery of eight inchers from the north, but we put our planes up the next day to locate them and got the British to put some counter-fire on them. We were never bothered with them again although we did get some fire from some self-propelled 88 guns that were still roaming around east of the river.

"Your letter writer mentions our search for weapons in the town. This is true too, and we picked up guns and rifles dating from the 1700's, to the most modern and beautiful hand-made sporting rifles I have ever seen. I have one of them here now, although I didn't get one of the really good ones. Your writer mentions our helping the sick and I well remember sending two oldsters and an expectant mother to a hospital in our battalion ambulance. Our battalion surgeon treated them and prepared them for the trip. This was not an idea of my own but rather a policy OK'd by our higher ups. One of these days we may be glad to have the Krauts on our side.

Spent Pleasant Time There

"We spent an altogether pleasant and happy time here waiting for the Russians, and I think that the Elbe Valley here and the Wesser Valley near Hamlen, the Pied Piper's town, are among the prettiest and most pleasant places I have ever seen. Only a few miles from here though was one of the largest assembly plants for Flying V-1 Bombs and V-2 Rockets in Germany. This plant was most skillfully hidden in a part of the Dannenburg Forest.

"I have no idea what is behind your letter writer's letter to the News, other than another American handout. What I can't understand is why he should write to Cumberland. I may have left a copy of the News which you so kindly sent to Company G and which were sometimes forwarded to me by First Sgt. Frank Hinze of that company. Even so I feel that the German people are basically fine people if properly led, and I say again that some day we may be glad to have them on our side."

printing industries, services such as dry cleaning and laundry plants, textile and weaving industries, tobacco and its products and such other miscellaneous industries that use power from under five boiler horsepower to over 10,000 horsepower.

"Motors driven by electric power through 'purchased current' are about the only industries not covered. Heating, hot water and power plants are to be carefully inspected and permits for new apparatus as well as certificates for continued operation will be issued for this year of 1948."

Semi-commercial plants, Hitchcock said, are covered in Section 3 which reads: "Emission of smoke within the city from the smokestack of any roller, derrick, pile driver, tar kettle or similar machine or contrivance, or from an open fire, or from the smoke-stack or chimney of any building, roundhouse or premises." Also included is the burning of refuse either in equipment or incinerators, he said.

"All apartment houses, banks and trust companies, churches, clubs, commercial buildings, office and public buildings, halls, homes and asylums, hospitals and dispensaries, hotels, libraries, newspapers, schools and all society buildings are directly covered through their use of heating apparatus and secondary power. Within time, all such types of buildings will receive their instructions. A true educational program will be held to show how you can eliminate smoke and save 50 per cent of your fuel bill."

A number of railroad officials from the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland were present at the meeting for the reading of the Hitchcock report. They included R. W. Baldinger, assistant superintendent of fuel conservation; William Henry, road foreman of engines for the west end of the Cumberland Division; F. A. Scherch, superintendent of the back shops, all of the B. and O.; and Harry Dixon, foreman of engines for the Western Maryland.

Attorney James Alfred Avirett, at the completion of the report reading, commended the smoke engineer on his first report and pledged cooperation to the successful completion of the program.

time. The writer stretches things a little bit as re reports a rather hot little fight for the town but actually the Fifth Armored Boys threw a few shells into the town, then proceeded to roll in unmolested. There may have been some colored boys with that outfit but I don't remember seeing any and I rather think the colored boy he speaks of, was one of my boys who had his face blackened for night fighting. There were a hundred or so Russian and Polish D. Ps. in the town----the dirtiest, most forlorn and filthiest people I have ever seen, and quite a number of Russian prisoners, some of whom were wearing the same uniforms they had been captured in, in 1942, as they wore the old Russian felt helmet with the spike on the top and the big red star in front.

"We immediately got every conveyance imaginable and started the native population, D. Ps., and prisoners to the rear where we billetted them in other villages and areas in order to get them out of our way in case of more fighting.

"It is true that the American boys behaved themselves and conducted themselves well; they were all fine boys who had seen some of the heaviest fighting, and we had a well disciplined battalion. Many of them picked up some oldster's bundle of possessions and carried it to the wagon or truck. We were constantly receiving thanks for the American's decency. It is true that the boys gave these half-starved people things to eat even though regulations frowned on this sort of pampering.

"The Third Battalion was the left flank unit of the American Army at this time and we tied in with the British 30 Corps on our left. There was quite a difference in the way the British treated enemy civilians as they really hated the Krauts and made no bones about it.

Girls Washed Clothes

"By 2200 hours of that day we had all of them moved to the rear except the Bergomeister and a half dozen girls whom we retained to wash the battalion's clothes. We put the girls in a little house and put a two-man guard on it to protect them from any over-romantic Yanks. The next day we set up a laundry in the basement of the headquarters and started the girls to work on washing the complete uniforms of a battalion of about 800 men. Never have I seen anyone work so hard as they did and never have I seen such happy people as they. In three days they completed the job and their only pay was three square meals a day—probably the first real meals for many months. They also got many gifts of chocolate and chewing gum from the boys who were not even allowed to talk to them but who took great pleasure in sitting around watching the girls work. On the fourth day we sent them to the rear, much against their wishes.

"On the second night we spent in Hitzacker, we received quite a pounding from a three-gun battery of eight inchers from the north, but we put our planes up the next day to locate them and got the British to put some counter-fire on them. We were never bothered with them again although we did get some fire from some self-propelled 88 guns that were still roaming around east of the river.

"Your letter writer mentions our search for weapons in the town. This is true too, and we picked up guns and rifles dating from the 1700's, to the most modern and beautiful hand-made sporting rifles I have ever seen. I have one of them here now, although I didn't get one of the really good ones. Your writer mentions our helping the sick and I well remember sending two oldsters and an expectant mother to a hospital in our battalion ambulance. Our battalion surgeon treated them and prepared them for the trip. This was not an idea of my own but rather a policy OK'd by our higher ups. One of these days we may be glad to have the Krauts on our side.

Spent Pleasant Time There

"We spent an altogether pleasant and happy time here waiting for the Russians, and I think that the Elbe Valley here and the Wesser Valley near Hamlen, the Pied Piper's town, are among the prettiest and most pleasant places I have ever seen. Only a few miles from here though was one of the largest assembly plants for Flying V-1 Bombs and V-2 Rockets in Germany. This plant was most skillfully hidden in a part of the Dannenburg Forest.

"I have no idea what is behind your letter writer's letter to the News, other than another American handout. What I can't understand is why he should write to Cumberland. I may have left a copy of the News which you so kindly sent to Company G and which were sometimes forwarded to me by First Sgt. Frank Hinze of that company. Even so I feel that the German people are basically fine people if properly led, and I say again that some day we may be glad to have them on our side."

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2 (INS)—Who thinks up these gory titles? 20th Century-Fox has just planked down $75,000 for "The Red Of My Blood," a whimsical little piece about produce truck drivers and their brawls getting the onions and carrots to markets.

Ginger Rogers

It's by A. I. Bezzerides and won't be published until late spring. I hear it is a rugged and exciting novel. Dana Andrews has been selected to star in the picture. Robert Bassler will produce.

• — • — •

There's a big denial that Mrs. Mickey Rooney is planning a showdown with Mickey when he returns from England, but that ain't the way I heard it.

Anyway, when the Mick gets back, MGM has some news for him. Along with Wallace Beery and Keenan Wynn, he'll star in a thriller on the midget auto races.

With the foreign market what it is, I don't know whether this movie will see the light of theater marquees over there, but by the time the picture is filmed next summer, England and France will be seeing the real thing because Bert Friedlob is promoting midget racing in Europe.

• — • — •

I don't think anyone of us who saw that photograph of the six Marines raising the flag at Iwo Jima will ever forget it. One of those boys was Ira Hayes, an Oklahoma Indian, and now Ira has been paged to play the male lead in "Children Of the Sun," a movie showing the problem of the American Indians.

Dr. Ference Fodor, a wealthy student and inventor, who is making the movie, has asked Mary Bradley, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian to play the femme lead. Fodor says he will release his picture through Eagle-Lion, but before he agreed to make it for them, he insisted upon telling the true conditions existing among the Indians today.

• — • — •

Ginger Rogers, whose dancing feet have never been equalled among the women stars with the exception of Rita Hayworth, may take them to Broadway to twinkle in a musical, "A Dish For the Gods."

The offer comes from Richard Lamarr through the Lyons' office in New York.

• — • — •

I don't know anyone who is kept busier than Charles Laughton. He's just been signed to play the lead in "See What I Mean," the Louis Brown best seller of a few years ago. Mary Pickford with James Cassidy are bringing this to the screen.

• — • — •

Carole Landis is coming back the first week in March, and I wonder what she'll do because Bob Topping has rented her house. She'll probably have to move into a hotel. During her six-month stay in England she made two movies, "The Noose" for Warners and "The Brass Monkey" for United Artists, and she still had other offers, but there is no place like home, sweet home.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joe Cook Jr., son of the famous comedian and an actor himself, will become a father in March. He hopes for a Joe Cook the third. Joe Jr. is writing his dad's memoirs.

Moss Hart arrives here in May to discuss a new comedy he's written with Greer Garson in mind.

Cheeta, the chimp, has herself a steady job. Sol Lesser has signed her on a two-year contract to appear exclusively in the Tarzan movies.

Milton Berle has put on so much weight that he has to take off 10 pounds before he faces a camera come June.

Hazel Brooks and Cedric Gibbons left over the weekend visiting the J. P. Marquands at their winter home. Later they are going on to Jamaica to take a personal look at Errol Flynn's island nearby—sounds like fun.

The musicians union doesn't recognize the harmonica, so Larry Adler can make as many records as he wishes—at least that's what I heard.

Gary Cooper has been offered the Lou Gehrig role in "The Babe Ruth Story"—just a "guest" sequence. Remember Gary created the role in "Pride Of the Yankees."

Eddie Silton, ex-husband of Claudia Dell, was at Charlie Foy's with Corinna Mura, the girl who was in "Mexican Hayride." A few tables away was Claudia with Don Emmett, whom she has either married or will marry very soon.

Helen Walker and Michael Levee Jr. are Hollywood's newest twosome.

That's all today.

December Payrolls Here Show Increase

Although 550 fewer persons were employed in 17 Cumberland industries in December than in the same month in 1946, payrolls for the firms increased $491,328.94, according to a report of the Chamber of Commerce.

The local office of the Maryland Employment Service said the job outlook is "pretty dark." During January there were 450 applications for work with 300 referred to jobs and 207, including 142 veterans, being placed. Four handicapped veterans were placed in jobs, according to Patrick J. Carroll, office manager.

During December, 1946 there were 19,021 persons employed in the 17 industries while in December of 1947 the number had dropped to 18,471. Payrolls in December of 1946 totalled $3,842,197.84 and increased to $4,333,526.78 in December of last year.

License Granted

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board yesterday granted a beer and wine license to William H. Lowe and Louis N. Chambers at 122 North Mechanic Street.

Decrees Signed

Two divorce decrees were signed in Circuit Court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster. Jeanne Kayfield, Bowman's Addition, was granted divorce from Allen F. Kayfield. Joseph B. Lacy was divorced from Cora B. Lacy.

Here's Good News!

Are you between the ages of 38 and 52 and going through that trying functional 'middle-age' period peculiar to women? Does this make you suffer from hot flashes, feel clammy, so nervous, irritable, weak? Then do try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms! It's famous for this!
Many wise 'middle-age' women take Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against this distress.
Pinkham's Compound contains no opiates—no habit-forming drugs. It helps nature (you know what we mean!). This great medicine also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Wife Finds It Miserable To Live With Husband Who Is Gambler

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 32 and the mother of three children. My husband is a terrible gambler and it makes me very miserable to live with him. This has been going on for 12 years. I tried to overlook things, but they are getting so bad now that I just can't.

I have met a man at a party, and we have been seeing each other now and then. He told me he was in love with me and was willing to take me and my three children. He is 36.

Should I give up my husband for this man, or should I go on for the rest of my life living in misery? If you thing I should give up my husband, how should I go about it?

"T.G."

Dear "T.G.":

You don't say whether or not your husband's gambling seriously interferes with his support of his family. If he provides you and your children with what you need, that is one thing. If he doesn't that is something else again, and I should think that your decision whether or not to leave him would depend in some degree, at least, on which of these two situations exists.

Are you certain this other man would make life any easier for you? Do you know him well enough to know just what sort of person he is? Your letter sounds as though you were not too well acquainted with him.

If you are convinced that life would be much happier and more satisfactory with him than with your husband, and if you are also convinced that your husband will never do any better by you than he has been doing for 12 years, then it seems to me you would be perfectly justified in leaving him. As for the legal aspects of such a move, you would have to consult a lawyer. And as for whether or not you should marry this other man, you had better go slow until you are perfectly sure you would not be jumping "out of the frying pan into the fire."

Advice To The Lovelorn

Wife Finds It Miserable To Live With Husband Who Is Gambler

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 32 and the mother of three children. My husband is a terrible gambler and it makes me very miserable to live with him. This has been going on for 12 years. I tried to overlook things, but they are getting so bad now that I just can't.

I have met a man at a party, and we have been seeing each other now and then. He told me he was in love with me and was willing to take me and my three children. He is 36.

Should I give up my husband for this man, or should I go on for the rest of my life living in misery? If you thing I should give up my husband, how should I go about it?

"T.G."

Dear "T.G.":

You don't say whether or not your husband's gambling seriously interferes with his support of his family. If he provides you and your children with what you need, that is one thing. If he doesn't that is something else again, and I should think that your decision whether or not to leave him would depend in some degree, at least, on which of these two situations exists.

Are you certain this other man would make life any easier for you? Do you know him well enough to know just what sort of person he is? Your letter sounds as though you were not too well acquainted with him.

If you are convinced that life would be much happier and more satisfactory with him than with your husband, and if you are also convinced that your husband will never do any better by you than he has been doing for 12 years, then it seems to me you would be perfectly justified in leaving him. As for the legal aspects of such a move, you would have to consult a lawyer. And as for whether or not you should marry this other man, you had better go slow until you are perfectly sure you would not be jumping "out of the frying pan into the fire."

Yutzy Turns Fight Judge — Muche Brawl Is Recalled

* * * *

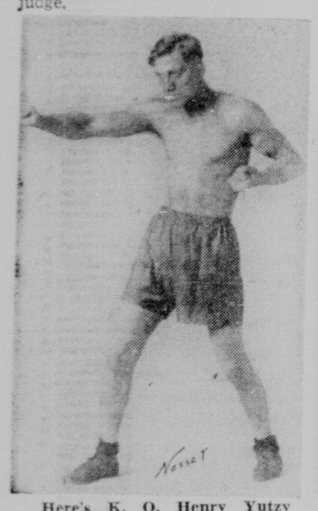
Fought His Best At 143 — Put Out Bedford Lights

By C. V. BURNS

"Get the man who thinks he is able to make Yutzy take a back step in the ring and you'll see a fight."

That's the way in which K.O. Henry Yutzy, Cumberland's popular club fighter of the 1920's and 1930's was publicized and every word of it was true. Those who knew Henry and saw him in action in the ring will attest to that.

Yutzy hung up the gloves about 12 years ago but he essayed a comeback last week (he's 48 now) and it was a success — as a boxing judge.



Here's K. O. Henry Yutzy ready for battle. . .in his prime . . .in 1926. . .He was so well liked in Youngstown, Ohio, he fought there 11 times.

Today Yutzy's essaying a comeback at 48----as a boxing judge. If you don't believe he grew the best cauliflower in the fight game just look at that left ear.

It was the first time we had seen Henry since he quit the ring and he remarked that it was the first time he attended a boxing show since he put the mittens away for keeps.

The one-time local welterweight ace carries the scars of many of the gruelling encounters in which he took part. He has the worst pair of cauliflowered ears we have ever seen and we've met many boxers over the past 28 years. Henry told us his nose was broken at least four times and had undergone several operations. Yet he is the same soft-spoken, quiet and easy going Kayo we knew in bygone days.

Yutzy revealed that he's been working at the B. & O. shops for 23 years and his son also is employed there. He has two daughters, one of whom is married. The Yutzys live on Laing Avenue.

During my chat with Henry I learned that he started boxing when he was 14 and before he took up the pro sport he traveled with a carnival and challenged and fought all comers near his weight.

He was fighting out of Garrett (Pa.) when "Vic" Ricker, local fistinc promoter, and now tonsorial artist at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, bought his contract from "Doc" Daugherty of Meyersdale (Pa.) for $275.

In Yutzy's professional days the welterweight division was loaded with good boys at 143 pounds. Yutzy not only met welters but fought a number of fellows that were middleweights. As Ricker often told us, Yutzy never inquired about the names of his opponents or requested the FBI to look up their records. It was always: "When and where" and I'll be there." The guy would rather fight than eat.

"Vic" recalls that Yutzy was a great drawing card in Ohio, especially in Youngstown, where he boxed 11 times. Among his most notable performances were against such good boys as Bert Schneider, the Canadian welterweight champion; Young Xeny, the University of Pittsburgh Greek dental student; Johnny King, the Fayette City (Pa.) battler, "Dude" Murphy and Irish Johnny Burke.

In the Burke bout at Youngstown, Ricker recalls that Yutzy was slammed on the button in the first round and he hit the deck like a load of bricks. He tried to grab the referee's legs to get up but the third man in the ring shook him off. Henry, however, struggled to his feet, brushed the cobwebs from his brain and came back to knock out Burke in the fifth stanza.

"He hit Burke so hard in the 5th that Johnny bounced out of the ring like a rubber ball and was counted out," Ricker laughingly remarked.

Another bout that still lingers in Ricker's memory was the one between Yutzy and Jimmie Muche, the hard-hitting welter from Niles, Ohio. The match was staged in Steubenville where Muche was popular and it was the kind of fight that saw both men disregard almost every rule in the book to engage in a Pier 7 brawl. On several occasions the referee threatened to leave the ring because he not only feared the boxers would maim each other but he was trying to protect his own life.

Muche's followers threatened to "get" Yutzy after the fight so Ricker and his breadwinner returned to their hotel via the back alleys and got out of town on the first train.

They no sooner were on the train when they ran into Muche and his handlers and a hot argument ensued. It came close to being a free-for-all but the trouble subsided, however, when the conductor threatened to have the train stopped and the whole bunch arrested.

Ricker believes Yutzy's best fight was with Joey LaGray in Johnstown, Pa., and perhaps the most sensational showing of his career was his knockout of Johnny Carey of Erie, Pa., at the local armory. The Pennsy boy had won 12 straight bouts and was in line for a shot at Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, when Kayo derailed him.

Yutzy figured in one of the bloodiest battles ever staged at the Maryland Theater the night he almost tore off one of Rudy Cedar's ears.

Kayo's first fight in Cumberland was with Cocky Dilla of Pittsburgh. His long list of opponents included "Buck" Penner, Bobby Green, Buster Reed, K. O. Circus, Sylvan Bass, now fight promoter in Baltimore; Bobby Crafton, Bobby Richardson, Bernie Conway, Jimmy Goines, Billy Carter, Cuddy DeMarco, Al Feilds, Jimmy Finley of Louisville, Ky., southern welter champ whom he fought in Indiana; Dominick Profio and last but not least Fay Keiser

One of the Keiser-Yutzy bouts drew the largest fight gate in the history of the State Armory.

Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, one-time world's featherweight champion, liked Yutzy's ring style and once said "Don't let anybody change it or Henry might get his brains knocked out."

George Chip of New Castle, Pa., ex-middleweight champion, was also an admirer of Yutzy. "He doesn't know too much about boxing, but he's a great fighter," he declared.

One of the funniest things that happened during Yutzy's career occurred one night during an open air show at the Bedford, (Pa.) Fair Grounds.

Henry was fighting a Pittsburgh boxer and shortly after the bout got under way an electrical storm put in its appearance. A terrific bolt of lightning struck just as Yutzy landed a haymaker and immediately the electric power went off.

While his opponent was being counted out in the dark, Henry ran back to his corner and whispered in Ricker's ear:

"Gosh, Vic, I must have really hit him hard to put all those lights out."

Yes, Henry K. O. Yutzy was always "good copy" no matter where he fought.

As a boxing judge he should find that pencil pushing is not quite as rugged as the sport of pushing leather.

Norway Captures Lead In Winter Olympic Games

Button Sets Pace In Figure Skating

By ROBERT PARKER
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 2. (INS)——Steel skate-blades were magic wings today to Norway's Sverre Farstad and he almost literally soared to a new 1,500-metre record on this dramatic fourth day of the winter Olympics.

Official watches "caught" the nimble Norse in 2:17 6-10, a performance which did more than wipe the tablets clean of everything the world's masters had left in 24 years. It supplied the momentum on which Norway rode into the lead over the field as the '48 meeting approached its vital halfway point.

But it was a young American from Englewood, N. J., and Yale University who caught the expert eye and captured a gallery's heart.

Richard Totten Button, his doting parents called him, but that didn't handicap Dick Button's consummate artistry in leading the world's best at the close of the compulsory routines in the men's figure skating championship. Among the distinguished opposition was none other than world's champion Hans Gerschweiler, the Swiss.

Yet the latter wasn't able to make it close as he did at Prague several weeks ago when Button shocked the continental set by taking the European title in an art always considered fundamentally Europe's own.

Wins Four Of Five Tests

Today, Dick won four of the five required tests. Gerschweiler won the other—the third of the series.

But the finish of this affair of tedious exactitudes and never-ending feuds saw the judges quickly post the 20-year-old American's name at the top, and in recognition of established greatness, rate him some 29 points higher than the Swiss.

The final standing, with Button's specialty—the "free" style competition in the offing—saw a second American, John Lettingarver, St. Paul, Minn., break into that hitherto inviolable first-six, as follows:

Dick Button, America, 994.7 points; Hans Gerschweiler, Switzerland, 965.1; Edi Rada, Austria, 941 points; Ede Kiraly, Hungary, 942.1; Jack Lettingarver, America, 916.5; Henry Sharp, Great Britain, 909.8.

Only in the double 3-change-double 3 test did Button momentarily falter and fall behind, and then it was by only a fraction of a point—47 for Button as against 47 2/10 for Gerschweiler.

Button Is Acclaimed

But with his mastery thus threatened, the American came back to take the difficult loop-change-loop and bracket-change-bracket features in the last two tests of the day. Even in this stronghold of Swiss nationalism the young American's artistry received the acclaim it merited.

Many, in effect, were cheering Swiss-master Gerschweiler's eclipse, at least for this day. But cheer they did—a tribute alike to Button's popularity and tremendous talent.

The performance, meanwhile, had a tonic property for an American squad whose ego, none too robust after Friday's opening-day failures, was rapidly nearly the vanishing point when Button took charge of the ice.

Three events had been decided up to that moment and, from these, the Americans had eked out a harried and haggard-looking single point on the day.

This was the sixth-place that fell to John Worket, Minneapolis, with his excellent 2:20 2/10 in the 1,500-metre skating championship, only one second back of the Norwegian Mathison's listed Olympic record. The trouble was, however, that three others were in front of it today.

In addition to the amazing Farstad, who was 1 6/10 seconds inside the old mark, Ake Seyffarth, Sweden, and Odd Lundberg, Norway, turned in record-performances of 2:18 1/10 and 2:18 9/10 in second and third places respectively. It was Lundberg's second "placement" of the games.

Cops Three Skating Titles

Also it was Norway's third skating title out of four listed on the program and its second olympic record within 48 hours. The other was Finn Helgesen's 43 4/10 seconds for 500-metres Saturday.

All told, the day's doings carried the hardy Norse up from the doldrums of second place to a 5 ½-point lead over the displaced Swedes. Neither of the leading pair did anything even slightly remarkable in the remaining events decided today, the men's and women's downhill ski races.

The first of these was taken by France's Henri Oreiller in 2:55, with the leading nations picking up a bare sprinkling of points. And America was so far out of it that Jack Reddish, Salt Lake City, was 26th, to be the first Yankee "home."

Switzerland's Hedy Schlunneger took the women's title in 2:28 6/10, with America's lady skiers making a poor showing.

Barbara Ann Scott Makes Debut Today

Canadian Skater Will Compete In Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 2 (INS)—Barbara Ann Scott, the glamour girl of the athletic world, makes her debut in the Olympic games tomorrow.

The beautiful 20-year old miss from Ottawa, Canada, will compete in the ladies compulsory figure skating contest.

Twenty-four of the world's fanciest girl skaters will oppose her, among them being the little American, Gretchen Merrill of Boston.

Only recently Miss Scott defended her European title against four national champions from England, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland. She will have to beat them again tomorrow in addition to golden-haired Gretchen Merrill.

Miss Scott is a trim 107 pounds of gracious femininity and skating judges say she has equilibrium, charm and style on the ice over which she seems to float.

Many liken her to her famous predecessor as world's champion, Sonja Henie, in that she neither jumps higher nor skates more daringly than her rivals she merely does it better.

Miss Scott went early to bed tonight in preparation for her big test tomorrow. Her trainer, Sheldon Galbraith, said she was in perfect condition and hoped the ice was also.

Lewistown Boy Decisions Wade In Five Rounder

Marsh Beats Catanese, 629 Witness Fights

Homer Boone,, popular welterweight fighter of the Lewistown (Pa.) Athletic Club, registered his third straight triumph in a Cumberland ring when he won an unanimous decision over a clowning opponent in the person of Tojo Wade, tall, slim Negro of the Keystate Athletic Club, Central City, Pa., in the five-round main go of St. Mary's A. C. amateur show last night at the State Armory.

A turnout of 629 cash customers witnessed the ninth fistic show of the 1947-48 season here and saw Ed Knepp's Lewistown leather pushers romp off with three of the four bouts in which they participated. The Keystate team, managed by Pete Yelovitch, won two and lost three; St. Mary's A. C. won two and lost one; the Century A. C. of Frostburg gained an even break in two matches and Royale A. C. and Potomac State boxers were defeated in the only bouts in which they took part.

Boone Cops 3-0 Decision

Boone, who decisioned Danny Merwood and Randall "Skeets" Starkey in two previous matches here, after being stopped by Brian Holsopple, outsmarted the comical Tojo throughout last night's bout and earned the decision of Referee Howard "Red" Bush and the two judges—Jack Rorick and James E. Kelley, Jr.

Wade injected quite a bit of comedy into the bout and on one occasion a wild swing that he uncorked grazed Referee Bush's jaw but "Red" laughed it off as did Tojo. Wade entertained the fans with a jog before he came out of his corner in each round but his boogie woogie style of milling failed to impress the officials, although many of the fans got quite a kick out of the clowning colored lad.

The semi-final between Wilbur Lewis, who is dubbed "Young Joe" Louis, and Arky Klinger, of Lewistown, was a flop and was roundly booed by the cash customers after two rounds of waltzing. It appeared as though Lewis, a terrific puncher with either hand, was "carrying" Klinger, a hairy but harmless sort of southpaw, and as a result the Central City boy wore out his welcome here. The decision was 2-1 in favor of Klinger and it might have been more satisfactory if it were called "no contest."

Walker Quits In Second

The only knockout on the program was credited to Elmer Rothrock, 140, of Lewistown, who made Billy Walker, 136-pound Negro of Central City, Pa., quit in the second round. Walker picked out a "soft spot" and was counted out in a kneeling position after hitting the canvas 31 seconds after the second round got under way. Walker took the full count of ten.

St. Mary's A. C. victories were chalked up by "Sonny" Lafferty and Frankie Lisanti. Lafferty gained the nod over Junior Powell of Frostburg, and Lisanti grabbed a 3-0 verdict over Dick Salvatore of Lewistown. Lisanti floored the Pennsylvanian twice, once for a nine count. St. Mary's third starter, Johnny Bryant, lost on a split decision to Tommy Footen of Frostburg, incidentally, the latter's second straight victory here.

Marsh Whips Catanese

In other bouts Joey Depan, Central City bantamweight, belted out a 2-1 decision over Jimmy Cassell, of Potomac State School, while Jimmy Catanese, Royale A. C. featherweight, after getting off to a flying start, folded and lost a hard fight to Eddie Marsh, of Central City. Marsh put Catanese on the deck for no count in the third round.

It was the third show of the season offered by Matchmaker "Bobby" Green. Bush was the third man in the ring for all bouts, Kelley and Rorick, the judges, and Prof. John J. Cavanaugh, timer. Nelson W. Russler was the announcer.

Announcement was made that the Diamond A. C. will hold the next show at the armory on Monday, February 9.

Yutzy Turns Fight Judge — Fought His Best At 143

* * * * * * * *

Muche Brawl Is Recalled — Put Out Bedford Lights

By C. V. BURNS

"Get the man who thinks he is able to make Yutzy take a back step in the ring and you'll see a fight."

That's the way in which K.O. Henry Yutzy, Cumberland's popular club fighter of the 1920's and 1930's was publicized and every word of it was true. Those who knew Henry and saw him in action in the ring will attest to that.

Yutzy hung up the gloves about 12 years ago but he essayed a comeback last week (he's 48 now) and it was a success — as a boxing judge.

Here's K. O. Henry Yutzy ready for battle. . .in his prime . . .in 1926. . .He was so well liked in Youngstown, Ohio, he fought there 11 times.

Today Yutzy's essaying a comeback at 48----as a boxing judge. If you don't believe he grew the best cauliflower in the fight game just look at that left ear.

It was the first time we had seen Henry since he quit the ring and he remarked that it was the first time he attended a boxing show since he put the mittens away for keeps.

The one-time local welterweight ace carries the scars of many of the gruelling encounters in which he took part. He has the worst pair of cauliflowered ears we have ever seen and we've met many boxers over the past 28 years. Henry told us his nose was broken at least four times and had undergone several operations. Yet he is the same soft-spoken, quiet and easy going Kayo we knew in bygone days.

Yutzy revealed that he's been working at the B. & O. shops for 23 years and his son also is employed there. He has two daughters, one of whom is married. The Yutzys live on Laing Avenue.

During my chat with Henry I learned that he started boxing when he was 14 and before he took up the pro sport he traveled with a carnival and challenged and fought all comers near his weight.

He was fighting out of Garrett (Pa.) when "Vic" Ricker, local fistic promoter, and now tonsorial artist at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, bought his contract from "Doc" Daugherty of Meyersdale (Pa.) for $275.

In Yutzy's professional days the welterweight division was loaded with good boys at 143 pounds. Yutzy not only met welters but fought a number of fellows that were middleweights. As Ricker often told us, Yutzy never inquired about the names of his opponents or requested the FBI to look up their records. It was always: "When and where" and I'll be there." The guy would rather fight than eat.

"Vic" recalls that Yutzy was a great drawing card in Ohio, especially in Youngstown, where he boxed 11 times. Among his most notable performances were against such good boys as Bert Schneider, the Canadian welterweight champion; Young Xeny, the University of Pittsburgh Greek dental student; Johnny King, the Fayette City (Pa.) battler, "Dude" Murphy and Irish Johnny Burke.

In the Burke bout at Youngstown, Ricker recalls that Yutzy was slammed on the button in the first round and he hit the deck like a load of bricks. He tried to grab the referee's legs to get up but the third man in the ring shook him off. Henry, however, struggled to his feet, brushed the cobwebs from his brain and came back to knock out Burke in the fifth stanza.

"He hit Burke so hard in the 5th that Johnny bounced out of the ring like a rubber ball and was counted out," Ricker laughingly remarked.

Another bout that still lingers in Ricker's memory was the one between Yutzy and Jimmie Muche, the hard-hitting welter from Niles, Ohio. The match was staged in Steubenville where Muche was popular and it was the kind of fight that saw both men disregard almost every rule in the book to engage in a Pier 7 brawl. On several occasions the referee threatened to leave the ring because he not only feared the boxers would maim each other but he was trying to protect his own life.

Muche's followers threatened to "get" Yutzy after the fight so Ricker and his breadwinner returned to their hotel via the back alleys and got out of town on the first train.

They no sooner were on the train when they ran into Muche and his handlers and a hot argument ensued. It came close to being a free-for-all but the trouble subsided, however, when the conductor threatened to have the train stopped and the whole bunch arrested.

Ricker believes Yutzy's best fight was with Joey LaGray in Johnstown, Pa., and perhaps the most sensational showing of his career was his knockout of Johnny Carey of Erie, Pa., at the local armory. The Pennsy boy had won 12 straight bouts and was in line for a shot at Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, when Kayo derailed him.

Yutzy figured in one of the bloodiest battles ever staged at the Maryland Theater the night he almost tore off one of Rudy Cedar's ears.

Kayo's first fight in Cumberland was with Cocky Dilla of Pittsburgh. His long list of opponents included "Buck" Penner, Bobby Green, Buster Reed, K. O. Circus, Sylvan Bass, now fight promoter in Baltimore; Bobby Crafton, Bobby Richardson, Bernie Conway, Jimmy Goines, Billy Carter, Cuddy DeMarco, Al Feilds, Jimmy Finley of Louisville, Ky., southern welter champ whom he fought in Indiana; Dominick Profio and last but not least Fay Keiser

One of the Keiser-Yutzy bouts drew the largest fight gate in the history of the State Armory.

Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, one-time world's featherweight champion, liked Yutzy's ring style and once said "Don't let anybody change it or Henry might get his brains knocked out."

George Chip of New Castle, Pa., ex-middleweight champion, was also an admirer of Yutzy. "He doesn't know too much about boxing, but he's a great fighter," he declared.

One of the funniest things that happened during Yutzy's career occurred one night during an open air show at the Bedford, (Pa.) Fair Grounds.

Henry was fighting a Pittsburgh boxer and shortly after the bout got under way an electrical storm put in its appearance. A terrific bolt of lightning struck just as Yutzy landed a haymaker and immediately the electric power went off.

While his opponent was being counted out in the dark, Henry ran back to his corner and whispered in Ricker's ear:

"Gosh, Vic, I must have really hit him hard to put all those lights out."

Yes, Henry K. O. Yutzy was always "good copy" no matter where he fought.

As a boxing judge he should find that pencil pushing is not quite as rugged as the sport of pushing leather.

Norway Captures Lead In Winter Olympic Games

Button Sets Pace In Figure Skating

By ROBERT PARKER
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 2. (INS)——Steel skate-blades were magic wings today to Norway's Sverre Farstad and he almost literally soared to a new 1,500-metre record on this dramatic fourth day of the winter Olympics.

Official watches "caught" the nimble Norse in 2:17 6-10, a performance which did more than wipe the tablets clean of everything the world's masters had left in 24 years. It supplied the momentum on which Norway rode into the lead over the field as the '48 meeting approached its vital halfway point.

But it was a young American from Englewood, N. J., and Yale University who caught the expert eye and captured a gallery's heart.

Richard Totten Button, his doting parents called him, but that didn't handicap Dick Button's consummate artistry in leading the world's best at the close of the compulsory routines in the men's figure skating championship. Among the distinguished opposition was none other than world's champion Hans Gerschweiler, the Swiss.

Yet the latter wasn't able to make it close as he did at Prague several weeks ago when Button shocked the continental set by taking the European title in an art always considered fundamentally Europe's own.

Wins Four Of Five Tests

Today, Dick won four of the five required tests. Gerschweiler won the other—the third of the series.

But the finish of this affair of tedious exactitudes and never-ending feuds saw the judges quickly post the 20-year-old American's name at the top, and in recognition of established greatness, rate him some 29 points higher than the Swiss.

The final standing, with Button's specialty—the "free" style competition in the offing—saw a second American, John Lettingarver, St. Paul, Minn., break into that hitherto inviolable first-six, as follows:

Dick Button, America, 994.7 points; Hans Gerschweiler, Switzerland, 965.1; Edi Rada, Austria, 941 points; Ede Kiraly, Hungary, 942.1; Jack Lettingarver, America, 916.5; Henry Sharp, Great Britain, 909.8.

Only in the double 3-change-double 3 test did Button momentarily falter and fall behind, and then it was by only a fraction of a point—47 for Button as against 47 2/10 for Gerschweiler.

Button Is Acclaimed

But with his mastery thus threatened, the American came back to take the difficult loop-change-loop and bracket-change-bracket features in the last two tests of the day. Even in this stronghold of Swiss nationalism the young American's artistry received the acclaim it merited.

Many, in effect, were cheering Swiss-master Gerschweiler's eclipse, at least for this day. But cheer they did—a tribute alike to Button's popularity and tremendous talent.

The performance, meanwhile, had a tonic property for an American squad whose ego, none too robust after Friday's opening-day failures, was rapidly nearly the vanishing point when Button took charge of the ice.

Three events had been decided up to that moment and, from these, the Americans had eked out a harried and haggard-looking single point on the day.

This was the sixth-place that fell to John Worket, Minneapolis, with his excellent 2:20 2/10 in the 1,500-metre skating championship, only one second back of the Norwegian Mathison's listed Olympic record. The trouble was, however, that three others were in front of it today.

In addition to the amazing Farstad, who was 1 6/10 seconds inside the old mark, Ake Seyffarth, Sweden, and Odd Lundberg, Norway, turned in record-performances of 2:18 1/10 and 2:18 9/10 in second and third places respectively. It was Lundberg's second "placement" of the games.

Cops Three Skating Titles

Also it was Norway's third skating title out of four listed on the program and its second olympic record within 48 hours. The other was Finn Helgesen's 43 4/10 seconds for 500-metres Saturday.

All told, the day's doings carried the hardy Norse up from the doldrums of second place to a 5 ½-point lead over the displaced Swedes. Neither of the leading pair did anything even slightly remarkable in the remaining events decided today, the men's and women's downhill ski races.

The first of these was taken by France's Henri Oreiller in 2:55, with the leading nations picking up a bare sprinkling of points. And America was so far out of it that Jack Reddish, Salt Lake City, was 26th, to be the first Yankee "home."

Switzerland's Hedy Schlunneger took the women's title in 2:28 6/10, with America's lady skiers making a poor showing.

Barbara Ann Scott Makes Debut Today

Canadian Skater Will Compete In Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Feb. 2 (INS)—Barbara Ann Scott, the glamour girl of the athletic world, makes her debut in the Olympic games tomorrow.

The beautiful 20-year old miss from Ottawa, Canada, will compete in the ladies compulsory figure skating contest.

Twenty-four of the world's fanciest girl skaters will oppose her, among them being the little American, Gretchen Merrill of Boston.

Only recently Miss Scott defended her European title against four national champions from England, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland. She will have to beat them again tomorrow in addition to golden-haired Gretchen Merrill.

Miss Scott is a trim 107 pounds of gracious femininity and skating judges say she has equilibrium, charm and style on the ice over which she seems to float.

Many liken her to her famous predecessor as world's champion, Sonja Henie, in that she neither jumps higher nor skates more daringly than her rivals she merely does it better.

Miss Scott went early to bed tonight in preparation for her big test tomorrow. Her trainer, Sheldon Galbraith, said she was in perfect condition and hoped the ice was also.

This is according to the State Division of Fish and Game, which hauled one fellow in for taking undersized frogs.

Two were arrested for killing seagulls.

Commonest violation, however, was committed by the 54 deer hunters who failed to attach the required tags to their game.

Some 39 citizens were hauled into court for shooting waterfowl after hours, 31 for having firearms in game refuges, and 30 for fishing with spotlights.

Altogether, 546 offenders spent a total of 794 days in jail in the month, and paid fines totaling $25,092.

Lewistown Boy Decisions Wade In Five Rounder

Marsh Beats Catanese, 629 Witness Fights

Homer Boone,, popular welterweight fighter of the Lewistown (Pa.) Athletic Club, registered his third straight triumph in a Cumberland ring when he won an unanimous decision over a clowning opponent in the person of Tojo Wade, tall, slim Negro of the Keystate Athletic Club, Central City, Pa., in the five-round main go of St. Mary's A. C. amateur show last night at the State Armory.

A turnout of 629 cash customers witnessed the ninth fistic show of the 1947-48 season here and saw Ed Knepp's Lewistown leather pushers romp off with three of the four bouts in which they participated. The Keystate team, managed by Pete Yelovitch, won two and lost three; St. Mary's A. C. won two and lost one; the Century A. C. of Frostburg gained an even break in two matches and Royale A. C. and Potomac State boxers were defeated in the only bouts in which they took part.

Boone Cops 3-0 Decision

Boone, who decisioned Danny Merwood and Randall "Skeets" Starkey in two previous matches here, after being stopped by Brian Holsopple, outsmarted the comical Tojo throughout last night's bout and earned the decision of Referee Howard "Red" Bush and the two judges—Jack Rorick and James E. Kelley, Jr.

Wade injected quite a bit of comedy into the bout and on one occasion a wild swing that he uncorked grazed Referee Bush's jaw but "Red" laughed it off as did Tojo. Wade entertained the fans with a jog before he came out of his corner in each round but his boogie woogie style of milling failed to impress the officials, although many of the fans got quite a kick out of the clowning colored lad.

The semi-final between Wilbur Lewis, who is dubbed "Young Joe" Louis, and Arky Klinger, of Lewistown, was a flop and was roundly booed by the cash customers after two rounds of waltzing. It appeared as though Lewis, a terrific puncher with either hand, was "carrying" Klinger, a hairy but harmless sort of southpaw, and as a result the Central City boy wore out his welcome here. The decision was 2-1 in favor of Klinger and it might have been more satisfactory if it were called "no contest."

Walker Quits In Second

The only knockout on the program was credited to Elmer Rothrock, 140, of Lewistown, who made Billy Walker, 136-pound Negro of Central City, Pa., quit in the second round. Walker picked out a "soft spot" and was counted out in a kneeling position after hitting the canvas 31 seconds after the second round got under way. Walker took the full count of ten.

St. Mary's A. C. victories were chalked up by "Sonny" Lafferty and Frankie Lisanti. Lafferty gained the nod over Junior Powell of Frostburg, and Lisanti grabbed a 3-0 verdict over Dick Salvatore of Lewistown. Lisanti floored the Pennsylvanian twice, once for a nine count. St. Mary's third starter, Johnny Bryant, lost on a split decision to Tommy Footen of Frostburg, incidentally, the latter's second straight victory here.

Marsh Whips Catanese

In other bouts Joey Depan, Central City bantamweight, belted out a 2-1 decision over Jimmy Cassell, of Potomac State School, while Jimmy Catanese, Royale A. C. featherweight, after getting off to a flying start, folded and lost a hard fight to Eddie Marsh, of Central City. Marsh put Catanese on the deck for no count in the third round.

It was the third show of the season offered by Matchmaker "Bobby" Green. Bush was the third man in the ring for all bouts, Kelley and Rorick, the judges, and Prof. John J. Cavanaugh, timer. Nelson W. Russler was the announcer.

Announcement was made that the Diamond A. C. will hold the next show at the armory on Monday, February 9.

About 400 growers from the four-state Appalachian Fruit Belt are expected to attend the two-day session, which will be followed on Friday by separate meetings for cherry and peach growers.

PEACE CONFERENCE—The friendship worked up between one of Ed Linthicum's hounds and a fox which Linthicum caught in a trap near Cambridge, Md., about three months ago is only a sample of the trouble farmers have been having. The foxes have grown so numerous and so bold they even chase the hounds and romp with them in backyards. Mayor Dorsey Davis has issued a call for a "Pied Piper" to rid the town of the fox nuisance. Cafe Cavalcade

The house where Jimmy Kelly was born was the location of his next night club venture, after he closed the Mandarin Cafe in Chinatown. In 1913 he opeaned a modest restaurant at 204 Hester St., where his Italian-born parents still lived. "Slumming at Jimmy Kelly's" became a favorite sport of the up-town smart set, and visitors included Lina Cavalieri, the beautiful Italian opera singer,and her wealthy playboy husband, Bob Chanler; Charles Stoneham, prominent sportsman who later owned the Giants, and that fabulous wit, Wilson Mizner. Also Theda Bara, first of the film vamps; a youthful beauty of the silent screen, Barbara LaMarr, and Richard Barthelmess, whose fame as a film idol was still before him. Among the entertainment attractions was Tess Gardella, a neiborhood girl who had pestered Kelly into giving her a job. Tess was to become famous as the Aunt Jemima of vaudeville and Jerome Kern's "Show Boat."

Chuck Connors, the Broadway character then in the waning days of his glory, steered visitors from the Chinatown rubber-neck buses to Kelly's, as a "must" for all New York tourists. . . When prohibition became law, Kelly and Wilson Mizner dreamed up a stunt that was to have New York by the ears. The evening before the law went into effect, Jan. 16,1920, they held a "wake" for John Barleycorn at Considine's famous Metropole cafe at Broadway and 42d St., which was closing its doors permanently. Then they engaged a hearse from Baciagalpo's funeral palor on Mulberry St., filled a coffin with selected wines and choice liquors, placed four candles at the corners and paraded uptown to Considine's, where a witty funeral oration was delivered in memory of New York's gay nite life. . . In the same month, 28 years later—Jan. 9, 1948—Jimmy Kelly's body lay in a coffin in the same funeral parlor on Mulberry St.

Jimmy Kelly's interest in sports never waned, both at the prize ring and the race track. His luck with horses led to the opening of his last and most famous spot. A horse he owned named Wedgewood was entered in a race at the Empire Track, and Kelly, confident of winning ,tipped off the entire neighborhood to bet on his entry. The horse won and so the butcher, the baker, the scrubwomen, the porters—the whole community, in fact—became relatively rich overnite. Kelly's own take was $50,000. Bill Farnsworth, sports editor of the Evening Journal, who had seconded Kelly in his ring battles years before, induced Jimmy to invest some of his winnings in a small Italian restaurant at 181 Sullivan St. which was for sale. The chef of the restaurant, Solly Sarnatora, stayed on for a week's trial and remained 28 years. He is still presiding over the kitchen.

The new Jimmy Kelly's in Greenwich Village was soon the stamping ground for celebrities from the fields of sports, politics, stage and screen. Jack Dempsey, then champ, would change $20 bills into quarters to toss to the neighborhood kids who crowded around to catch a glimpse of their idol. Arnold Rothstein, one of the town's biggest spenders, tendered a $100-a-plate dinner to some friends just before his death at the hands of an unknown assassin. Texas Guinan brought film director Emmet Flynn there one nite to see a dancer in the show, Jean LaMont, and Flynn signed her to a five-year contract, using the back of a menu. When Dr. Dafoe of Dionne quintuplets fame visited New York he asked his guide, a nite club columnist, to show him Jimmy Kelly's. Among all the things that were written and said of Kelly's, the classic comment was delivered by the Prince of Wales —then in his pre-Wally days—who made a hegira to Sullivan St. and observed that "the place is refined but rough."

—o—

Kelly's was also linked with another event that was to make newspaper headlines. On a Summer evening in 1924, Erving Berlin dropped in to pay a call on his old mentor. Seated at a nearby table was Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence Mackay, with a party of friends. Kelly proudly pointed out the songwriter to the socialite, telling her the interesting story of their association, whereupon she expressed a desire to meet him. Kelly arranged the introduction that let to their courtship and marriage, over the protest of Miss Mackay's wealthy father. There were other socialites who enjoyed the "refined but rough" atmosphere, among them Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean of Washington. There were Biddles and Vanderbilts, too, occupying adjacent tables to Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Lupe Velez, Georges Carpentier, Jimmy Walker, the Fred Stones.

W. Va. Apple Tax To Be Discussed

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 2. (AP)—West Virginia's year-old apple tax will be up for discussion Wednesday at the 55th annual meeting of the West Virginia Horticulture Society.

About 400 growers from the four-state Appalachian Fruit Belt are expected to attend the two-day session, which will be followed on Friday by separate meetings for cherry and peach growers.

U. S. Senator Chapman Revercomb, (R-W.Va.), is scheduled to speak on Government policies affecting the fruit industry at a dinner Wednesday night, and Malcolm M. Brown, Martinsburg, will speak on the state penny-a-bushel apple tax.

Growers said some opponents have stated publicly that they have refused to pay the tax on the grounds that they have been advised the law enacted last year is invalid. Court tests have been scheduled.

Apple Sprays Described

Nine protective sprays for apples were described by Dr. R. S. Kirby and E. J. Udine of Pennsylvania State College at the county Fruit Growers meeting in Bedford last week.

Spray schedules giving the time and material for each spray application were provided by the agriculture extension office in the Court House at Bedford. Apple growers who request spray information letters will also receive a notice by mail a day or two in advance of the time for applying each spray.

PEACE CONFERENCE—The friendship worked up between one of Ed Linthicum's hounds and a fox which Linthicum caught in a trap near Cambridge, Md., about three months ago is only a sample of the trouble farmers have been having. The foxes have grown so numerous and so bold they even chase the hounds and romp with them in backyards. Mayor Dorsey Davis has issued a call for a "Pied Piper" to rid the town of the fox nuisance. Cafe Cavalcade

The house where Jimmy Kelly was born was the location of his next night club venture, after he closed the Mandarin Cafe in Chinatown. In 1913 he opeaned a modest restaurant at 204 Hester St., where his Italian-born parents still lived. "Slumming at Jimmy Kelly's" became a favorite sport of the up-town smart set, and visitors included Lina Cavalieri, the beautiful Italian opera singer,and her wealthy playboy husband, Bob Chanler; Charles Stoneham, prominent sportsman who later owned the Giants, and that fabulous wit, Wilson Mizner. Also Theda Bara, first of the film vamps; a youthful beauty of the silent screen, Barbara LaMarr, and Richard Barthelmess, whose fame as a film idol was still before him. Among the entertainment attractions was Tess Gardella, a neiborhood girl who had pestered Kelly into giving her a job. Tess was to become famous as the Aunt Jemima of vaudeville and Jerome Kern's "Show Boat."

Chuck Connors, the Broadway character then in the waning days of his glory, steered visitors from the Chinatown rubber-neck buses to Kelly's, as a "must" for all New York tourists. . . When prohibition became law, Kelly and Wilson Mizner dreamed up a stunt that was to have New York by the ears. The evening before the law went into effect, Jan. 16,1920, they held a "wake" for John Barleycorn at Considine's famous Metropole cafe at Broadway and 42d St., which was closing its doors permanently. Then they engaged a hearse from Baciagalpo's funeral palor on Mulberry St., filled a coffin with selected wines and choice liquors, placed four candles at the corners and paraded uptown to Considine's, where a witty funeral oration was delivered in memory of New York's gay nite life. . . . In the same month, 28 years later—Jan. 9, 1948—Jimmy Kelly's body lay in a coffin in the same funeral parlor on Mulberry St.

Jimmy Kelly's interest in sports never waned, both at the prize ring and the race track. His luck with horses led to the opening of his last and most famous spot. A horse he owned named Wedgewood was entered in a race at the Empire Track, and Kelly, confident of winning ,tipped off the entire neighborhood to bet on his entry. The horse won and so the butcher, the baker, the scrubwomen, the porters—the whole community, in fact—became relatively rich overnite. Kelly's own take was $50,000. Bill Farnsworth, sports editor of the Evening Journal, who had seconded Kelly in his ring battles years before, induced Jimmy to invest some of his winnings in a small Italian restaurant at 181 Sullivan St. which was for sale. The chef of the restaurant, Solly Sarnatora, stayed on for a week's trial and remained 28 years. He is still presiding over the kitchen.

The new Jimmy Kelly's in Greenwich Village was soon the stamping ground for celebrities from the fields of sports, politics, stage and screen. Jack Dempsey, then champ, would change $20 bills into quarters to toss to the neighborhood kids who crowded around to catch a glimpse of their idol. Arnold Rothstein, one of the town's biggest spenders, tendered a $100-a-plate dinner to some friends just before his death at the hands of an unknown assassin. Texas Guinan brought film director Emmet Flynn there one nite to see a dancer in the show, Jean LaMont, and Flynn signed her to a five-year contract, using the back of a menu. When Dr. Dafoe of Dionne quintuplets fame visited New York he asked his guide, a nite club columnist, to show him Jimmy Kelly's. Among all the things that were written and said of Kelly's, the classic comment was delivered by the Prince of Wales —then in his pre-Wally days—who made a hegira to Sullivan St. and observed that "the place is refined but rough."

—o—

Kelly's was also linked with another event that was to make newspaper headlines. On a Summer evening in 1924, Erving Berlin dropped in to pay a call on his old mentor. Seated at a nearby table was Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence Mackay, with a party of friends. Kelly proudly pointed out the songwriter to the socialite, telling her the interesting story of their association, whereupon she expressed a desire to meet him. Kelly arranged the introduction that let to their courtship and marriage, over the protest of Miss Mackay's wealthy father. There were other socialites who enjoyed the "refined but rough" atmosphere, among them Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean of Washington. There were Biddles and Vanderbilts, too, occupying adjacent tables to Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Lupe Velez, Georges Carpentier, Jimmy Walker, the Fred Stones.

Bob Hope is to have a list of special guests from the movies as, according to the program data, he is to present some achievement awards. The show's NBC at 10.

America's Town Meeting, ABC at 8:30 is to debate "Is Big Business Too Big?" The panel of four will include Sen. Jos. C. O'Mahoney of Wyo., and Morris L. Ernst.

Later on at 10 in American Forum of MBS the question to be brought up is "Should Meat Be Rationed?"

The Boston Symphony hour is billed to originate for ABC at 9:30 from providence, R. I. . . Dorothy Pugh, who actually is the mayor of the small town of East Carondelet, Ill., besides being a waitress and a railroad clerk, is listed for We the People of CBS at 9.

By JOHN CROSBY

The Dilemma Of Dr. I. Q.

John Crosby

Probably no other show in radio has been standardized so thoroughly as "Dr. I. Q." (N. B. C. 9:30 E. S. T. Mondays). This standardization won it a wide if somewhat puzzling popularity, made it a sort of national joke and has brought it now to a rather interesting dilemma. Even in 1939 when the show first went on the air, Dr. I. Q. (Lew Valentine) was an archaic personality. He was kindly, somewhat unctuous, vaguely ecclesiastical and dustily professorial in a manner reminiscent of a Shakespearean actor gone to seed. The act was always the same.

"May I present my assistants?" he cried at the opening of the show. "In the right balcony. . ."

"Thank you, doctor," said the right balcony.

After introducing the right balcony, the left balcony, the right aisle and the center aisle, the mental banker ("your genial master of ceremonies—the man with the friendly smile and the cash for your right answers") settled with prim gusto to work.

"I have a lady in the balcony doctor," said the right balcony, a line that has given rise to a great many tired jokes including some mighty improper ones. Last fall, the Mask and Wig Club of Pennsylvania subtitled its annual show, which was a parody of "Romeo and Juliet," with the same line.

• — • — •

"Five silver dollars to that lady if she can answer this question. A red flag spells danger. A white flag means surrender. What does a black flag mean?"

Dr. I. Q. greeted the answer with wild elation or deep concern, depending on whether it was right or wrong. "That's absolutely correct! Give that lady five silver dollars!" Or: "Oh, I'm SO sorry. I think you'll find a black flag is the symbol of piracy. But a box of Mars bars for that lady." In eight years on the air, those lines never varied by a syllable or an inflection. Every contestant was either a lady or a gentleman; their answers either lifted Dr. I. Q. into the realms of bliss or plunged him into the depths of despair. He was the Gabriel Heatter of the quiz world.

He contrived to pump intense drama into such simple questions as "What is an epigram?" and if the lady or gentlemen got within hailing distance of the proper definition, the silver dollars rolled out. In this case, the lady guessed an epigram was a joke, a dubious answer which nevertheless won her eight silver dollars, tumultous applause and the precisely modulated enthusiasm of Dr. I. Q. Incidentally the heartiness of Dr. I. Q.'s congratulations greatly exceeds the monetary reward, which by contemporary standards, when B-29's are tossed about like basketballs, is small.

In 1942, along with a lot of other surprised Americans, Valentine landed in the Aleutians, a spot where geniality is out of the question. His role was taken over by Jimmy McClain, whose voice and personality were almost identical with that of the original Dr. I. Q. However, the slender but unmistakable ecclesiastical streak in Dr. I. Q. got into his bones. He left radio in 1946 to join the Ministry and Valentine resumed the role. Several months ago, Valentine departed again for a job with an advertising agency. Stanley Vainrib, a twenty-eight-year-old, Chicago-born announcer, took over the mental banker's finances.

He's having a terrible time. He has memorized the words but the tune eludes him. His gushes of enthusiasm sound patronizing. The benign note which is the heart of Dr. I. Q. sounds shrill and forced. The vaguely religious air, which is so necessary to the real Dr. I. Q. is muffled and a little blasphemous. In fact, he sounds like Garry Moore imitating the Bishop of Barchester.

The trouble is that Dr. I. Q. has been standardized to the ten-thousandth of an inch and any tolerance beyond that will tear the machine apart. Mr. Vainrib has been stuck with an archaic personality as difficult to imitate as the mating cry of the dodo. Dr. I. Q. is a horrible example of what happens in a field which is afraid to change anything. The same problem will some day confront every other radio show. Ultimately Ezra Stone will die of old age and then who in the world will be able to bring the precise calf-like quality to the cry of "Coming, Mother!"?

CBS Shifts Some Of Its Programs; Awards By Hope

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Now it's Tuesday night on CBS that schedule realignment is a principal development.

In the shift the Christopher Wells newspaper columnist drama is being brought from Sunday nights to occupy 9:30.

This means that Studio One, the drama hour, has had to move down a step to 10, with Open Hearing to show up hereafter on Wednesday night. In its new time, Studio One also has made another change. Instead of "King's Row," Walter Huston will be on hand to play "Dodsworth," that is unless something else develops at or before program time.

Broadcast from the Hague by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands on the status of Indonesia is announced by NBC for its 15 minutes at 12:30. She will talk in English.

Bob Hope is to have a list of special guests from the movies as, according to the program data, he is to present some achievement awards. The show's NBC at 10.

America's Town Meeting, ABC at 8:30 is to debate "Is Big Business Too Big?" The panel of four will include Sen. Jos. C. O'Mahoney of Wyo., and Morris L. Ernst.

Later on at 10 in American Forum of MBS the question to be brought up is "Should Meat Be Rationed?"

The Boston Symphony hour is billed to originate for ABC at 9:30 from providence, R. I. . . Dorothy Pugh, who actually is the mayor of the small town of East Carondelet, Ill., besides being a waitress and a railroad clerk, is listed for We the People of CBS at 9.

CARD OF THANKS

Card of Appreciation

I desire hereby to publicly express my appreciation for the grand prize awarded me by the Grantsville Baseball Club in connection with their recent Fund Raising Campaign.

CARL RICHTER.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to those who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of Charlotte Lavina Sulser.

ROBERT F. and MARY RUTH SULSER.

IN MEMORIAM

BERRYMAN—In loving memory of wife and mother, Helen Catherine Berryman, who died 3 years ago, February 1, 1945.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you,
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
HUSBAND & CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Sarah Moses Matthews, who died 10 years ago today, February 3, 1938.
What is life without a mother?
What are the joys we meet?
When her loving smile no longer greets
The coming of our feet.
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by her daughter & son-in-law.

SUSIE Q. SMITH — By Linda and Jerry Walter

"Uh-oh! Mom missed her new three-thread nylons sooner than I thought she would!"

Declines Are In Majority In Stock Market's First February Session

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Selected recoveries continued in today's first February stock market but many leaders faltered at the last and, for the seventh straight Monday, the overall average failed to score a plus sign.

Final prices were well jumbled with declines in the majority. Dealings slowed at intervals. Transfers of 770,000 shares compared with 890,000 Friday and 650,000 a week ago.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was unchanged at 63.8. Of 967 issues registering, 387 fell and 332 rose.

Allied Chemical was up 1½ at 180 and Union Pacific one at 162. Equitable Office Building was active at a new 1947-48 high of 5, up three-eighths. Ahead were General Motors, Goodrich, Schenley, Western Union, Anaconda, du Pont, Atlantic Coast Line and Standard Oil (NJ).

Monsanto Chemical dipped 2½ at 53½. Off a point or so were United States Gypsum at 95½ and International Harvester 87¼.

Fractional casualties included Bethlehem Steel, United States Steel, Chrysler, Firestone Tire, Sears Roebuck, Columbia Gas, Electric Power and Light, New York Central, Southern Railway, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, Eastern Air Lines, Gulf Oil and Mission Corporation.

Among forward Curb movers were Kirby Petroleum, Old Poindexter, McCord Corporation and Aluminum of America. Stumblers were Creole Petroleum, Kaiser-Frazer, Pantepec and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 170,000 shares, the same as in the preceding full session.

The bond market turned irregular after showing narrow strength in early trading.

Crites, born July 26, 1939, and Richard E. Crites, born October 21st, 1943. Harris Cites Jury Report On Bridges

A grand jury recommended several years ago that the dangerous steel center pieces on the Washington Street and Fayette Street bridges be eliminated, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said yesterday.

Harris commented that the action of the grand jury then was prompted by a sledding accident in which a youth struck the middle beam of the Washington Street bridge and suffered serious injuries.

He remarked that two wrecks, both bad, have occurred on the two bridges since Christmas. Friday night a car operated by Mrs. Marjorie Whitworth struck the middle girder on the Washington Street bridge and Christmas night, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sanders, of 299 North Mechanic Street, hit the same dividing beam on the Fayette Street structure. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mrs. Whitworth is in a fair condition at Memorial Hospital. Mr. Sanders suffered a fractured jaw, his wife received a broken nose and both lost teeth. A child riding with them was not injured.

Harris said that the dark color of the paint on the beam makes it hard to see at night or at times when visibility is limited.

It was his opinion that the girders could be removed from the top of the bridges and supporting beams placed underneath, eliminating the hazard.

Suit Filed

A bill of complaint was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday by Juanita V. Hutson vs William R. Hutson. No details were available.

Bids To Be Asked For Police Uniforms

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan to ask bids for the purchase of new winter uniforms, summer trousers and caps for members of the City Police Department.

Keegan said members of the department will decide the style of uniform. At present, officers wear the solid-blue uniform all year and Keegan said they are too heavy for summer weather.

Mayor and Council authorized the purchase of two Venturi Tubes and accessories from the Simplex Valve Company, Philadelphia, for the water department. The bid was $7,506.

Two bids for building lots were accepted. Marie K. Holzshu purchased unimproved Lots 513 and 514 in Walsh's Addition for $800 and Charles R. Kreiger's bid of $100 for Lot 101, Gleason Street, Mapleside, also was approved.

Two applications for installation of underground storage tanks were approved. Sherwood Brothers, Inc., Baltimore, asked to install three additional 550-gallon tanks and the Cement Products Company, Henderson Avenue, to install two 5,000 gallon underground fuel oil storages.

A total of $112 confiscated from illegal gambling machines seized by the Police Department was ordered turned over to the "March of Dimes" campaign here.

Action was ordered taken on the condition of the fire escape at the York Hotel, Baltimore Street, which needs repairs and has been covered with ice. The move came after Finance Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller said he had received several complaints.

Garage Owner Sued For $2,000 Damages

A damage suit was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday by Allen J. Grant, individually and to the use of the Baltimore American Insurance Company, against William J. Cover, for $2,000.

The declaration filed claims that Grant took his sedan automobile, valued at $1,700, to Cover's garage on River Avenue, and that the machine was badly damaged. Negligence is alleged. Leslie J. Clark and Roland C. Ready are attorneys for Grant.

Declines Are In Majority In Stock Market's First February Session

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Selected recoveries continued in today's first February stock market but many leaders faltered at the last and, for the seventh straight Monday, the overall average failed to score a plus sign.

Final prices were well jumbled with declines in the majority. Dealings slowed at intervals. Transfers of 770,000 shares compared with 890,000 Friday and 650,000 a week ago.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was unchanged at 63.8. Of 967 issues registering, 387 fell and 332 rose.

Allied Chemical was up 1½ at 180 and Union Pacific one at 162. Equitable Office Building was active at a new 1947-48 high of 5, up three-eighths. Ahead were General Motors, Goodrich, Schenley, Western Union, Anaconda, du Pont, Atlantic Coast Line and Standard Oil (NJ).

Monsanto Chemical dipped 2½ at 53½. Off a point or so were United States Gypsum at 95½ and International Harvester 87¼.

Fractional casualties included Bethlehem Steel, United States Steel, Chrysler, Firestone Tire, Sears Roebuck, Columbia Gas, Electric Power and Light, New York Central, Southern Railway, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, Eastern Air Lines, Gulf Oil and Mission Corporation.

Among forward Curb movers were Kirby Petroleum, Old Poindexter, McCord Corporation and Aluminum of America. Stumblers were Creole Petroleum, Kaiser-Frazer, Pantepec and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 170,000 shares, the same as in the preceding full session.

The bond market turned irregular after showing narrow strength in early trading.

Crites, born July 26, 1939, and Richard E. Crites, born October 21st, 1943. Harris Cites Jury Report On Bridges

A grand jury recommended several years ago that the dangerous steel center pieces on the Washington Street and Fayette Street bridges be eliminated, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said yesterday.

Harris commented that the action of the grand jury then was prompted by a sledding accident in which a youth struck the middle beam of the Washington Street bridge and suffered serious injuries.

He remarked that two wrecks, both bad, have occurred on the two bridges since Christmas. Friday night a car operated by Mrs. Marjorie Whitworth struck the middle girder on the Washington Street bridge and Christmas night, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sanders, of 299 North Mechanic Street, hit the same dividing beam on the Fayette Street structure. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mrs. Whitworth is in a fair condition at Memorial Hospital. Mr. Sanders suffered a fractured jaw, his wife received a broken nose and both lost teeth. A child riding with them was not injured.

Harris said that the dark color of the paint on the beam makes it hard to see at night or at times when visibility is limited.

It was his opinion that the girders could be removed from the top of the bridges and supporting beams placed underneath, eliminating the hazard.

Suit Filed

A bill of complaint was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday by Juanita V. Hutson vs William R. Hutson. No details were available.

Bids To Be Asked For Police Uniforms

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan to ask bids for the purchase of new winter uniforms, summer trousers and caps for members of the City Police Department.

Keegan said members of the department will decide the style of uniform. At present, officers wear the solid-blue uniform all year and Keegan said they are too heavy for summer weather.

Mayor and Council authorized the purchase of two Venturi Tubes and accessories from the Simplex Valve Company, Philadelphia, for the water department. The bid was $7,506.

Two bids for building lots were accepted. Marie K. Holzshu purchased unimproved Lots 513 and 514 in Walsh's Addition for $800 and Charles R. Kreiger's bid of $100 for Lot 101, Gleason Street, Mapleside, also was approved.

Two applications for installation of underground storage tanks were approved. Sherwood Brothers, Inc., Baltimore, asked to install three additional 550-gallon tanks and the Cement Products Company, Henderson Avenue, to install two 5,000 gallon underground fuel oil storages.

A total of $112 confiscated from illegal gambling machines seized by the Police Department was ordered turned over to the "March of Dimes" campaign here.

Action was ordered taken on the condition of the fire escape at the York Hotel, Baltimore Street, which needs repairs and has been covered with ice. The move came after Finance Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller said he had received several complaints.

Garage Owner Sued For $2,000 Damages

A damage suit was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday by Allen J. Grant, individually and to the use of the Baltimore American Insurance Company, against William J. Cover, for $2,000.

The declaration filed claims that Grant took his sedan automobile, valued at $1,700, to Cover's garage on River Avenue, and that the machine was badly damaged. Negligence is alleged. Leslie J. Clark and Roland C. Ready are attorneys for Grant.

Planning Group To Map Future City Development

Will Make Report At March Meeting

Preliminary steps were decided upon at a meeting of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday at City Hall for the development of a master plan to guide the future development of Cumberland.

Chairman James Alfred Avirett requested commission members to use a city map in sketching out their own ideas with reference to formulating the plan.

The suggestions will be submitted at the March meeting of the group.

Clarence Griggs suggested that at a later date, various industrial representatives and businessmen be invited to offer their suggestions to the commission, after which engineers could be consulted regarding the proposed master plan.

In other action, the commission decided to write to Rep. J. Glenn Beall and United States Senators Millard E. Tydings and Herbert R. O'Connor, urging them to continue their efforts to obtain Congressional approval for the Cumberland flood control project.

Avirett said Beall had advised him several weeks ago that the project had not been approved by the budget committee.

In the meantime, Griggs suggested that since the city has taken all the necessary action with regard to flood control, the crosstown viaduct project be again placed on the active agenda.

A letter will be sent to Robert Reindollar, chairman of the State Roads Commission, asking whether there is any possibility of obtaining state aid for the project.

Benjamin O'Rourke suggested that in the event Congress does not approve the flood control project, the bond issues authorized for that work might be reissued for public improvement and used toward the crosstown viaduct.

Hitchcock Commended

At the special session of the General Assembly last November, the city was authorized to issue $700,000 worth of bonds and the county was authorized to issue $1,000,000 in bonds for flood work. An $800,000 city bond issue for the same purpose was authorized several years earlier.

Avirett read a statement into the minutes commending George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, for the latter's report on procedures to be followed in setting up the smoke control program in Cumberland. The report which Avirett termed "very thorough and fair," was submitted to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Rubber Workers To Attend Wage Increase Meeting

A. E. Johnson, president, and Raymond C. Burkhart, a member of the union negotiating committee, will represent Kelly Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, at a meeting scheduled Saturday and Sunday in Cleveland, Ohio, to set a pattern for wage increases to be asked for the rubber industry.

The local, at its last membership meeting, authorized union officials to notify the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company that the local wishes to open wage discussions and Johnson said the action will probably be taken here next week.

The regular meeting of the local will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the union hall, Johnson said.

The Kelly local will sponsor a Valentine Day Dance in the Queen City Hotel February 14 from 8:30 p. m. to midnight, the union announced.

Heart Week Will Be Observed Here

Members of the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever Association met last night at the office of Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, chairman, and outlined plans for the opening of a fund raising campaign here February 8, designated nationally as "Heart Week."

In an effort to help raise funds for research for cure and prevention of rheumatic fever, which kills more school-age children in the United States than any other disease each year, and cripples and handicaps many thousands more, the local group hopes to also obtain sufficient funds for the establishment of a clinic here.

Dr. Jacobson said letters will be mailed to a large list of local and county people, soliciting funds, and a publicity campaign through press and radio is designed to help educate the public generally about the drive, the association and its purpose.

Baltimore city has taken the lead in the project in Maryland, and the local group is the second organized in the state, it was indicated, although other cities, towns and counties are making preliminary plans.

A number of local physicians, civic, service and other organizations have endorsed the movement, and the association expects to become a permanent part of the health-life of the county, Dr. Jacobson explained.

Temperature Reading

The groundhog offered little hope for an early spring in his brief appearance yesterday, and last night the weatherman clinched things by predicting "cloudy and colder" weather for today. The temperature reached a maximum of 35 degrees in the city yesterday and was still registering 27 above at 11 o'clock last night.

Conference With Rail Officials On Proposed Parking Site Suggested

Planning Group Studies Plat

Recommendation that the Mayor and Council contact officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to discuss the possible sale or lease of its property on the west side of North George Street, where a public parking area has been proposed, was made yesterday by the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

The group studied a plat prepared by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, showing ownership, area and the assessed valuation of the properties involved. Assessed valuation amounts to $80,005.

At the suggestion of Chairman James Alfred Avirett, the group decided to recommend to the city that owners of the properties fronting on Frederick Street be approached regarding the possible lease of the rear sections of their improved lots.

Those property owners include Harley D. Pennington, the Allegany Trades Council, the Young Men's Republican Club, Mina Montgomery and Hugh G. Walker.

The site was originally proposed by the Highway and Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Part of the section owned by the B. and O. is vacant, while the remainder is occupied by a freight siding and loading platform.

The plat shows that the proposed parking site fronts approximately 450 feet on North George Street and 350 feet on Frederick Street.

Area Foresters Holding Two-Day Conference Here

Will Review Plans For 1948 Today

H. C. Buckingham, state forester, will outline the 1948 program of the Department of State Forests and Parks, discuss the use of equipment and explain the finances and expenses of the department at today's session of the two-day conference of Western Maryland foresters which opened at Allegany County Court House yesterday.

Today's program will also include a general discussion of uniforms for the department's personnel and other questions not covered at Monday's session.

William A. Parr, district forester, with headquarters here, presided yesterday. The Forest Conservancy District Act was outlined as to purpose, regulations, sawmill registration, appointment of local boards and board powers and duties, enforcement and court decisions.

Work of 1947 was reviewed, along with a review of fire statistics for 1947. Prevention projects for 1948 were also outlined for the department's workers.

D. M. Parr, radio technician, outlined proper procedure in use of the department's two-way shortwave radio system. A. R. Bond, assistant state forester, discussed radio and newspaper publicity, and showed how these media help educate the public and make people generally conscious of the value of the forests, and prevention of forest fires.

The group of about 50 attending the conference had dinner at Minke's Cottage Inn last night at which time a motion picture on Maryland forests was exhibited.

Today's session begins at 9 a. m. and will adjourn at 4:30 p. m.

Besides the personnel of the Maryland department attending the session, there were three guests at yesterday's meeting. They were Robert Coughenour, Romney, W. Va., acting district forester in West Virginia; Harry Brant, Garrett, forest inspector for Somerset County, Pa., and William Opel, of Meyersdale, Pa., towermen on Negro Mountain for the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters.

Corn Show Winners Will Be Announced

Winners of the first annual district hybrid corn show held by Southern States Co-operative in connection with a two-day school at Clarksburg, W. Va., for local representatives of the organization, are to be announced soon.

Among the competitors in the show were Ralph Ferguson, Union Grove, and Gale Teter, Flintstone.

Enrolled in the training school from this section were Earl Morgan, Jr., and Robert Heavener, both of Route 3, Cumberland.

The school, held January 29 and 30, was designed to bring the personnel of Southern States agencies up to date on the co-operative's over-all program, as well as commodities and services.

A review of the supply picture for 1948 indicated there will be enough feed to go around but it should be conserved by feeding a balanced ration and avoiding waste. Although prices are high they are favorable in relation to the prices of farm products.

Fertilizer was reported short, grass seeds plentiful but legumes scare. Better quality hay was viewed as possibly being exhausted within a few months.

Paper Drive Starts

About four tons of wastepaper were collected yesterday as the February drive opened with collections in outlying sections, it was announced last night.

Starting at 9 a. m. today, paper will be colected in all West Side sections. Newspapers, magazines, brown paper, cardboard boxes, and bagged or packaged wastepaper will be picked up from the curbs.

Gurley Brothers Awarded $780.40 By Mineral Jury

Amount Represents Repairs To Plane

A petit jury yesterday returned a verdict for $780.40 favoring Gurley Brothers of Cumberland, in a damage suit trial which lasted all day in Mineral County Circuit Court, Keyser, W. Va. Judge Ernest A. See presided.

The amount represented the cost of repairs to a Taylorcraft airplane owned by Gurley Brothers, which was damaged at the Cumberland Municipal Airport in Wiley Ford, W. Va., in April, 1946.

Woodrow W. Gurley, one of the plaintiffs, was the only witness to take the stand. Prior to the trial, depositions had been secured from other witnesses, including John A. Chapman, manager of the port for the former operators, Cumberland Airways, Inc., against whom the damage suit was filed.

Depositions had also been taken from William C. Rayburn, a Cumberland pilot who had rented a Cumberland Airways plane and was taxiing the ship from the parking apron when a gust of wind caused it to collide with the parked Taylorcraft; and Harry Flook, Jr., a Cumberland Airways employe.

In the damage suit brought by Walter L. Puffinburger against the Collins Bus Lines for his son, Walter L. Puffinburger, Jr., the plaintiff was awarded $650 for damages to his car and personal injuries in a bus collision in August, 1946, in Fort Ashby.

Although attorneys in the case had agreed upon the settlement, young Puffinburger testified before the jury because he was a minor at the time of the accident and West Virginia law requires judgment by a jury in such cases.

A passenger in Puffinburger's car, Henry Wince, Points, W. Va., who was also injured in the accident, was awarded a $50 judgment by the jury.

Clarence Jeffries, 27, 205 Maple Street, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, was admitted to Allegany after a yard engine struck his left foot at 9:45 a. m. yesterday.

Mrs. Mina Ayers, 37, Bowling Green, was treated at the dispensary of the same hospital yesterday morning after she fell, twisting her right foot. X-rays were taken to determine the extent of her injuries.

William F. Sager, 35, 228 Glenn Street, was treated at the dispensary after he fell and injured his left wrist. X-rays were taken.

John Habel, 62, 422 Goethe Street, was admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of a laceration of the left knee. The B. and O. worker told attaches he was working in the back shops when a stoker fell on his leg. His condition was good.

The Ridgeley Legion, organized about two years ago, now occupies a new and modern club room, and has established a record in the community as being one of the town's leading civic as well as the only veteran's group in Ridgeley.

The regular meeting, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow at 8 p. m., Brant announced yesterday, to give the membership an opportunity to attend the Ridgeley-LaSalle High School basket ball game tonight.

Winners of the membership contest will be honored at the meeting, and prizes awarded, it was indicated.

Bedford Road Residents To Seek New Water Supply

Plan Public Meeting On Thursday Night

A public meeting of residents in the Bedford Road section, will be held at the Bedford Road Volunteer Firemen's Hall Thursday at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of discussing a plan to obtain city water for residents of the area.

A committee working on the project met last night, and announced that John T. Fey, local attorney, has been retained to assist with legal details of sponsoring such a project for the area on a community basis.

Sponsors of the idea claim the present water supply in the area, which includes over 300 homes from Nave's Crossroads to the Union Grove Road, in the Bedford Road section, is not satisfactory and is insufficient to supply the needs of the community.

The meeting Thursday is open to all residents of the area, and sponsors of the movement said last night they hope for a large attendance, so the wishes of the majority of the residents can be made known.

The committee representing the community in the project, and which will make a report at the meeting Thursday, includes Lester Tewell, Russell Armbruster, Frank Adams, Thomas Holmes, William O. Wolford, Paul Montgomery, Calvin S. Keiter, Russell J. Wolford, Mr. Wolfe and Cromwell Boor.

Yank Troops Praised By German Were Commanded By Millholland

Local Officer May Have Left News There

Lt. Col. Randolph Millholland, 218 Washington Street, yesterday expressed his interest in a letter published in Monday morning's Cumberland News, which was received from a resident of Hitzacker, Germany.

Col. Millholland recalled that the battalion of troops he commanded occupied the town, and it was his outfit the German writer praises in the letter. He expressed the opinion that he may have left a copy of the Cumberland News in the house where he stayed in Hitzsacker, and when given the German's address, declared it is quite possible that he stayed in that particular house while billetedthere.

Here is Col. Millholland's account as he related it after reading the letter:

"Your Monday edition of the News was of particular interest to me as it carried a letter from a native of the German town of Hitzacker, near the Elbe River. The Elbe River near this town is where the war ended as far as the 29th Division was concerned.

"It was sometime near April 20, 1945, when the Third Battalion of the 115th Infantry jumped off about 20 miles west of Ulzen for the ratrace up to the Elbe. There was no front line and each battalion was operating fairly independently. On that occasion the Third Battalion covered 72 miles in two and one-half days' fighting, and almost entirely on foot. I say fighting but actually there was only spotty resistance and we didn't lose one man killed in the entire push. We killed very few Germans too, as most of them were anxious to surrender and we captured over 2,000 in the two and one-half days.

Pretty Little Village

Hitzacker is a clean, pretty little village of about 500 persons lying one mile this side of the Elbe. It is built entirely of brick and has some very fine modern houses. On the afternoon of the second day the Fifth Armored Division came charging across our front and from then on it was a contest to see who would reach the Elbe first. The Armored troops soon outdistanced us and rolled into Hitzacker a little ahead of us, so we by-passed the town and kept pushing to the river. At 0820 hours of the third day I received a radio report from the captain of "L" Company, that they had reached the river and the other companies began reporting their arrival shortly after. On order from Gen. Eisenhower this was to be the stopping place of the American Army in the north, so we organized the position and set up headquarters of the battalion in Hitzacker.

"We relieved the Armored unit and they pulled out at noon to go to the rear and start overhauling and servicing tanks and other vehicles.

'We had three miles of river front assigned to us so we immediately set about organizing for defense. We put patrols across the river trying to contact the Russians but they were still miles out of sight. The war was not yet over officially so we had to clear all civilians out of the area and send them to the rear. This is where your German letter writer strikes some responsive memories.

"Stretches Things"

"I have no idea why he would write the Cumberland News as I was the only Cumberland man in the battalion and I'm sure I didn't give any one there my address. No, not even the frauleins as fraternizing was still against orders at that

Jury Awards $60 Verdict In Suit Over Car Damage

Court Orders Wertz To Restore Pipeline

A Circuit Court jury yesterday awarded a verdict of $60 to Lloyd E. Mulins, elevator operator at the Court House, in an appeal case against Thomas S. Gifford, local gasoline station operator.

The case had been appealed from Trial Magistrates' Court, and the jury's verdict for Mullins reversed the lower court.

Mullins, represented by Earl E. Manges, claimed he had his automobile greased and the oil changed at Gifford's Service Station, and that in some manner, alcohol had been rubbed on the front fenders and part of the car's body, removing the paint and damaging the finish.

Gifford denied that any alcohol was used on the car, and said no anti-freeze had been put in the radiator at his station. He was represented by Robert MacDonald Bruce and William L. Wilson, Jr.

Yesterday afternoon, Associate Judge George Henderson heard a group of citizens of Glenora Addition, Valey Road, again air a water question. Residents of the neighborhood charged that Ralph Wertz and his wife, Mrs. Virginia Lee Wertz, had failed to obey a court order, and had interfered with a water line which runs through their property to supply houses below.

Mr. and Mrs. Wertz claimed they installed a "loop" in the system so that water could be provided for their livestock. At a previous hearing the Court ordered the Wertz's to refrain from shutting off the water or interfering with the flow of water through the main line. At that time the Court also recommended that a committee be organized to work out a co-operative solution to the area's water problem.

Judge Hendersn ordered Wertz to restore the line to its former condition, and warned him to adopt a more co-operative attitude with the rest of the consumers on the line. William L. Somerville and Estel C. Kelley, attorneys for the property owners, contend all property owners, including the Wertz family, have a mutual interest in the water system.

Wertz promised the Court he would co-operate in working out a solution.

Mayor Accepts Appointment To Soil Commission

Three Other Area Men Are Named

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday he has accepted an invitation to serve on Gov. Lane's 11-man commission to study the effects of soil erosion on flood control in Western Maryland reaches of the Potomac River.

Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, also has agreed to become a member of the group.

Harold W. Smith, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, said last night he has not yet accepted his appointment but that he intends to do so. The fourth commission appointee from this area is J. Edward Helbig, president of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners.

State Engineer John B. Funk will head the group, which the governor has designated the Upper Potomac River Flood Control Survey Commission.

Funk is expected to call an organization meeting in the near future.

The survey will be financed by a $2,700 federal appropriation to the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in Maryland. Congress has authorized the Department of Agriculture to carry out a flood control program by preventing soil erosion.

Lane said money available to Maryland could be used most effectively by surveying "the run-off and water flow retardation problem in the Upper Potomac watershed."

Others named to the commission were:

Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of agriculture at the University of Maryland; Chairman John E. Clark of the Board of Natural Resources; State Forester H. C. Buckingham; Director Ernest A. Vaughn of the Game and Inland Fish Commission; Dr. Vernal L. Bennion, chief of the water resources branch, U. S. Geological Survey at College Park; and State Senator L. Harold Sothoron (D-Prince George's).

"Joan Of Lorraine" Set For Wednesday

The first showing of Maxwell Anderson's "Joan of Lorraine" will be presented on the stage of Allegany High School auditorium Wednesday night at 8:15 o'clock by the school's dramatic club, under the direction of Harold C. Wickard. The performance will be repeated at the same hour and place Friday.

In the majestic role as "Joan" will be Barbee Sue Mansfield who will be playing the part that won so much acclaim for Ingrid Bergman who played it on Broadway.

As the play begins, costumes, scenery and lighting effects will be absent, but they will gradually appear until a magnificent climax is reached as the final curtain falls.

There was some fear at first that "Joan of Lorraine" might be too difficult for a high school production, but all fears were dismissed after one or two promising rehearsals.

"Joan of Lorraine" is understandable, impressive and thrilling.

At present, orders for tickets have been received at the school office from more than 11 communities in the Tri-State area.

Hitchcock Outlines Proposed Steps For Enforcing City Smoke Ordinance

Stating that Cumberland's smoke abatement program will receive his undivided attention and that enforcement will be "an honest effort to educate and assist all people to confirm with the ordinance's provisions," George M. Hitchcock, the city's new smoke abatement engineer, yesterday presented to the Mayor and Council a detailed description of the proposed procedure.

He said research and combustion engineers at local industrial and utility plants will be contacted, so that when future construction at those plants is proposed, the work can be accomplished in conformity with the smoke control ordinance.

As long as violators are found to be trying to correct their mistakes, Hitchcock said, the smoke administration will give them every assistance, with legal action only as the last resort.

The engineer said he believes local railroad officials will demonstrate as much civic pride as other groups, "even though at present 80 per cent of the violation of our code rests with them to correct."

Hitchcock listed those affected by regulations of the ordinance as follows:

"Chemical and allied product manufacturers; clay, glass and stone products, food and beverage products, leather and rubber products, lumber and its manufacture, mine and quarry products, paper and

2 Men Arrested Before Derailment Will Be Quizzed

Iron Bar Is Found Near Thrown Switch

Chief of Police Burza Hanlin, Westernport, said early this morning that Harry William Skidmore and Lloyd Skidmore, Westernport, confessed to breaking a Western Maryland Railway switch lock and turning the switch for "no good reason" yesterday and causing the derailment of a freight car and caboose.

Two Westernport men arrested shortly before a freight car and a caboose on a Western Maryland Railway train were derailed at 7:45 p. m. yesterday on the main line between Westernport and Luke, were being held in Westernport jail early this morning for further questioning.

Westernport Chief of Police Burza Hanlin identified the pair as Harry Skidmore, 24, and Lloyd Skidmore, 21, and said they were seen in the vicinity of the derailment with an iron bar shortly before the accident.

Railroad officials said the derailment blocked the main line until shortly after midnight and delayed another freight train for several hours. They explained that the caboose and last car of the "12 or 14" car westbound train were derailed.

Chief Hanlin said that shortly after the derailment investigation showed that the switch lock had been broken and the switch thrown. A flat iron bar about two or two and a half feet long was found in one of the track frogs, he said.

The two Skidmores were seen near the tracks about an hour before the accident by Chief of Police Joseph Wilkes, Luke, according to Chief Hanlin, and were arrested in Westernport after Chief Wilkes requested that they be questioned.

Chief Hanlin said he was still questioning the pair when Chief Wilkes called from Luke and reported that the two cars were derailed. At present the two men are being held on charges of trespassing on railroad property, police said, but will be questioned further about their actions this morning.

Police stated the entire train cleared the switch but the derailment was caused when the first wheels of the caboose continued on the main line and the last set of wheels were thrown to the siding by the switch. The caboose pulled the empty coal car from the track as it turned, officers explained.

Sanitary District Nominees Election Planned In LaVale

A five-man group from which three will be recommended to serve on the Sanitary District Commission Board will be elected at a public meeting in the near future, members of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association announced last night.

Miles G. Thompson said members of the association voted to elect five qualified men to serve on the commission and then recommend the five names to the County Commissioners for final selection of the three-man commission.

A nominating committee was appointed at the association meeting to select five qualified men who would be satisfied to serve on the commission with the understanding that two more men will be nominated from the floor at the public meeting.

The nominating committee includes Harry B. Simpson, Joyce Dressman and J. Louis Spoerl.

Thompson said that the nominees must meet qualifications specified in the sanitation bill, which requires the commission members to be residents of Election District No. 29, resident taxpayers of Allegany County and qualified voters in the county.

Voters for nominees must have the same qualifications as those who voted on the sanitary bill recently. The qualifications specify that the voters must be residents of District 29-1 or 29-2 and qualified voters in the county.

The Sanitary Bill was approved by a referendum January 22 by a 16-vote majority.

235 Attend Funeral Of Mark McCauley

Approximately 235 persons attended the funeral yesterday of Mark Roy McCauley, 36-year-old Davis strip miner who was executed Friday for fatally shooting a West Virginia State Policeman nearly a year and a half ago.

The service was held in the Bolden Funeral Home, Oakland, with Rev. G. W. Burkhart, Elizabeth, N. J., and Rev. W. C. Long, Mt. Morris, Pa., both Assembly of God ministers, officiating.

Witnesses said the crowd filed past the open coffin to view the body of the convicted slayer who was hanged at Moundsville Penitentiary, but declared the entire service was quiet and orderly.

Members of the immediate family accompanied the remains to the Oakland cemetery.

Planning Group To Map Future City Development

Will Make Report At March Meeting

Preliminary steps were decided upon at a meeting of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday at City Hall for the development of a master plan to guide the future development of Cumberland.

Chairman James Alfred Avirett requested commission members to use a city map in sketching out their own ideas with reference to formulating the plan.

The suggestions will be submitted at the March meeting of the group.

Clarence Griggs suggested that at a later date, various industrial representatives and businessmen be invited to offer their suggestions to the commission, after which engineers could be consulted regarding the proposed master plan.

In other action, the commission decided to write to Rep. J. Glenn Beall and United States Senators Millard E. Tydings and Herbert R. O'Connor, urging them to continue their efforts to obtain Congressional approval for the Cumberland flood control project.

Avirett said Beall had advised him several weeks ago that the project had not been approved by the budget committee.

In the meantime, Griggs suggested that since the city has taken all the necessary action with regard to flood control, the crosstown viaduct project be again placed on the active agenda.

A letter will be sent to Robert Reindollar, chairman of the State Roads Commission, asking whether there is any possibility of obtaining state aid for the project.

Benjamin O'Rourke suggested that in the event Congress does not approve the flood control project, the bond issues authorized for that work might be reissued for public improvement and used toward the crosstown viaduct.

Hitchcock Commended

At the special session of the General Assembly last November, the city was authorized to issue $700,000 worth of bonds and the county was authorized to issue $1,000,000 in bonds for flood work. An $800,000 city bond issue for the same purpose was authorized several years earlier.

Avirett read a statement into the minutes commending George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, for the latter's report on procedures to be followed in setting up the smoke control program in Cumberland. The report which Avirett termed "very thorough and fair," was submitted to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Burkhart, a member of the union negotiating committee, will represent Kelly Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, at a meeting scheduled Saturday and Sunday in Cleveland, Ohio, to set a pattern for wage increases to be asked for the rubber industry.

The local, at its last membership meeting, authorized union officials to notify the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company that the local wishes to open wage discussions and Johnson said the action will probably be taken here next week.

The regular meeting of the local will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the union hall, Johnson said.

The Kelly local will sponsor a Valentine Day Dance in the Queen City Hotel February 14 from 8:30 p. m. to midnight, the union announced.

Heart Week Will Be Observed Here

Members of the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever Association met last night at the office of Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, chairman, and outlined plans for the opening of a fund raising campaign here February 8, designated nationally as "Heart Week."

In an effort to help raise funds for research for cure and prevention of rheumatic fever, which kills more school-age children in the United States than any other disease each year, and cripples and handicaps many thousands more, the local group hopes to also obtain sufficient funds for the establishment of a clinic here.

Dr. Jacobson said letters will be mailed to a large list of local and county people, soliciting funds, and a publicity campaign through press and radio is designed to help educate the public generally about the drive, the association and its purpose.

Baltimore city has taken the lead in the project in Maryland, and the local group is the second organized in the state, it was indicated, although other cities, towns and counties are making preliminary plans.

A number of local physicians, civic, service and other organizations have endorsed the movement, and the association expects to become a permanent part of the health-life of the county, Dr. Jacobson explained.

Temperature Reading

The groundhog offered little hope for an early spring in his brief appearance yesterday, and last night the weatherman clinched things by predicting "cloudy and colder" weather for today. The temperature reached a maximum of 35 degrees in the city yesterday and was still registering 27 above at 11 o'clock last night.

Conference With Rail Officials On Proposed Parking Site Suggested

Planning Group Studies Plat

Recommendation that the Mayor and Council contact officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to discuss the possible sale or lease of its property on the west side of North George Street, where a public parking area has been proposed, was made yesterday by the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

The group studied a plat prepared by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, showing ownership, area and the assessed valuation of the properties involved. Assessed valuation amounts to $80,005.

At the suggestion of Chairman James Alfred Avirett, the group decided to recommend to the city that owners of the properties fronting on Frederick Street be approached regarding the possible lease of the rear sections of their improved lots.

Those property owners include Harley D. Pennington, the Allegany Trades Council, the Young Men's Republican Club, Mina Montgomery and Hugh G. Walker.

The site was originally proposed by the Highway and Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Part of the section owned by the B. and O. is vacant, while the remainder is occupied by a freight siding and loading platform.

The plat shows that the proposed parking site fronts approximately 450 feet on North George Street and 350 feet on Frederick Street.

Area Foresters Holding Two-Day Conference Here

Will Review Plans For 1948 Today

H. C. Buckingham, state forester, will outline the 1948 program of the Department of State Forests and Parks, discuss the use of equipment and explain the finances and expenses of the department at today's session of the two-day conference of Western Maryland foresters which opened at Allegany County Court House yesterday.

Today's program will also include a general discussion of uniforms for the department's personnel and other questions not covered at Monday's session.

William A. Parr, district forester, with headquarters here, presided yesterday. The Forest Conservancy District Act was outlined as to purpose, regulations, sawmill registration, appointment of local boards and board powers and duties, enforcement and court decisions.

Work of 1947 was reviewed, along with a review of fire statistics for 1947. Prevention projects for 1948 were also outlined for the department's workers.

D. M. Parr, radio technician, outlined proper procedure in use of the department's two-way shortwave radio system. A. R. Bond, assistant state forester, discussed radio and newspaper publicity, and showed how these media help educate the public and make people generally conscious of the value of the forests, and prevention of forest fires.

The group of about 50 attending the conference had dinner at Minke's Cottage Inn last night at which time a motion picture on Maryland forests was exhibited.

Today's session begins at 9 a. m. and will adjourn at 4:30 p. m.

Besides the personnel of the Maryland department attending the session, there were three guests at yesterday's meeting. They were Robert Coughenour, Romney, W. Va., acting district forester in West Virginia; Harry Brant, Garrett, forest inspector for Somerset County, Pa., and William Opel, of Meyersdale, Pa., towermen on Negro Mountain for the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters.

Corn Show Winners Will Be Announced

Winners of the first annual district hybrid corn show held by Southern States Co-operative in connection with a two-day school at Clarksburg, W. Va., for local representatives of the organization, are to be announced soon.

Among the competitors in the show were Ralph Ferguson, Union Grove, and Gale Teter, Flintstone.

Enrolled in the training school from this section were Earl Morgan, Jr., and Robert Heavener, both of Route 3, Cumberland.

The school, held January 29 and 30, was designed to bring the personnel of Southern States agencies up to date on the co-operative's over-all program, as well as commodities and services.

A review of the supply picture for 1948 indicated there will be enough feed to go around but it should be conserved by feeding a balanced ration and avoiding waste. Although prices are high they are favorable in relation to the prices of farm products.

Fertilizer was reported short, grass seeds plentiful but legumes scare. Better quality hay was viewed as possibly being exhausted within a few months.

Paper Drive Starts

About four tons of wastepaper were collected yesterday as the February drive opened with collections in outlying sections, it was announced last night.

Starting at 9 a. m. today, paper will be colected in all West Side sections. Newspapers, magazines, brown paper, cardboard boxes, and bagged or packaged wastepaper will be picked up from the curbs.

Gurley Brothers Awarded $780.40 By Mineral Jury

Amount Represents Repairs To Plane

A petit jury yesterday returned a verdict for $780.40 favoring Gurley Brothers of Cumberland, in a damage suit trial which lasted all day in Mineral County Circuit Court, Keyser, W. Va. Judge Ernest A. See presided.

The amount represented the cost of repairs to a Taylorcraft airplane owned by Gurley Brothers, which was damaged at the Cumberland Municipal Airport in Wiley Ford, W. Va., in April, 1946.

Woodrow W. Gurley, one of the plaintiffs, was the only witness to take the stand. Prior to the trial, depositions had been secured from other witnesses, including John A. Chapman, manager of the port for the former operators, Cumberland Airways, Inc., against whom the damage suit was filed.

Depositions had also been taken from William C. Rayburn, a Cumberland pilot who had rented a Cumberland Airways plane and was taxiing the ship from the parking apron when a gust of wind caused it to collide with the parked Taylorcraft; and Harry Flook, Jr., a Cumberland Airways employe.

In the damage suit brought by Walter L. Puffinburger against the Collins Bus Lines for his son, Walter L. Puffinburger, Jr., the plaintiff was awarded $650 for damages to his car and personal injuries in a bus collision in August, 1946, in Fort Ashby.

Although attorneys in the case had agreed upon the settlement, young Puffinburger testified before the jury because he was a minor at the time of the accident and West Virginia law requires judgment by a jury in such cases.

A passenger in Puffinburger's car, Henry Wince, Points, W. Va., who was also injured in the accident, was awarded a $50 judgment by the jury.

Clarence Jeffries, 27, 205 Maple Street, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, was admitted to Allegany after a yard engine struck his left foot at 9:45 a. m. yesterday.

Mrs. Mina Ayers, 37, Bowling Green, was treated at the dispensary of the same hospital yesterday morning after she fell, twisting her right foot. X-rays were taken to determine the extent of her injuries.

Bedford Road Residents To Seek New Water Supply

Plan Public Meeting On Thursday Night

A public meeting of residents in the Bedford Road section, will be held at the Bedford Road Volunteer Firemen's Hall Thursday at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of discussing a plan to obtain city water for residents of the area.

A committee working on the project met last night, and announced that John T. Fey, local attorney, has been retained to assist with legal details of sponsoring such a project for the area on a community basis.

Sponsors of the idea claim the present water supply in the area, which includes over 300 homes from Nave's Crossroads to the Union Grove Road, in the Bedford Road section, is not satisfactory and is insufficient to supply the needs of the community.

The meeting Thursday is open to all residents of the area, and sponsors of the movement said last night they hope for a large attendance, so the wishes of the majority of the residents can be made known.

The committee representing the community in the project, and which will make a report at the meeting Thursday, includes Lester Tewell, Russell Armbruster, Frank Adams, Thomas Holmes, William O. Wolford, Paul Montgomery, Calvin S. Keiter, Russell J. Wolford, Mr. Wolfe and Cromwell Boor.

Yank Troops Praised By German Were Commanded By Millholland

Local Officer May Have Left News There

Lt. Col. Randolph Millholland, 218 Washington Street, yesterday expressed his interest in a letter published in Monday morning's Cumberland News, which was received from a resident of Hitzacker, Germany.

Col. Millholland recalled that the battalion of troops he commanded occupied the town, and it was his outfit the German writer praises in the letter. He expressed the opinion that he may have left a copy of the Cumberland News in the house where he stayed in Hitzsacker, and when given the German's address, declared it is quite possible that he stayed in that particular house while billetedthere.

Here is Col. Millholland's account as he related it after reading the letter:

"Your Monday edition of the News was of particular interest to me as it carried a letter from a native of the German town of Hitzacker, near the Elbe River. The Elbe River near this town is where the war ended as far as the 29th Division was concerned.

"It was sometime near April 20, 1945, when the Third Battalion of the 115th Infantry jumped off about 20 miles west of Ulzen for the ratrace up to the Elbe. There was no front line and each battalion was operating fairly independently. On that occasion the Third Battalion covered 72 miles in two and one-half days' fighting, and almost entirely on foot. I say fighting but actually there was only spotty resistance and we didn't lose one man killed in the entire push. We killed very few Germans too, as most of them were anxious to surrender and we captured over 2,000 in the two and one-half days.

Pretty Little Village

Hitzacker is a clean, pretty little village of about 500 persons lying one mile this side of the Elbe. It is built entirely of brick and has some very fine modern houses. On the afternoon of the second day the Fifth Armored Division came charging across our front and from then on it was a contest to see who would reach the Elbe first. The Armored troops soon outdistanced us and rolled into Hitzacker a little ahead of us, so we by-passed the town and kept pushing to the river. At 0820 hours of the third day I received a radio report from the captain of "L" Company, that they had reached the river and the other companies began reporting their arrival shortly after. On order from Gen. Eisenhower this was to be the stopping place of the American Army in the north, so we organized the position and set up headquarters of the battalion in Hitzacker.

"We relieved the Armored unit and they pulled out at noon to go to the rear and start overhauling and servicing tanks and other vehicles.

"We had three miles of river front assigned to us so we immediately set about organizing for defense. We put patrols across the river trying to contact the Russians but they were still miles out of sight. The war was not yet over officially so we had to clear all civilians out of the area and send them to the rear. This is where your German letter writer strikes some responsive memories.

"Stretches Things"

"I have no idea why he would write the Cumberland News as I was the only Cumberland man in the battalion and I'm sure I didn't give any one there my address. No, not even the frauleins as fraternizing was still against orders at that

Jury Awards $60 Verdict In Suit Over Car Damage

Court Orders Wertz To Restore Pipeline

A Circuit Court jury yesterday awarded a verdict of $60 to Lloyd E. Mullins, elevator operator at the Court House, in an appeal case against Thomas S. Gifford, local gasoline station operator.

The case had been appealed from Trial Magistrates' Court, and the jury's verdict for Mullins reversed the lower court.

Mullins, represented by Earl E. Manges, claimed he had his automobile greased and the oil changed at Gifford's Service Station, and that in some manner, alcohol had been rubbed on the front fenders and part of the car's body, removing the paint and damaging the finish.

Gifford denied that any alcohol was used on the car, and said no anti-freeze had been put in the radiator at his station. He was represented by Robert MacDonald Bruce and William L. Wilson, Jr.

Yesterday afternoon, Associate Judge George Henderson heard a group of citizens of Glenora Addition, Valey Road, again air a water question. Residents of the neighborhood charged that Ralph Wertz and his wife, Mrs. Virginia Lee Wertz, had failed to obey a court order, and had interfered with a water line which runs through their property to supply houses below.

Mr. and Mrs. Wertz claimed they installed a "loop" in the system so that water could be provided for their livestock. At a previous hearing the Court ordered the Wertz's to refrain from shutting off the water or interfering with the flow of water through the main line. At that time the Court also recommended that a committee be organized to work out a co-operative solution to the area's water problem.

Judge Henderson ordered Wertz to restore the line to its former condition, and warned him to adopt a more co-operative attitude with the rest of the consumers on the line. William L. Somerville and Estel C. Kelley, attorneys for the property owners, contend all property owners, including the Wertz family, have a mutual interest in the water system.

Wertz promised the Court he would co-operate in working out a solution.

Mayor Accepts Appointment To Soil Commission

Three Other Area Men Are Named

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday he has accepted an invitation to serve on Gov. Lane's 11-man commission to study the effects of soil erosion on flood control in Western Maryland reaches of the Potomac River.

Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, also has agreed to become a member of the group.

Harold W. Smith, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, said last night he has not yet accepted his appointment but that he intends to do so. The fourth commission appointee from this area is J. Edward Helbig, president of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners.

State Engineer John B. Funk will head the group, which the governor has designated the Upper Potomac River Flood Control Survey Commission.

Funk is expected to call an organization meeting in the near future.

The survey will be financed by a $2,700 federal appropriation to the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in Maryland. Congress has authorized the Department of Agriculture to carry out a flood control program by preventing soil erosion.

Lane said money available to Maryland could be used most effectively by surveying "the run-off and water flow retardation problem in the Upper Potomac watershed."

Others named to the commission were:

Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of agriculture at the University of Maryland; Chairman John E. Clark of the Board of Natural Resources; State Forester H. C. Buckingham; Director Ernest A. Vaughn of the Game and Inland Fish Commission; Dr. Vernal L. Bennion, chief of the water resources branch, U. S. Geological Survey at College Park; and State Senator L. Harold Sothoron (D-Prince George's).

"Joan Of Lorraine" Set For Wednesday

The first showing of Maxwell Anderson's "Joan of Lorraine" will be presented on the stage of Allegany High School auditorium Wednesday night at 8:15 o'clock by the school's dramatic club, under the direction of Harold C. Wickard. The performance will be repeated at the same hour and place Friday.

In the majestic role as "Joan" will be Barbee Sue Mansfield who will be playing the part that won so much acclaim for Ingrid Bergman who played it on Broadway.

As the play begins, costumes, scenery and lighting effects will be absent, but they will gradually appear until a magnificent climax is reached as the final curtain falls.

There was some fear at first that "Joan of Lorraine" might be too difficult for a high school production, but all fears were dismissed after one or two promising rehearsals.

"Joan of Lorraine" is understandable, impressive and thrilling.

At present, orders for tickets have been received at the school office from more than 11 communities in the Tri-State area.

Hitchcock Outlines Proposed Steps For Enforcing City Smoke Ordinance

Stating that Cumberland's smoke abatement program will receive his undivided attention and that enforcement will be "an honest effort to educate and assist all people to confirm with the ordinance's provisions," George M. Hitchcock, the city's new smoke abatement engineer, yesterday presented to the Mayor and Council a detailed description of the proposed procedure.

He said research and combustion engineers at local industrial and utility plants will be contacted, so that when future construction at those plants is proposed, the work can be accomplished in conformity with the smoke control ordinance.

As long as violators are found to be trying to correct their mistakes, Hitchcock said, the smoke administration will give them every assistance, with legal action only as the last resort.

The engineer said he believes local railroad officials will demonstrate as much civic pride as other groups, "even though at present 80 per cent of the violation of our code rests with them to correct."

Hitchcock listed those affected by regulations of the ordinance as follows:

"Chemical and allied product manufacturers; clay, glass and stone products, food and beverage products, leather and rubber products, lumber and its manufacture, mine and quarry products, paper and

2 Men Arrested Before Derailment Will Be Quizzed

Iron Bar Is Found Near Thrown Switch

Chief of Police Burza Hanlin, Westernport, said early this morning that Harry William Skidmore and Lloyd Skidmore, Westernport, confessed to breaking a Western Maryland Railway switch lock and turning the switch for "no good reason" yesterday and causing the derailment of a freight car and caboose.

Two Westernport men arrested shortly before a freight car and a caboose on a Western Maryland Railway train were derailed at 7:45 p. m. yesterday on the main line between Westernport and Luke, were being held in Westernport jail early this morning for further questioning.

Westernport Chief of Police Burza Hanlin identified the pair as Harry Skidmore, 24, and Lloyd Skidmore, 21, and said they were seen in the vicinity of the derailment with an iron bar shortly before the accident.

Railroad officials said the derailment blocked the main line until shortly after midnight and delayed another freight train for several hours. They explained that the caboose and last car of the "12 or 14" car westbound train were derailed.

Chief Hanlin said that shortly after the derailment investigation showed that the switch lock had been broken and the switch thrown. A flat iron bar about two or two and a half feet long was found in one of the track frogs, he said.

The two Skidmores were seen near the tracks about an hour before the accident by Chief of Police Joseph Wilkes, Luke, according to Chief Hanlin, and were arrested in Westernport after Chief Wilkes requested that they be questioned.

Chief Hanlin said he was still questioning the pair when Chief Wilkes called from Luke and reported that the two cars were derailed. At present the two men are being held on charges of trespassing on railroad property, police said, but will be questioned further about their actions this morning.

Police stated the entire train cleared the switch but the derailment was caused when the first wheels of the caboose continued on the main line and the last set of wheels were thrown to the siding by the switch. The caboose pulled the empty coal car from the track as it turned, officers explained.

Sanitary District Nominees Election Planned In LaVale

A five-man group from which three will be recommended to serve on the Sanitary District Commission Board will be elected at a public meeting in the near future, members of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association announced last night.

Miles G. Thompson said members of the association voted to elect five qualified men to serve on the commission and then recommend the five names to the County Commissioners for final selection of the three-man commission.

A nominating committee was appointed at the association meeting to select five qualified men who would be satisfied to serve on the commission with the understanding that two more men will be nominated from the floor at the public meeting.

The nominating committee includes Harry B. Simpson, Joyce Dressman and J. Louis Spoerl.

Thompson said that the nominees must meet qualifications specified in the sanitation bill, which requires the commission members to be residents of Election District No. 29, resident taxpayers of Allegany County and qualified voters in the county.

Voters for nominees must have the same qualifications as those who voted on the sanitary bill recently. The qualifications specify that the voters must be residents of District 29-1 or 29-2 and qualified voters in the county.

The Sanitary Bill was approved by a referendum January 22 by a 16-vote majority.

Approximately 235 persons attended the funeral yesterday of Mark Roy McCauley, 36-year-old Davis strip miner who was executed Friday for fatally shooting a West Virginia State Policeman nearly a year and a half ago.

The service was held in the Bolden Funeral Home, Oakland, with Rev. G. W. Burkhart, Elizabeth, N. J., and Rev. W. C. Long, Mt. Morris, Pa., both Assembly of God ministers, officiating.

Witnesses said the crowd filed past the open coffin to view the body of the convicted slayer who was hanged at Moundsville Penitentiary, but declared the entire service was quiet and orderly.

Members of the immediate family accompanied the remains to the Oakland cemetery.
